DIE WACHT AM RHEIN.

[The Watch O'er the Rhine.]

BY MAX SCHNECKENBERGER.

The words of Germany's national song were written by Max Schneckenberger in 1840, and set to music by Carl Wilhelm in 1854. Even after it had been set to music the song was little known until the Franco-Prussian war, when the tune became popular and the song became the battle cry of the Prussians. Carl Wilhelm in 1871 was given an annual pension of $750 in recognition of his music for "Die Wacht Am Rhein."

With thunder shout the air is rent,
Like roar of waves and sword clash blent,
"Now, of the German Rhine so free,
Who will the river's guardian be?"

Chorus:

Thou, Fatherland, may'st tranquil be,
Thy faithful sons will watch o'er thee;
Steadfast and true each son, each son of thine,
Stands sentry o'er our Rhine, our noble Rhine!

The people hear that mighty cry,
Like lightning flashes ev'ry eye;
That landmark ev'ry heart will keep,
And watch unsleeping o'er the deep.

Thy tide reflects the heav'ns above,
And heroes gaze on thee with love,
And proudly breathe a vow to thee,
Thou, Rhine, shalt ever German be.

So long as blood flows in each vein,
Or hands to draw the sword remain,
And while an arm is in the land,
No foe shall walk upon thy strand.

The waves re-echo back the cry,
The standards in the breeze doth fly,
The Rhine, the German Rhine, so free,
Yes, we will all thy guardians be.

AMERICAN FRUIT SELLS IN EUROPE

BRINGS A GOOD PROFIT.

Apples, Peaches, and Pears Are Delivered in Far Off Lands in as Perfect Condition as When They Leave.

AMERICAN FRUIT—Experiments by agricultural department show that better profits can be secured in Europe than at home, and that fruit is delivered there in fresh condition.
SOCIETY—President and Mrs. Roosevelt give first formal dinner in several weeks.

[BY RAYMOND.]

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—Wonderful success has attended the efforts of the agricultural department in attempting to establish a European market for American fruits. Experiments during the last year have demonstrated that it is possible for American fruit growers to place their products in Paris, London, Liverpool, Hamburg, and other European cities in perfect condition, and to dispose of them at a profit greater than ever made in the United States.

Apples, peaches, and Bartlett pears have been successfully shipped to London, Paris, and Hamburg and disposed of at a profit 100 per cent greater in some instances than could be secured for the same products in the United States.

California and Florida oranges also have been sold in England, France, and Germany, and during the year the pomology division of the agricultural department will make experiments with the view of establishing foreign markets for plums, apricots, and other fruits, of which this country produces a large supply in excess of the domestic demand.

The experts of the deparment conducted a series of experiments which has demonstrated that American summer apples from points as far south as Delaware by proper handling and packing and the use of refrigerating cars and plants, and transatlantic steamers can be laid down in London in perfect condition. During July, when the English market is bare, good prices can be obtained for the fruit. After the fruit has been gathered in the orchards it is wrapped in ordinary absorbent paper, placed in refrigerator cars, shipped to New York, and put in cold storage, where the fruit remains four or five days, after which it is transferred to a refrigerating ship and transported across the ocean to the European cities, where it is placed on sale in the open market.

These experiments have demonstrated that the flavor of the fruit is not impaired in the slightest degree, although it is not placed in cold storage after reaching the foreign markets.

There is a good supply of Australian fruits in the London markets from April until the end of June, after which the market is entirely bare. From July 1 to the latter part of August the American fruit commands extraordinarily high prices, but after that period the prices are lowered, and it has not yet been demonstrated that American summer apples can be sold in London after Aug. 22, as the domestic fruit appears then.

The department now is making experiments to determine whether or not the American apples can be placed in London and other European markets after the time specified and whether or not they can be shipped under the ordinary conditions and be delivered in merchantable shape; that is, without the use of cold storage.

Peaches from Georgia, Connecticut, and West Virginia have been laid down in London in sound and wholesome condition. A profitable market is found for this product from July 15 to Oct. 15. The shipments were profitable to an extraordinary degree during the period when the fruit could not be obtained from Australia or the continent or from domestic orchards.

The department is not yet able to determine whether peaches can be shipped to London and sold at a profit in competition with other products. Bartlett pears have been shipped to London in cold storage and have sold at an increase of 40 per cent over the profits secured in this country.

Pears placed in London during August and September are sold at this increase over the domestic profit, but the earlier fruits bring a still greater revenue. Apples, pears, and peaches are well received by the dealers and the consumers, and the outlook for a permanent and constantly growing market is extremely bright.

Experiments have been made with different wrappers for the small fruits, but the one which has been most successful is the ordinary absorbent white paper. Peaches and pears, as soon as they are gathered in the orchards, are wrapped in this paper and packed in the ordinary small baskets, such as frequently are seen on the fruit stands. The baskets then are placed in refrigerator cars and shipped exactly as are the apples.

This wrapper is most acceptable and economical. Paraffin paper, which is nonabsorbent, cannot be used successfully in the shipping of fruit. The experiments also have made possible the shipping of winter apples, such as Baldwins, winesaps, and Roxbury russets.

It has been demonstrated beyond question that American apples can be placed in the European markets in perfect condition, and experiments are being made now for the purpose of determining whether it is preferable to ship the winter apples in barrels or boxes, or whether they should be wrapped or unwrapped, and what difference in dollars and cents it will make to the producer. Discordant results have been obtained. In London the wrapped Baldwins sold for less than the unwrapped, while of the winesaps shipped at the same time the wrapped apples brought more than the unwrapped.

It was demonstrated that there was not enough difference in the price paid for apples wrapped and packed in boxes to justify the extra cost. At Hamburg the advantage was all in favor of the apples packed in boxes.

Since Jan. 1 commercial shipments of Baldwins and Roxbury russets have been made to Paris. Each week one to three carloads of these apples are sent over in the French liners, and the shipper secures a net profit of $5 to $6 on each barrel.

American apples are extremely popular with the French people, and there is an unlimited market for the American fruit during

COMING AS A PRESIDENT.

ROOSEVELT'S VISIT TO CHICAGO FREE OF POLITICS.

He Will Stop Here on April 2 as Chief Magistrate and Not as a Partisan—Efforts of Mayor's Campaign Managers to Twist the Affair Into a Party Move Fall Flat—Telegraphic Correspondence with Washington.

It was announced for President Roosevelt yesterday in Washington that the original plan for his visit to Chicago on April 2 would not be altered.

The effort of the local managers of Mayor Harrison's campaign to twist the president's visit into a political move fell flat. The local committee on arrangements assured the president that his reception would be strictly nonpartisan in character; that no attempt would be made to use the visit to Chicago to help the republican city ticket; and that the general committee will include leaders of all political parties.

Mayor Harrison will be given a prominent place in the affair, and has been slated for two public talks on the day of the visit. He will be accorded all the courtesies which customarily have been accorded the mayor of the city on such occasions.

Conference in Washington.

In Washington an animated conference was held at the White house between the president and Senators Cullom and Hopkins, made necessary by the reports from this city that the mayor had been ignored in the plan and that Mr. Harrison was making political capital out of the visit, charging it was part of a scheme of the national administration to influence the election in Chicago.

Senator Cullom and the president both agreed that they were entirely ignorant of the date of the city election in Chicago when arrangements were made to visit the city. The president's western trip was sketched and the visit to Chicago came merely as a first step in the general plan.

President Not to Talk Politics.

A Washington dispatch further states that the president understands he is to make a speech here in the Auditorium on the afternoon of April 2 and to be entertained at a banquet on the same evening.

On neither occasion will he make the slightest reference to politics, and it is stated as a fact susceptible of proof that the president not only was unaware of the date of the Chicago election but had no special interest in it beyond that manifested by any good republican in the general success of his party anywhere.

"President Roosevelt," continues the dispatch to THE TRIBUNE, "likes to see Harvard win a ball game from Yale, because he is a Harvard man, and he takes a general interest in republican politics everywhere, but he is not the kind of a man to participate in any scheme to influence a purely local election entirely independent of national issues. The opinion was expressed at the White house conference that Mayor Harrison should be rebuked by the people for manifest discourtesy to the president of the United States.

"For the express purpose of showing his contempt of such petty political practices the president will follow out the Chicago program without the slightest alteration."

Message Sent to Washington.

In Chicago the committee in charge of the plans for the president's visit was not idle in repelling charges that politics had a factor in the trip. A message was prepared by Charles S. Deneen, chairman of the committee, and sent to Senators Cullom and Hopkins with the request that they communicate its contents to President Roosevelt. The message follows:

An evening paper publishes a dispatch from Washington which represents that the president feels that the men who are preparing the reception for him are using it to affect the muncipal campaign, and are thus giving the reception a partisan aspect.

The facts are that the committee appointed to select the general committee are John A. Spoor, Franklin MacVeagh, John M. Smyth, Adolph Nathan, Charles H. Wacker, Harry G. Selfridge, Helge A. Haugan, H. N. Higinbotham, and Charles Henrotin. All of these men are conspicuous in business life here and three of them are among the most prominent democrats in the city.

On the general committee already selected are the leading democrats of Chicago, including Thomas Gahan, democratic national committeeman for Illinois, and Thomas Carey, chairman of the Cook county democratic committee, who has charge of Mayor Harrison's municipal campaign.

Mayor Harrison is to be given an equally conspicuous place with Gov. Yates in the reception, and will receive the same honors and courtesies on the part of this committee in connection with the president's entertainment which have been accorded heretofore to other mayors on similar occasions. The arrangements will not be characterized by discriminations of a partisan or other nature.

I trust you will acquaint the president with these facts.

Mayor Hears from Senators.

Mayor Harrison in the afternoon received the following telegram, signed by Senators Cullom and Hopkins:

"The president's visit to Chicago is not political. As mayor of the city he desires, and we join in the request, that you unite with other citizens of Chicago in his entertainment while he is in the city."

In reply the mayor sent this telegram to the senators:

"I shall be glad to do all in my power, officially and personally, to pay the respect due the president of the United States on any nonpartisan visit he may pay to the city of Chicago."

The executive committee met yesterday noon and tentative plans for the entertainment of the president were discussed. More than 100 members of the general committee were selected, and it is expected the list will be completed today.

President to Stop at Freeport.

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—The president today added to his itinerary a promise to stop at Freeport, Ill., on his return from the west. This will be on June 2, the occasion of exercises commemorating the debate held there between Lincoln and Douglas in 1858. The president will stop off for twenty-five minutes and will speak from the same place where Lincoln and Douglas debated, the location of which is to be marked by a boulder.

MASON ADVERTISES 'PUB. DOCS.'

Carload of Books Mailed from Washington to Waukegan Not Easily Distributed.

The carload of public documents which were mailed from Washington to Waukegan by Senator Mason shortly before he retired from office are advertised to be given away. Mr. Mason has been mailing them through the Waukegan postoffice, and apparently his mailing list was exhausted before the supply of books gave out. In a notice in a Waukegan paper he announces that he has "a large number of public documents of great interest to farmers which he will distribute gratuitously to any names and addresses which may be forwarded to him."

TEAMSTERS VOTE TO STAND ALONE.

Decide to Hold Aloof from Strikes Called by Other Unions Except in Special Cases.

QUIT STEAM POWER BODY

Future Applications for Help Will Be Referred to Their Arbitration Board for Action.

Union teamsters in Chicago decided yesterday to hold aloof hereafter from the quarrels of other labor unions unless consulted before a strike is called. They say they have grown weary of bearing the burdens of every struggling organization and of "pulling others' chestnuts out of the fire."

The teamsters' decision came in the form of an announcement that their connection with the Steam Power council has been dissolved. In all probability they will start a movement to withdraw from the Chicago Federation of Labor within the next three months. They say they wish to be alone, free to do as they please, so long as they live up to the various agreements they have signed with the team owners.

During the last year the drivers have been drawn into practically every labor dispute in Chicago. Whenever the rank and file of the organization is asked to go on a sympathetic strike it unhesitatingly has done so. This has led to discontent among the employers and open quarrels among the officials of the union. More money has been spent by the teamsters to aid outside unions than has been used for the conduct of the organization.

Weary of Empty Victories.

Out of all the turmoil, they say, they have gained nothing save the knowledge that when they mingled in a struggle they always won. This glory has palled. They are willing to help a union that comes to them first and asks for assistance to obtain arbitration. If it is refused by the employers they are willing to call out their men, but the union that hereafter calls a strike first and then asks them for aid is to get nothing.

The withdrawal of the teamsters from the Steam Power council came unexpectedly, and demoralized that body. The council has been the central body of the steam engineers, firemen, teamsters, and steamfitters. It has been the closest and most powerful body of its kind local labor has known. It has won every fight it has attempted. It has raised the membership of the unions concerned over 300 per cent, and has given them a uniform wage throughout the city.

The council forced most of the downtown office buildings to use coal the year around. It won the last strike of the office building janitors and elevator men when they individually could not win a victory.

Weakens Steam Power Council.

Now the desertion of the teamsters makes the council ineffective. The other unions are not strong enough to gain their demands save at the cost of a struggle that may bring disaster to the organizations. The withdrawal also means that when the teamsters see fit they will deliver coal to buildings with nonunion engine room men. This they refuse to do at present save in exceptional cases.

When asked the reason for their desertion the drivers frankly remarked that they were tired of the affiliation. Engineers have been fighting arbitration, and this stand has embroiled the drivers in more trouble.

It has been the custom of the engineers to go before an employer and without argument deliver an ultimatum that within half an hour he must sign an agreement or suffer from a strike. They did this at the Union stockyards last week, and on Thursday repeated the performance at the Selz-Schwab factory. In both cases the teamsters were called on to win the fight, and in both they refused.

Loyal to Their Agreements.

"The teamsters have grown weary of being the cat's paw for every petty union that believes it has a grievance," said President Albert Young yesterday. "Our men must work, for we cannot afford to have them idle on the streets. We always pay them full wages for the time they lose. New and untutored unions are prone to call a strike and then ask us to win the battle. We used to enjoy that, but the pleasure has palled.

"We have agreements with practically every team owner in the city and we cannot afford to be breaking them. We signed them in good faith and we intend to keep them. They are advantageous to us and have been gained after a long struggle. We intend to keep them even if it costs us the enmity of the rest of the labor world."

Other Unions Already Feel Blow.

The teamsters gave no hint of their intended action, and other unions already have felt the blow. The cloth casket trimmers appealed to the drivers for aid, and were refused. The carpenters at the American glucose factory were the next to suffer. Then came the gasworkers, and yesterday the striking fireman at the Selz-Schwab plant.

"Our constitution provides the we attend to our own business," said Secretary Daniel Furman of the truck drivers. "We have tried this promiscuous aid giving for months, and it has not paid."

The action of the teamsters is expected to bring to a close many labor disputes. It probably will give added force to the arbitration sentiment. Arbitration was started by the drivers, and they believe it to be a panacea for all labor woes. In lieu of their former aid in actual strikes they offer the services of the Chicago board of arbitration, and are willing to make that the central adjustment body of the city.

CHICAGO WOMEN LEAD IN FORM.

Mme. Pyne Says They Possess More Beautiful Figures than Their Sisters in Other Cities.

"The figures of Chicago women are more symmetrical, graceful, and beautiful than those possessed by the women of any other city in America."

This praise came from the lips of Mme. Pyne, the New York modiste, who has been attending the dressmakers' convention in this city.

"This is my first visit to Chicago," said Mme. Pyne yesterday, "and I have been impressed more by the beautiful figures I have observed on State street than by anything else. The New York women are not so uniformly well formed as the Chicago women."

HOME RULE FOR IRELAND.

BRITISH MINISTRY MAY OFFER BILL THIS SESSION.

Persistent Rumors in London That the Cabinet Will Propose a Measure Giving a Roman Catholic University and a Moderate Plan of Self-Government as Soon as the Land Purchase Act Is Disposed Of—Nonconformists Are Alarmed.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, March 20.—There are persistent rumors here tonight that the government will introduce in parliament a bill giving a modified form of home rule to Ireland. The bill will be offered, it is stated, as soon as the land purchase bill is out of the way, and will involve legislative schemes for Ireland hitherto unsuspected by the general public.

The Belfast Evening Telegraph quotes T. W. Russell, the liberal unionist member of parliament, representing the south division of Tyrone, and who has been opposed to Irish home rule, as stating today this fact. A week or two ago the Dublin Daily Express, a unionist newspaper, referring to the reported passive understanding reached between the government and the nationalists, said it rested upon an agreement by the government to give some sort of a Catholic university to Ireland with a plan for home rule on the lines of Chamberlain's counsels.

Irish Look for Favors.

It has been pointed out in cable dispatches how accommodating the Irish members have shown themselves to the government recently in the house of commons, refraining from opposing the army schemes and otherwise withholding their support from the opponents of the government, even in the face of an apparent opportunity of defeating the government on division. Their complacency is based on expectation of favors to come. These facts are now cited in support of the latest rumor, which cannot be given direct confirmation.

Meanwhile the Irish party seems once more to enjoy the position of holding the internal political destinies of Great Britain in its hand. This is illustrated in an important letter from R. W. Perks, M. P., which will appear in the press tomorrow. Mr. Perks is a prominent Wesleyan and one of the most influential of the nonconformist in British politics. He, moreover, is an adherent of Lord Rosebery's "clean slate policy," with its condemnation of home rule for Ireland. "It is of the utmost importance," he writes, "that Protestant nonconformists know where they will stand should a liberal administration come into power," and referring to the government's recent education act, says: "The aims and ideals of the nonconformists in educational affairs is thoroughly obnoxious to Irish members. Guided by their priests they will continue to use every effort to perpetuate and strengthen clerical control of our elementary schools. They wish and expect us to vote vast sums of money towards the establishment and endowment of a Roman Catholic university for Ireland. To both of these phases of educational policy British nonconformity is irrevocably opposed, whatever the liberal whips may say to the contrary. It is evident that the liberal party has to make its choice between nonconformist alliance and an Irish alliance."

Liberal Pledge Demanded.

Mr. Perks demands a pledge from the liberal leaders to adopt as their policy the complete reversal of the education act, either by repealing or amending it before home rule or any other measure for Ireland is taken up. He continues:

"A few compliments to nonconformists will not do. What we are entitled to is a direct pledge that British nonconformity will take precedence over the Irish Catholic party. It is certain the Irish vote will be polled against the liberal party at the next election. The liberal leaders must take care that they do not alienate the nonconformists in their attempt to win back the Irish vote by making promises of home rule.

In view of the fact that Sir Henry Campbell-Bannerman, the liberal leader, in his speech at Leeds this week, again declared himself in favor of home rule for Ireland, it seems that Perks is right in declaring that the liberals will have to choose between the nonconformists and the Irish.

CROWLEY HEARS DECISION BY ARCHBISHOP QUIGLEY.

If Deposed Priest Accepts the Conditions Imposed He Will Be Restored to His Former Position — Terms Withheld.

The case of the Rev. Jeremiah J. Crowley, that has been before the Catholic church for some months, is nearly settled. Archbishop Quigley has had the matter under consideration and has decided on his course.

He is awaiting Father Crowley's decision.

"So far as I am concerned," Archbishop Quigley said, "the case is ended. My conclusion has been reached and Father Crowley has been informed of the terms under which he will be restored and given a parish. It is for him to accept or reject. There will be no change on my part. When I know the position taken by the priest I will be able to make public the facts."

The archbishop will participate in the celebration this forenoon at St. Procopius' church in honor of St. Benedict, founder of the Benedictine order. Solemn high mass will be said at 10 a. m. Tomorrow he will assist in the 10:30 o'clock mass at the Holy Name cathedral. He will meet a delegation from the Catholic Mutual Benefit association at 3 p. m. in school hall. On March 24, at 3 p. m., he will meet the students and professors of St. Ignatius' college. There will be an ordination of priests at the cathedral on March 27, and the archbishop will make the appointments a week later, April 6.

CENSORIZES COLLEGE YELLS.

President of Hamline University Makes Students Revise Rhymes to Remove Offensive Words.

St. Paul, Minn., March 20.—[Special.]—President Bridgeman of Hamline university has declared a ban on slang words in college yells. "Dickens" is a word that he will not allow. "Bet" is another. "Holy smoke" he characterizes as profane.

The oratorical contest took place this afternoon, and, as the president entirely abolished two of the best yells, the present stock of "noises" consists of three or four badly metered rhymes. In order to meet the president's demands, the committee authorized the use of the phrase "Oley smoke" in place of "Holy smoke," which President Bridgeman characterized as sacrilegious.

The choicest rhyme of all the yells ran: "What in the dickens's the matter with us?" President Bridgeman's alteration runs: "What in the world's the matter with us?"

A yell which was prepared especially for Thomas Swinnerton, the champion Hamline orator, is strangely altered by the substitution of the word "wager" for "bet." Here is the altered rhyme: "He's a winner still. He wields the quill. He'll beat them out. You wager he will."

FINES FOR FIVE PACKING FIRMS.

EACH MUST PAY $5,000.

If Amount Is Not Paid Within Thirty Days All of Them Will Be Ousted from the State.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 20.—[Special.]—The Supreme court of Missouri today declared five beef packing companies guilty of combining to fix and control prices of meats. The court fined each of the five companies $5,000.

The packers against whom this judgment was issued are the Armour Packing company, the Hammond Packing company, the Cudahy Packing company, Swift & Co., all of Chicago, and Schwarzschild & Sulzberger of New York. All of these companies have extensive branch houses in St. Louis, Kansas City, and St. Joseph.

Pay or Get Out.

The fine must be paid to the clerk of the Supreme court within thirty days, and, if any of the companies fails to, pay within that time, a judgment will issue at once, ousting that company from doing business in the state of Missouri.

The Henry Krug Packing company was at first associated with the other companies in this proceeding, but the court some time ago dismissed the proceeding against that company, it being a Missouri corporation which handles pork exclusively.

The total costs in these cases will be about $5,000, of which each of the five companies against whom judgment was awarded is to pay its proportion.

The opinion today holds that the evidence obtained at the hearing shows conclusively that there was a combination of the packers to maintain trust prices on beef in Missouri; that the representatives of the packers met on certain days to fix the prices for that week; that rebating was done; that he same prices prevailed at all of the coolers at the same time; that no competitor could enter the field against the packers because the combine would undersell the newcomer out of his business.

The opinion does not take up the charge made in the proceedings by the attorney general that the companies were also guilty of selling diseased meat. Much of the evidence was to the effect that the companies did sell diseased meat, but the opinion of the court was based on the violation of the anti-trust law of the state.

Court Is Unanimous.

The opinion was written by Justice W. C. Marshall and concurred in by his six associates. It is a voluminous document, covering twenty-four typewritten pages. The opinion recites in part as follows:

"The testimony introduced by the state was abundant to show that the respondents were members of a combination or pool to fix and maintain prices. The state called as witnesses nine butchers who did business with the packers in St. Joseph, whose testimony showed that they all got rebates in money or pounds of meat from the packers, and that, in every instance, they were given rebates by the solicitors or cooler managers, who said they could not sell meat for less than a certain price because all of the packers had agreed as to prices, which were fixed every Wednesday by the head men of the packing plants, and the prices given by them to the cooler managers on Thursday, and by the cooler managers and solicitors were given to the trade, and that if any one cut the price he would be fined. So they circumvented their fellow conspirators by giving rebates as herein described.

Prices Exactly the Same.

"The witnesses testified also that they had tested the various packing plants by going to the several coolers on the same day and trying to buy cheaper from one than was offered them by another, and in every instance they found the prices to be exactly the same at all of the coolers."

"It is quite too plain for doubt that persons or companies who are engaged in the same business in the same place do not buy goods at one price and give rebates in money, goods, or weights, and do not give notice of a uniform advance in prices at a certain date, always followed by such a rise. Such acts and circumstances speak as loudly, as directly and as certainly, and tell as conclusive a tale of wrong doing in these regards as any witness could possibly testify to or any resolution formally adopted by the directors or stockholders could prove.

Law Must Be Enforced.

"The law has placed the stamp of condemnation upon all arrangements, pools, trusts, or conspiracies to fix or maintain the price of articles of prime necessity. The only course the court can pursue is to enforce the law. The statements of the packers that they had built up a demand for their products, increased the price of live stock, and distributed millions of dollars among the people in no way or measure condones, even if such allegations be true, their violation of the anti-trust law."

Beginning of the Case.

The decision in the Supreme court today against the packers is the result of a proceeding instituted last May. On the 6th of May, 1902, the different packing companies doing business in the state were ordered by the Supreme court to appear here before Judge Burgess of the court and show cause why they should not be cited to appear and answer the charge of violating the anti-trust laws of the state in combining to maintain prices in Missouri.

The result of the hearing led Attorney General Crow to file suit against the packers, which was prosecuted vigorously by him on the part of the state. Hearings were had at St. Louis, Kansas City, St. Joe, and Jefferson City before I. H. Kinley, who had been appointed a commissioner to hear testimony.

Findings of Commissioner.

The report of the commissioner was filed in the court Jan. 3 of the present year. It was in part as follows:

"The testimony shows that the Armour, Hammond, Swift, and Cudahy Packing companies, together with Nelson Morris & Co., a copartnership at St. Joseph, Mo., between Aug. 21, 1900, and May 9, 1902, by their managers and agents, who had charge of their coolers at St. Joseph, entered into an agreement to fix and control the prices of dressed beef and fresh pork slaughtered, manufactured, prepared, and offered for sale to the retail butchers and others at St. Joseph, and that said corporations, together with Nelson Morris & Co., agreed among themselves and with each other to maintain and control the prices of dressed beef and fresh pork, and that, in pursuance of the agreement, the respondents, betweeen Aug. 21, 1899, and May 9, 1902, have sold to the butchers of St. Joseph, Mo., said dressed beef and fresh pork at the prices so fixed, except where the respondents gave rebates in money or in pounds of meat, and that the managers and solicitors of the dressed beef company would advise their customers, the butchers, that they had better purchase dressed beef before certain times, as the price thereof would be advanced on a certain day, and that the price would be advanced on that day.

Agreed to Give Rebates.

"It was proved that the cooler managers and agents of the several dressed beef companies, to secure trade or induce purchases, would agree to give rebates in money or in pounds of meat, and in the latter instance the bills for such meat would be made out to the butcher at a fixed price, and that subsequently the rebates were shown to have been given as agreed and the purchaser requested to maintain secrecy in regard to the same.

"I find that Armour, Swift, Cudahy, and other packers in St. Louis entered into an agreement and combination among and between themselves and with each other to fix, regulate, and maintain certain fixed or list prices on dressed beef sold to the butchers and trade at St. Louis, Mo., from their coolers between Aug. 1, 1899, and May 9, 1902, and that, although there was considerable cutting of the fixed prices in the way of giving rebates in money or in pounds of meat, yet outside of the rebates I find such fixed prices agreed on by those that were in said combination were in pursuance of said agreement maintained.

"It appears from this testimony that there were dealing in fresh pork in St. Louis, in addition to Armour, Swift, and Cudahy, the following who had packing houses or coolers in St. Louis: Nelson Morris & Co., Phillip Kelm, Henry Sartorious, John H. Blaze & Co., Louis Grunfelder, Kreig Packing company, Wismuth & Sons, Charles Hile, W. D. Grant, and Laux & Sons.

Prices Fixed Every Week.

"I find that representatives of all the foregoing firms and corporations, about 1899 or 1900, formed a voluntary association for the purpose of meeting once a week to discuss and fixed the list prices to be charged butchers for fresh pork, and at these meetings the representatives of the firms and corporations agreed with each other to maintain these prices, as fixed, under a penalty of paying a fine of $5 for each sale under such fixed prices; that said association employed a secretary at $10 per week and paid same by assessment.

"They cannot plead that the managers of their coolers and city solicitors who carry on the business for them did it without their knowledge and consent. The local agents of the dressed beef companies did it and all knew it, and their knowledge is the knowledge of their companies, and their acts are the acts of their companies.

"It appears from the evidence and I find that the corporations who are the defendants at St. Joseph, St. Louis, and Kansas City sell and offer to the trade at each point from 55 to 80 per cent of the dressed beef handled and from 50 to 60 per cent of the dressed pork."

Grand Rapids, Mich., March 20.—By the careless throwing down of a lighted match by a guest in his room a fire was started at 7:30 o'clock tonight which practically destroyed the Clarendon hotel at Canal and Bridge streets, with its contents, entailing a total loss estimated at between $75,000 and $100,000, and causing the loss of one life and the injury of several persons.

William G. Hawkins, a traveling man of Bay City, Mich., was killed, his body being discovered after the fire had been extinguished.

The four more seriously injured include Peter Sternberg of Chicago, a traveling man, who was severely burned on the face and hands.

Sternberg went to his room on the second floor, and after igniting the gas threw the lighted match among a lot of his silk goods, which immediately took fire. He made a desperate effort to extinguish the flames, being severely burned before he rushed out and gave the alarm.

J. J. Samuels of Cincinnati carried his fainting wife from their room on the second floor to the street. One man and two women were taken from a third story window down a ladder.

MISSOURI HOUSE ORDERS SENATE CLERK TO PRISON.

Refusal to Explain Where He Got Two $500 Bills Results in Formal Action —Still Firm in His Defiance.

Jefferson City, Mo., March 20.—In the house today a resolution by Davidson was adopted by a vote of 70 to 22 to imprison Senate Clerk Cole Hickox for contempt in refusing to answer questions asked by the house boodle investigating committee as to where he got two $500 bills.

When the result of the vote was announced Hickox was taken in custody by the sergeant at arms. The resolution provides that he shall be committeed to the Cole county jail and remain there at the pleasure of the house.

Hickox was arraigned before the house today, and was asked by the speaker if he still declined to answer the committee's questions. "I do, sir," replied Hickox in a firm voice. The resolution to commit Hickox to jail until he satisfies the committee then was presented and adopted.

Hickox was not locked up tonight, but was released on his own recognizance until 10 o'clock tomorrow, when papers will be prepared for committing him. It is probable that he will then apply for a release on a writ of habeas corpus.

Body Recovered from River.

The body of a man, thought to be a member of the fire department, was taken from the south branch of the river at Lafin street yesterday afternoon, where it evidently had been for several weeks. In the pockets were a $10 gold piece and several silver dollars. There were no marks of violence. On the rolls of the fire department no man was reported missing during the last two months. The body was taken to the county morgue.

CHINA BAD FIELD FOR MISSIONARIES

Gen. Chaffee Says Intelligent Classes Refuse to Accept Christianity.

GIRLS CLIMB SKYSCRAPER

Maj. Gen. A. R. Chaffee told the members of the District Social union at the hotel Savoy tonight that he had never met an intelligent Chinaman who expressed any desire to embrace the Christian religion. Rev. Dr. F. E. Gamewell, one of the field missionaries in China at the time of the Boxer troubles, and who was of much assistance at the defense of the American legation, were announced as the speakers at the meeting.

Gen. Chaffee Says Missionaries Fail Among Chinese.

Gen. Chaffee's subject was "The Philippines and China." After reviewing the events in China at the time of the uprising, Gen. Chaffee highly praised the work of the missionaries in the orient.

"They are all in earnest and hopeful," he declared, "but the results of their work are not proportionate to the great labor of love. They have done all that is possible, but the burden is too great for them.

"I took occasion to meet many of the most prominent Chinamen while in Pekin, and I talked to many of the better class, including officials. I must say that I did not meet a single intelligent Chinaman who wanted to become a Christian. The masses are against Christianity, but the missionaries are hopeful and no doubt courageous. Forty or fifty missionaries in that great country cannot do much."

The general declared that he believed there was a better field for missionaries in the Philippines, but said that the fact that but few missionaries spoke Spanish, to say nothing of the jargon of the provinces, would make the task a hard one.

Dr. Gamewell admitted that the situation was as Gen. Chaffee had said it was, but he hoped that much good would result from the increased missionary work in China.

"The hope of China," he declared, "lies in the education of her young men."

Coroner's Physician Weston declared today that the death of Benjamin Hilson from glanders was the first case he ever met in which that disease caused the death of a human being. Hilson contracted the disease by attending a horse which was sick with glanders. In administering medicine to the animal he put his hand in its mouth. It is supposed the poison was communicated to his blood through a cut or abrasion on his hand.

The reputation of Chicago as a hustling city was maintained today by Florence Radcliff, member of the "Prince of Pilsen" company, who walked to the top of the Park Row building, the highest office structure in the world, in ten minutes and thirty-two seconds, beating a New York girl and winning a small wager and the promise of a steamship ticket to England. Miss Radcliff is a Chicago girl who never saw New York until last Monday. Mabel Reed of the "Sultan of Sulu" company told her she would lose her breath if she even tried to look at the Manhattan skyscraper. "Never," replied the young woman from Chicago, and she challenged Miss Reed to walk to the top. George Kingsbury, manager for Henry W. Savage's attractions, said he would give a European trip to the winner. Nina Sherman and Pearl Gibson of the "Sultan of Sulu" company and Queenie Leroi and Mabel Spencer and Carroll McComas of the "Pilsen" company volunteered to accompany the contestants to the scene of the feat. Miss Reed made the start upstairs first. Miss Radcliff started a close second, and although half a dozen janitors' assistants and watchers tried to stop the young women they continued to run from floor to floor. At the thirteenth Miss Reed, who was in the lead, became tired and stopped. The Chicago girl kept on to the top of the structure and was declared a winner. The steps passed in the journey numbered 1,138.

Chicago Girl Wins Stair Climbing Feat.

Ex-Gov. Francis of Missouri, president of the St. Louis exposition, was entertained at the University club today by Hamilton Wright Mable, Richard Watson Gilder, and other well known editors. Mr. Francis later was dined by the New York Press club.

Assemblyman Frank J. Ulrich, the democratic representative of the Sixth district, was assaulted at McDonough street and Reed avenue, Brooklyn, by William Getteys, a bank clerk, Thursday night. The assault was the outcome of his having asked the 20 year old youth to apologize for an alleged insult to two young women, one of whom Ulrich knew. The assemblyman's right eye was almost gouged out, his neck and head were cut in half a dozen places, and one of the gashes extends across the throat, almost severing the jugular vein.

The assemblyman made a statement before Coroner Williams today. He says one of two young women, Hester Heimerzheim, is a friend of his young daughter. The two girls boarded a car at Driggs avenue, and at the next street three young men, who are now identified as Fred Henck, Frank W. Ellis, and the assailant, Getteys, entered the car. Getteys, on finding no place vacant, seated himself on the laps of the other two, but in such a manner as to lean over the lap of one of the girls.

Ulrich rebuked the fellow. When he left the car he was followed by the three men. Getteys then attacked him with a knife.

A report comes from Philadelphia that William K. Vanderbilt has been shifting his investments, and that if an inventory of his stocks was made it would show that his holdings of New York Central railroad shares are materially reduced. Moreover, it is thought he has increased his holdings of Pennsylvania railroad shares, and that the Pennsylvania, in turn, has bought largely of the New York Central stocks, creating a new community of interest.

Philadelphia Hears W. K. Vanderbilt Will Step Down.

Following this step it is said that Mr. Vanderbilt, having grown tired of cares of management, will surender the reins to others, who will have full authority to look after the interests of great railroad property. John D. Rockefeller, it is said, has largely increased his holdings of New York Central, and the street has it that hereafter his voice in the management of the corporation will be more influential than heretofore, although he has long been a member of the board of directors. The report was shown to a number of railroad men here, and they all declared that they placed little credence in it.

James R. Keene and the city of New York are engaged in an interesting legal battle, which may have a far reaching effect on the question of the payment of personal taxes. Mr. Keene is to be the first man examined under the new method of supplementary proceedings. He is to be summoned to court and examined in detail as to his property.

James R. Keene Fights Payment of Personal Taxes.

The corporation counsel contends that Mr. Keene owes the city $1,737 for personal taxes for 1901. Mr. Keene has informed the corporation counsel that he will not pay this tax because in that year he was a resident of Hempstead, in Nassau county.

As soon as the lawyers of the department for the collection of arrears on personal property heard of Mr. Keene's defiance they served notice that if he did not pay up the city would compel him to be examined in supplementary proceedings. In reply to this lawyers representing Mr. Keene called at the office of Martin Saxe, who is at the head of this branch of the tax department, announcing that Mr. Keene would fight the payment of the taxes out or in the courts.

Judge Barrett, commissioner general of the St. Louis exposition, who was among the passengers on the steamship Cedric, which arrived today, said regarding his trip abroad in the interests of the exposition: "I return after an absence of a year, in which I have traveled 40,000 miles, visiting fifteen countries with success.

Oriental Countries Show Interest in St. Louis Fair.

"China, Japan, and Corea show wonderful interest in the exposition. China had decided not to exhibit, but after considerable urging she has consented to take part, and an appropriation of 800,000 yen was made. The interest awakened in the orient is such that America will be astonished. I look for results of a material nature. The countries of Asia feel that this is a country where they want to come and one with which they wish to connect for the benefit of trade and commercial relations."

When Col. John A. Lee of St. Louis, the lieutenant governor of Missouri, who came to New York to attend the Missouri society's dinner to ex-Gov. Francis, looked out of the window of the Waldorf-Astoria today he saw American flags waving on the roofs of many buildings. They never fly flags in St. Louis save on the Fourth of July, because the atmosphere makes any fabric exposed to the air look like a coal miner's undershirt. It puzzled Col. Lee. He met Harry Walker, the man who started the Missouri society.

Col. Lee Thought New York Honored Bryan's Birthday.

"I see you are celebrating the day in New York," ventured Col. Lee.

"What day?" asked Mr. Walker.

"Why, doggone it, man," answered Col. Lee, "this is the birthday of that peerless statesman, William Jennings Bryan. I just received a telegram, sir, from Jefferson City, Mo., which informs me, sir, that the state legislature adjourned for twenty-four hours in honor of the occasion."

"Show me the telegram," demanded Mr. Walker.

Col. Lee showed it to be true that the Missouri legislature had adjourned to celebrate the birthday of the man who is considered by New Yorkers to be unsuspectingly dead.

The formal announcement of the date of the wedding of Miss Cathleen Neilsen, daughter of Mrs. Frederic Neilsen, to Reginald Vanderbilt was made today. The day selected is Wednesday, April 15. The wedding will be in Newport.

"If you expect to be only exhorters, we've got another bench back there which you may go 'way back and sit down on," said Bishop Charles N. Fowler, the presiding officer of the New Jersey Methodist conference, at Asbury Park this morning, addressing the conference class of candidates. "You are not called upon to gabble or twaddle in the pulpit," continued the bishop. "I hope you have each a good wife. If you have not, get one. Don't marry her because she is pious; marry her because she has good common sense. If I had two women to choose from, one with common sense and the other with only religion, I would take the woman with common sense, for if a person with common sense undertakes this work she will be religious within the next hour. A woman who is only religious may backslide."

"Do Not Gabble in the Pulpit," Says Bishop Fowler.

The governors of two states and the ex-governor of another were present at the Beta Theta Phi dinner at the Waldorf tonight, given by district No. 2 of the fraternity, together with the alumni living in this city, for Gov. Odell of New York. They were Gov. Bates of Massachusetts, Gov. Montagu of Virginia, and ex-Gov. Beaver of Pennsylvania, who presided. Gov. Bates remarked that he hoped the affair would be written up as a banquet and not as a fight, because of the mild disorder among the diners. Gov. Montagu, in reviewing Virginia's history, declared that Massachusetts and Virginia, because of the part they played in obtaining independence, should be bound especially close together. Gov. Odell was unable to attend, owing to a recent death in his family.

STEAMERS IN COLLISION: VICTIMS MAY NUMBER 8.

Many Others Injured When Big Vessels Crash Together in a Fog in Long Island Sound—Cabins Demolished.

New London, Conn., March 20.—[Special.]—Six persons are known to have perished, two others are missing and believed dead, while a number of others were injured, several perhaps fatally, in a steamer collision in Long Island sound off Plum island early this morning.

The vessels in collision are the passenger steamer Plymouth of the Fall River line and the freight steamer City of Taunton of the same line. The Plymouth, which was bound for Fall River from New York, suffered the greater damage, a large part of the upper works being demolished. There was a heavy fog at the time of the collision.

Of the dead one is a passenger and the two missing also are passengers. Many of the injured were passengers, who were crushed in the cabins and staterooms.

The one passenger known to have perished was George H. Marston of Paterson, N. J.

The steamers apparently were under good headway when they met, the bow of the City of Taunton penetrating ten feet into the hull of the eastbound passenger boat. As the vessels pulled apart the bow of the freight steamer raked the upper works of the Plymouth, tearing out the second cabin and ripping out staterooms like cardboard. Seven cabins in all were swept from the starboard bow of the big passenger boat.

A detachment of United States marines, under the command of Capt. Low, who were passengers on the Plymouth, had a peculiar experience. Awakened from a sound sleep, the soldiers rushed from the lower cabin, where they were quartered, without outer clothing or shoes. They were largely instrumental in averting a panic among the other passengers, and while engaged in this work their clothing and effects were lost.

JAPANESE BECOMES A CITIZEN.

Application by Lee Guy Dean, Tea and Confectionery Dealer, Granted by Judge Tuthill.

Another Japanese was admitted to citizenship yesterday by Judge Tuthill. He is Lee Guy Dean, proprietor of a tea and confectionery store at 417 Colorado avenue.

Dean tried to become a citizen in the County court a year ago, but his application was refused by Judge Carter on the ground that Mongolians could not become citizens of the United States. Judge Tuthill took an opposite view.

Dean is from Tokio, and came to America twenty years ago. He has made Chicago his home for the last ten years. He is graduate of the Mount Herman boys' school of Massachusetts.

W. H. HARRIMAN IS QUITE ILL.

Banker Is Taken from Palm Beach, Fla., to His New York Home in Serious Condition.

New York, March 20.—Banker William M. Harriman was taken to a hotel tonight suffering from an ailment the exact nature of which his physicians refuse to state. He was brought here from Palm Beach, Fla., in E. H. Harriman's private car, and it was said tonight by Dr. H. E. Emerson that his condition is serious. Mr. Harriman went south some time ago. Three weeks ago he had a relapse and his condition became grave. Mr. Harriman fully realized this and expressed the wish to be taken back to New York. He was brought to this city in record time.

TRAINMEN READY FOR ARBITRATION

MAY NOT BE ACCEPTED.

Miners and Operators of Altoona (Pa.) District Agree on Wage Scale.

St. Louis, Mo., March 20.—[Special.]—A late offer to arbitrate the dispute between the Wabash railroad and the brotherhoods of trainmen and firemen was made in the United States District court this afternoon just before the conclusion of the arguments in the injunction suit.

Attached to an affidavit made by President Ramsey of the road and submitted to the court was a stenographic report of a meeting between President Ramsey and the grievance committee representing the brotherhoods of firemen and trainmen. In this report J. R. Courtney of the committee is quoted as having said to Mr. Ramsey that the men were willing to arbitrate, but would not allow the railroad company to select any of the arbitrators.

Road Willing to Arbitrate.

Judge Priest, who made the final argument for the company, alluded to the reported statements of Mr. Courtney and declared that the railway company had been willing to arbitrate. Grand Master Hanahan of the firemen, who was seated behind F. N. Judson, the chief counsel for the defendants, spoke a few words to the attorney, who at once interrupted Judge Priest's argument.

"Are you willing to settle this thing in that manner?" Mr. Judson asked.

"I am here to answer the argument made by the gentleman," replied Judge Priest. "I have no authority to speak either for Mr. Ramsey or the Wabash road upon such a question."

Agrees for the Unions.

Instantly Mr. Judson was on his feet, saying: "I wish to say, speaking both for the trainmen and the firemen, that we are willing to accept the arbitration of a tribunal provided for under the acts of congress."

"The gentleman's afterthought is better than his forethought," retorted Judge Priest, and he resumed his argument.

Mr. Hanahan afterwards said: "We are willing to do as Mr. Judson said. In fact, I told him to say it."

Col. Blodgett, chief counsel for the Wabash, said: "I hardly think President Ramsey would care to say anything. The men flatly refused arbitration when he offered it."

Arguments in the injunction suit were concluded this afternoon and the case was taken under advisement by Judge Adams. He gave no intimation of how much time he might require to prepare his opinion, but the attorneys look for a decision in about a week or ten days.

Miners Win at Altoona.

Altoona, Pa., March 20.—[Special.]—The miners and operators agreed today on this scale, to go into effect April 1, for a year: The pick mining rate shall be increased 10 per cent, the price of machine mining advanced 12 per cent, eight hours to constitute a day's work for all labor inside of the mines, except the pumpmen and monthly men, who are to continue on present conditions at the same wages now paid, with 10 per cent advance; rope riders, motormen, cagers, or drivers hauling outside from sidetracks to work the necessary extra hours to clean up coal on sidetracks and to be paid the same rate per hour for the extra time worked; drivers $2.40, and all inside labor of a similar character now receiving the same wages as drivers to be paid the same rate; all other classes of inside labor to continue at the present rate of wages for eight hours' actual work at working place; trappers to receive a minimum wage of $1 per day; all outside labor engaged in the dumping and hauling of coal, including mine carpenters and blacksmiths, advanced 10 per cent on the present basis and to work the hours required and to be paid for the number worked; all other classes of outside labor of the mines to be advanced 10 per cent from the present basis. From 25,000 to 40,000 men are affected by the agreement.

Coal Teamsters Strike.

St. Louis, Mo., March 20.—In the face of the cold weather of today and the cold wave predicted for tonight, 600 or more coal teamsters have struck for higher wages. The drivers demand $10 a week for handling one horse teams, $13 for two horse teams, $14.50 for three horse teams, and $16.50 for four horse teams. They were offered less and refused to accept.

To Arrange New Wage Schedule.

New Haven, Conn., March 20.—The directors of the New York, New Haven and Hartford railroad company propose to secure from its operating department figures on which new wage schedules can be offered to the trainmen and conductors on Wednesday, and desires the grievance committee to arrange that all classes of employés shall be included in the negotiations. The men have sent a reply to President Hall, saying that the committee will comply with their wish.

Decides for Federation of Labor.

Washington, D. C., March 20.—In the Supreme court of the district today Judge Hagner refused an injunction in an issue involving the American Federation of Labor and the Knights of Labor. The practical effect of the decision is to compel the subcontractors on a building who had engaged knights to employ members of the federation, as provided for in the contract with the original contractors.

Help for Waterbury Strikers.

Waterbury, Conn., March 20.—A telegram was received by the strikers this evening from W. D. Mahon, president of the International Association of Street Railway Employés, announcing that on Monday financial assistance would be forthcoming. In this connection it is common talk in union circles tonight that now that national assistance is assured the possibility of a strike on all the lines of the Connecticut Lighting and Power company in the state is not improbable.

Lawyer and Physician Acquitted.

Attorney Charles T. Brown and Dr. Charles L. Wood, charged with victimizing Rose Pelker, a 14 year old girl, were acquitted last night by a jury in Judge McEwen's court. There was little evidence against the men, except that given by the girl.

BLAME MINERS FOR RIOT.

WEST VIRGINIA BATTLE IS CHARGED TO THEIR UNION.

Report of Federal Grand Jury to Attorney General Knox Says That Deputy Marshal Cunningham Was Moderate in Discharging the Bidding of the Court and Was Attacked by Strikers—Semi-Military Mob Fired First Shots at Posse.

Charleston, W. V., March 20.—[Special.]—Because of the adverse criticism which has been made against Deputy Marshal D. W. Cunningham for the part he and his posse took in the miners' riots at Atkinsville and Stanaford City, the federal grand jury, which has returned 250 indictments against the members of the mob, has made a special report of the matter to Attorney General Knox.

"On Feb. 25 D. W. Cunningham, deputy United States marshal, went to Atkinsville to execute certain writs placed in his hands, issued from your honor's court," the report begins. "He was met by an armed mob and informed that he would not be permitted to execute said writs and his life was threatened.

Formed Semi-Military Mob.

The jury declares this same band of men or mob organized themselves into a semi-military body, numbering 200 or 300, and marched across the country to a rendezvous on Big mountain, near Quinnimont.

Some 150 of them, nearly all of whom were armed, started from there on the morning of Feb. 24, the report says, and appeared to be under strict military discipline and were commanded by men who evidently had had some military experience. They marched with military precision from Big mountain direct to Stanaford City, where they arrived about or shortly after nightfall Feb. 24, 1903.

Sought to Prevent Bloodshed.

"Having been informed of this proceeding, and having learned that the men for whom they had processes were members of the mob, Deputy Marshal Cunningham gathered together a number of men as a posse comitatus, some twenty or more, and left for Stanaford City on the evening of Feb. 24, and went to Ralsigh, where they were joined by Harvey Cook, sheriff of Raleigh county, with a posse comitatus of some sixty or more men," continues the report. "The two posses arrived near Stanaford City near midnight of the 24th, and arranged to surround the village about daylight and take the mob by surprise, hoping thereby to prevent resistance and bloodshed.

Negro Opens Fire on Them.

"Squads were sent to different houses where they believed the men for whom they had writs were staying. The first demand of the officers for surrender and admittance was at a house occupied by a negro named Stonewall Jackson. Jackson came to the door and was told that the parties there were deputy United States marshals and had warrants for the occupants of the house and demanded that they should surrender to the law. Jackson immediately slammed the door shut, and when Edward D. Summers, a member of the marshals' posse, forced it open he was fired upon by Jackson with a double barrel shotgun and the powder burned his eyebrows.

Strikers Had a Cannon.

"The fire was returned by the posse. When the inmates finally surrendered it was found that two or three of them had been killed and several were wounded. None of the officers was wounded. There were eleven men in the house and the officers secured seventeen guns, all of which were empty, and also found a large number of empty shells on the floor of the rooms where the men were.

"In the meantime the battle had been raging in other parts of the town, and, according to the testimony of some witnesses, 1,500 to 2,000 shots were fired altogether, and the evidence shows the strikers had with them a small cannon which they carried away with them.

"The evidence shows that after June 7, 1902, when provisions began to be sent in for the union miners, a large number of persons in that vicinity who were not miners and who had never mined a bushel of coal joined the union and received supplies and that of the crowd that camped on Big mountain after the demonstration at Atkinsville on Feb. 21, 50 per cent were not miners nor never had been."

TAKEN PRISONER WHILE IN BED.

Burglar Suspect Surprised by Police—Hundreds of Dollars' Worth of Alleged Stolen Goods Recovered.

Walter Sheehan, alleged burglar, awoke in his house, 343 West Harrison street, early to find Lieut. Ambrose and Detectives Kirby and Birmingham of the Maxwell street station standing over him with drawn revolvers. Sheehan was taken to the Maxwell street station and locked up.

A search of the rooms resulted in the discovery of hundreds of dollars worth of property, much of it silverware, which the police believe had been stolen. Two revolvers, a "jimmy," pinchers, and other tools used by burglars were found in the room.

Sheehan was married a year ago, and posed as a mechanic. His wife says she never knew her husband to be a burglar.

Rudolph Gerber, a commission merchant at 251 South Water street, identified some of the silverware as having been stolen from his home, 267 South Wood street.

Pursued by policeman and pedestrians, Julius Gordon, a boy, threw a gold watch in the air yesterday and ran into a department store. The watch, said to have been stolen from O. P. Kellogg, 314 Belden avenue, was shattered when it struck the pavement. Gordon was arrested.

GIRL MURDER TRIAL CLOSED.

The jury in the case against Henry Wegert and Mrs. Mary Sehnert, who are charged with the murder of Miss Mae Love, will report at 10 o'clock this morning in Judge Neely's court. The case ended yesterday afternoon, Assistant State's Attorney Newcomer asking for the death penalty. Miss Love died in a cab last June after she had been attended, it is said, by Mrs. Sehnert. She was 20 years old, and lived at Grant Park, Ill., with her mother and father. Wegert lived at Beecher, where he was active in church work and belonged to local social clubs. His attentions to Miss Love were continued for two years.

CHAMBERLAIN IS GUEST OF LONDON

CHEERED BY BIG CROWD.

Declares That War Has United South Africa and Boers Are Loyal.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, March 20.—Colonial Secretary Chamberlain was the guest of the city of London today, being given a reception and luncheon at the Mansion house. Among those who assembled to assist the lord mayor in extending the city's welcome to the cabinet minister who has just returned from south Africa were Premier Balfour, the archbishop of Canterbury, Lord Roberts, the duke of Fife, the duke of Argyll, Lord Strathcona, Lord Lister, Vice Admiral Lord Charles Beresford, Sig. Marconi, Sir Thomas Lipton, Sir Henry Irving, and Ambassador Choate. Many ladies were also present to extend greetings to Mrs. Chamberlain.

Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain, who drove to the guildhall in an open landau, received a remarkable welcome from the expectant crowds, who, in their enthusiasm, here and there broke through the police lines and surrounded the carriage.

Cheered by Great Crowds.

Hundreds of police were mustered at guildhall to control the huge crowd which had collected to see Mr. Chamberlain. Punctually at the time he was due a distant roar of welcome was heard. It was a solid, continuous cheer, rolling up in increasing volume until the secretary approached guildhall, when a mighty cheer proclaimed the advent of the most popular man in the government and perhaps in England.

Mr. Chamberlain rode in an open carriage. He looked bronzed and happy, but as unconcerned as though he was ignorant of the fact that he was the observed of all observers.

The lord mayor, lady mayoress, and the corporation officers met Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain in the library, where a procession was formed, headed by trumpeters, and proceeded to the gayly beflagged guildhall, in which the address eulogizing the secretary's services in south Africa was presented. Loud and prolonged cheers and the waving of handkerchiefs greeted Mr. Chamberlain on his rising to reply.

Hopes for United Africa.

Mr. Chamberlain, in his address, said that as a result of his intercourse with men of every shade of opinion in the new colonies he could repeat his assurances that the war would bring enduring peace and justify the hope of a united and prosperous south Africa. He was confident of the future, because the main issues which had divided progressive and retrograde civilization had been settled once and for all.

Mr. Chamberlain said he had received from the leaders of their late opponents the most absolute and fullest assurances of loyalty in restoring prosperity to the country. The memories of the past were already being effaced, and he said he had found no trace of a British desire to inflict humiliation on a gallant foe.

The government policy, the colonial secretary declared, was clearly marked. It was a policy of liberality without example in history of war. The only fruit of the conquest they desired was the friendship of their late opponents.

Credit Due to Milner.

Mr. Chamberlain said one of the most lasting impressions which he retained of south Africa was the debt of gratitude which Great Britain owed to Lord Milner, the British high commissioner to south Africa, for his work in that country.

The secretary declared that since the close of the war the value of land in the new territories had increased from 50 to 300 per cent. This was due to the expectation of the people of an era of greater prosperity. There was no limit to the possibilities of the new colonies.

Subsequently Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain and 370 other persons were entertained by the lord mayor at luncheon in the Mansion house. The tables were decorated with pink roses and white orchids.

Speech at the Luncheon.

After the usual loyal toasts the lord mayor toasted Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain. The secretary was received with prolonged cheers when he rose to respond. He said the lord mayor had justly associated with his name that of his wife. Of his personal obligations to her that was not the time to speak, but, so far as the nation was concerned, she also was entitled to some share of its gratitude in the work of reconciliation. Her kindness, sympathy, and interest had made friends where he himself might well have failed.

He thought it was impossible to overestimate the effect of personal intercourse with the colonists on imperial relations, and, if imperial interests were to be put in the foreground in the future, and the comfort of secretaries of state treated as of secondary importance, he hoped his experiment would be repeated from time to time by those who would succeed him.

Crisis for the Empire.

The present, he continued, was a critical period in the history of the empire, and the course taken now by the empire and the colonies probably would settle for all time the question whether the empire was to be consolidated and maintained or whether it was to disintegrate into separate atoms, each caring only for its own local needs. He thought the colonies hardly adequately appreciated all that was due from them as members of the empire. There was the need to infuse into them the new conception of the empire. This was of a voluntary organization based on a community of interests and sacrifices to which all should bring contributions to the common good. A great empire based on these new principles was not to be consolidated or established, however, in months or even years. But the eagerness shown by the colonies one and all in making personal and pecuniary sacrifices for the motherland in time of stress encouraged hope for the future, if the motherland herself was true to this great, inspiring mission.

The premier, in toasting the lord mayor, paid a few words of tribute to Mr. Chamberlain, saying that never in the history of mankind had so great a result been achieved in so brief a period of time. Mr. Chamberlain had deserved the blessing pronounced upon the peacemakers.

CHAMBERLAIN HERO OF HOUR.

[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Tribune.]

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, March 21, 3 a. m.—Birmingham's Chamberlain, who was once regarded as a republican rather than a radical, was the hero yesterday in the stronghold of British conservatism. His reception at guildhall was a unique honor to a statesman who had been charged by his enemies with being the author of the Boer war. Yet he has lived to be acclaimed as the great peacemaker. Nothing was lacking to emphasize the tribute. His cabinet associates were gathered around him, and there was a larger muster of members of parliament at guildhall than subsequently assembled at the house of commons. There were many society women in the brilliant audience, but there was no happier face than Mrs. Chamberlain's when the appearance of the secretary of the colonies was the signal for rounds of the heartiest applause.

Declares War Was Inevitable.

Chamberlain's speech was delivered with his usual quiet manner. There was strong emphasis when he reiterated his declaration that the war had been just an inevitable, and there was a deepening of the voice when his peroration on imperial destiny was rounded out, but in the main he spoke with unaffected simplicity. His subsequent speech at the Mansion house luncheon was chiefly remarkable for the fervor with which he referred to the loyalty of the colonies in war time and his forecast of the consolidation of the empire.

Court at Buckingham Palace.

Last night's court at Buckingham palace was less brilliant than the previous one, owing to the absence of the diplomatic corps. The ambassadors were present, but were attended only by a single member of the staff instead of the entire body. There were many members of parliament in military uniforms.

The American presentees included Mrs. Isaac Bell of New York, in a cream satin brocade gown, edged with sable and trimmed with old lace caught up with diamond studs, with train of silver lace, and wearing a diamond tiara and pearls and sapphires; Miss Bell, in white tulle, trimmed with chenille over white satin, train of white satin, and with silver spangled veil, wearing pearls; Mrs. Sydney Appleton, in ivory satin, adorned with medallions and silver lace, train of lace lined with silver, and wearing a chiffon veil caught with a diamond butterfly and ornaments of diamonds and rubies; and Mrs. Rowena Stephens of San Francisco, in white satin trimmed with chiffon and lilies of the valley, with pearl ornaments and train of white brocaded silk, lined with pale yellow and trimmed with lilies. They were accompanied by John Lane Harrington, the British agent at Adis Abeba. They expect to reach Khartum in August.

Emperor Menelek accorded the party a hearty welcome and placed an escort of fifty soldiers at their disposal and gave authority to the expedition to proceed.

STUDENTS GIVEN A BOGUS TEST.

Professor Being Sick and Unable to Conduct Examinations Jokers Seize Opportunity.

Five students at the University of Chicago composed a "fake" examination for their comrades yesterday and laughed at their bewildered classmates, who tried for an hour to answer impossible questions. When the class gave up the struggle and held an indignation meeting to send a protest to the professor the players of the prank explained that the examination was a joke.

Prof. Veblen of the department of sociology has been ill for several days, and when it was learned by a few members of the class that the professor would not give an examination they decided to give the pretended examination for a joke. Here are the questions:

1. Show the logical effect of the theory of population on the leading concept of the historical and Austrian schools.

2. Discuss the merits of the controversy between Say and Ricardo concerning the concept of value and determine to what extent the Ricardian position foreshadowed the position taken by Carl Knies.

3. Discuss the evolution of the classical view of the scope and methods of political economy, contrasting the position taken by Mill at the time he wrote his "Logic" with that taken by Marshal and Keynes.

4. Trace to its philosophical presupposition the modern fabric of economical theory, giving due weight to the Hegelian, Darwinian, and utilitarian influences.

SHE TRIES TO DIE IN PARIS THEATER

TAKES DOSE OF POISON.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, March 20.—Mme. Paula de Martigne, a well known French writer and the author of several novels, made a dramatic attempt to commit suicide at Sarah Bernhardt's theater last night.

Bernhardt was playing "Werther" and the theater was crowded. At the climax of the drama, where Werther seeks to kill himself, the audience was startled by a woman's voice in the body of the theater, crying:

"I, too, wish to die."

This was followed by a pistol shot. It proved to be an attempt at suicide by Mme. Paula de Martigny. She was accompanied by her daughter, who, knowing her mother's suicidal intent, had withdrawn the ball cartridges from the pistol and replaced them with blank cartridges, so that the shot did no damage beyond causing a temporary panic.

Swallows Laudanum, Too.

Finding that the shot was not effective Mme. de Martigny swallowed a vial of laudanum which she had concealed in her handkerchief. The theater surgeon ordered her removal to a hospital, where her condition at first was thought to be serious owing to the effects of the shock and of the poison. Later she improved, and now appears to be out of danger.

It was reported that the would be suicide had been influenced to act as she did by the dramatic spectacle, but developments indicate that the case was one of destitution and desperation. Mme. de Martigny's young daughter told a pitiful story of her mother's failure to sell her manuscripts.

Driven by Destitution.

Mme. de Martigny recently finished a sketch entitled "Daily Bread," which failed to attract purchasers. Finally, she confided her purpose to take her own life to her daughter, and yesterday evening she wrote to the prefect of police to the same effect. The girl then removed the ball cartridges, but was not aware her mother had the laudanum in her possession.

Mme. de Martigny is 33 years of age. Her daughter is 14 years old. The mother has published a number of popular novels, including "The Belle's Revenge," "Idle Love," and "Face to Face." Her real name is Von Seeligmeyer.

C. G. DENNISON DISAPPEARS AFTER OLD FRIEND'S DEATH.

Charles G. Dennison, Chicago, member of the firm of C. Sidney Shepard & Co., is mysteriously missing in Buffalo, and large advertisements are printed this morning in that city announcing his disappearance and offering a reward for clews to his whereabouts.

Mr. Dennison has been in charge of Shepard's Chicago tinplate office at 27 and 29 Michigan avenue for ten years, having come here originally from Buffalo. His residence is at Hinsdale. He is wealthy.

Early in the present week Mr. Dennison was summoned to Buffalo by the news that James G. Forsyth, his lifelong friend and business associate, was on his death bed. C. Sidney Shepard of New York was also in Buffalo and sent word he wished to consult with the Chicago member of the firm.

Mr. Dennison went to the Hotel Broezel on his arrival in Buffalo Tuesday morning. He met Mr. Shepard and held a conference, and later called at the residence of Mr. Forsyth for a last brief visit with his friend.

At 10 o'clock that night, while the partners were in consultation, word reached them that Mr. Forsyth was dying. Mr. Dennison remarked:

"Well, his troubles are over."

His tone seemed despondent. A little later Mr. Forsyth died. Mr. Shepard had an appointment to meet Mr. Dennison at 9 the next morning, but the latter did not again appear.

Detectives were hired to work on the case and Dennison's relatives were summoned. The detectives were sent to Hamburg and Niagara Falls, where Dennison has relatives. The water front has been searched, but no trace of Dennison has been found. There is fear that he may have become despondent on account of Mr. Forsyth's death.

Mr. Dennison is 61 years old. At his residence in Hinsdale last night no reply was given to inquiries aimed to clear up his disappearance.

Guy P. Waldorf Is Locked Up When His Attentions to Miss Duloff Grow Serious.

Guy P. Waldorf was arrested yesterday and a marriage license which he had secured was confiscated. Mabel Duloff, 16 years old, who lives with her mother at 1049 West Lake street, made the charge against the youth. She declares that three months ago she met Waldorf and that since then he has been a persistent and unwelcome suitor. Miss Duloff works in a factory.

A day or two ago she received a telephone message telling her that her mother was seriously ill. Hurrying to the street she encountered Waldorf, who exhibited a marriage license containing her name as the prospective bride. He confessed he had sent the fictitious message.

The girl returned to the factory and notified the police by telephone. Yesterday Waldorf was arrested and admitted that he had a wife and child living at South Bend. He declared he had procured a divorce, but this is not believed by the police.

"Generally fair" is the schedule for today and Sunday.

CHIMNEY AND PRIEST WHO IS BUILDING IT.

Fr. George J. Blatter.

The Rev. Father George J. Blatter laid a few more bricks yesterday on the chimney of the schoolhouse of SS. Peter and Paul parish. The chimney is now sixteen feet high and when completed it will be 65 feet high. Father Blatter is the priest in charge of the church, which is at Ninety-first street and Exchange avenue. The parish is building an addition to the parochial school in which to house the heating apparatus for the church and school. In order to save as much as possible in its construction the priest has undertaken to build the chimney himself. He spends all his spare time in his construction work and declares he will complete the job unless his friends "make too much fuss" about it.

"I am not seeking public notice," declared Father Blatter. "It is a simple business proposition. I have some spare time and thought I could help some. Besides, it is good exercise."

LOSES FROM 'SAFETY' BOX

WOMAN TELLS POLICE OF A $1,500 ROBBERY.

Mrs. Susanna Schadeck Reports That Her Brother's Money Disappeared from the Vaults of the German-American Company and "Startling Developments" Are Promised by President of Concern—Capt. Rehm Convinced the Cash Was Taken.

Another safety deposit box mystery has been reported to the police, and "startling developments" are promised, although from what quarter is not clear.

Mrs. Susanna Schadeck, 1662 North Rockwell street, is the complainant. She appeared at the East Chicago avenue station yesterday and told Capt. Rehm that $1,500 belonging to her brother had been taken from a box in the German-American safety deposit vaults, 220 North avenue. The loss, she said, was discovered last Wednesday afternoon when she and her brother went to the vaults to take the money out of the box.

R. W. Nessler, president of the deposit company, was called in conference, and after a long talk with Mrs. Schadeck and her brother he intimated that the mystery soon would be cleared up.

"I will have something startling to divulge in a short time," said Mr. Nessler. "I am sure none of our employés is guilty."

The missing money, Mrs. Schadeck told Capt. Rehm, represented the savings of her brother for the last five years. The money consisted of gold and paper and was wrapped up in pieces of cloth. When she opened the box, Mrs. Schadeck says, she found $225 lying crumpled in a corner of the box.

According to Mr. Nessler, there are only two keys for each box and these are held by the renter. An examination of the lock is said to have revealed that it had not been tampered with.

The German Safety Vault company has been in existence for the last five years, and previous to that time S. Meyers conducted the business.

WHY 'PHONE SERVICE IS BAD.

Supt. Larned Tells Electricians It Is Because Business Houses Have Too Few Instruments.

If it takes you nine seconds to get a telephone connection in Chicago you are getting no better or no worse service than the thousands of others who use the 'phones each day. To those who sometimes wait five minutes for a connection these figures may be a revelation, but they are vouched for by S. J. Larned, general superintendent of the Chicago Telephone company, who addressed the Chicago Electrical association last night.

Mr. Larned was willing to admit that the service in Chicago is not what it should be, but he banished the thought that the company might have even a share in the responsibility.

"One call in five receives no answer," he said, "because the subscribers have not enough telephones. In New York City the number of private operators taking care of switchboards in the offices of the corporations and business houses is double the number of operators in the regular exchange. This means many 'phones and good service.

"The average number of calls per telephone per day in Chicago is eighteen. The total number of calls a day is about three-quarters of a million. The average time required to make the connection is nine seconds.

"The greatest trouble experienced with private operators is that after they have served successfully a few years they usually marry the bookkeeper and then the whole firm is at sea until the new operator gets accustomed to her work."

BOYS STRIKE IN STOCKYARDS.

Forty Messengers Quit Work and Demand More Pay and Recognition.

Forty messenger boys employed by Nelson Morris & Co. at the Union stockyards struck yesterday afternoon for "a plunk a day raise and recognition of de union." The boys are now getting $3.50 a week. The strikers had a jolly time in the yards during the afternoon. They jeered at the employés who went on with their work, and tried to get the Packing Trades council to declare a general strike in the yards. When they found they could not tie up the meat industry they held an indignation meeting and decided to continue alone.

DECLARES THAT LOVE FLED IN THE FACE OF POVERTY.

William Groetzinger Sues for Divorce, Saying His Wife's Affections and His Money Were Lost Together.

"This lack of appreciation, this want of affection on the part of the defendant, has been cruelty—worse, far worse, than that of beating, striking, pinching, choking, or kick-your orator."

With these words William C. Groetzinger brings to a climax a petition for divorce in which he declares there was not room enough for both love and poverty in his home.

When he had money, Mr. Groetzinger avers, his wife was sweet tempered, loving, and lovable. But there came a time when adversity took the place of prosperity and then, he says, his wife became cold and hateful. To use his own words:

"At the time of the marriage of your orator and the defendant your orator was prosperous and well to do. While your orator was prosperous his home was happy or, rather, defendant caused him to feel that she was treating him as a wife should treat her husband. When adversity came and your orator lost his business and his money the situation underwent a change."

Mrs. Beulah Ament, otherwise Beulah Martin, was in Judge Kavanagh's court yesterday to seek a divorce from her husband, Elmer Ament, to whom she was married in New Orleans several years ago. Since coming to Chicago Mrs. Ament has figured in a number of episodes. She made what the police considered a bogus attempt to commit suicide near the residence of a south side young man, and later she posed as a living picture in a downtown theater. She alleges desertion.

Mrs. Jessie Rouse Lill has been granted a divorce from George Herbert Lill, secretary of the George Lill Coal company. Mrs. Lill is given the custody of their child and either $100 a month as alimony or a lump sum of $15,000. The couple were married May 21, 1891. Mrs. Lill charged a statutory offense.

HELD FOR WRECKING A BANK; CALLS IT A TRIVIAL AFFAIR.

Philadelphia Man Arrested on Charge of Conspiracy, Forgery, and Embezzlement.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 20.—[Special.]—George B. White, former vice president of the defunct Bank of South Pennsylvania, at Hyndman, Pa., was arrested here today, charged with conspiracy, forgery, and embezzlement. White declares the charges against him are trivial. "It is merely a little question in banking business than easily can be explained," he said. He was held in $8,000 bail.

White was arrested on charges made by Bank Examiner W. A. Mason, who has been acting as receiver for the defunct bank. Mason, as receiver, paid all depositors in full, but declares the stockholders will not get $5 on their shares.

Mason states that he found that the bank, instead of having $10,000 surplus, was $50,000 worse off than nothing. The Hyndman bank was organized in 1880 by John K. White, a brother of the accused, who, Mr. Mason states, is a fugitive from justice.

Continuing, Mr. Mason says: "The government charges that George B. White knew the bank was insolvent when he took hold of it; that he entered into a conspiracy with another man to defraud, and that he made the cashier swear to false statements, and that he prepared and swore to false statements himself."

FEWER WOMEN ARRESTED IN CHICAGO THAN IN NEW YORK.

Statistician Grosser Compiles Figures Comparing the Police Statistics of Various American Cities.

The Chicago woman is given credit for her peaceable disposition in tables of statistics which Hugo Grosser, city statistician, issued yesterday. While New York arrests 3.86 per cent of its population every year on some ground Chicago takes to the police station 4.14 per cent, but of all the persons arrested 19.9 per cent in New York are women, while in Chicago only 18.5 per cent are of the gentler sex.

Married persons here apparently call for attention by the police more frequently than in New York, the percentage of arrests of married persons compared to all arrests in Chicago and New York being, respectively, 34.3 and 50.5.

Chicago's American born population, which is 65.5 of the whole, gets into 69.1 per cent of the trouble which results in arrests.

Apparently the worst of the country's big cities is the national capital—Washington—followed closely by Buffalo. In Washington nearly one in ten gets into a cell every year, the figure being 9.30 per cent, and in Buffalo 8.04 per cent. In Milwaukee only 1.69 per cent were taken to police cells.

Mr. Grosser went deeply into the pay roll matter. He found that Chicago pays 15,910 persons $14,675,847 a year; of these 6,936 were board of education employés, receiving $5,722,669.

HABEAS CORPUS MAY AID CUPID.

Birdie Hall Seeks Release from a Refuge and It Is Announced Marriage Is Contemplated.

Cupid may find a new ally in a writ of habeas corpus issued by Judge Tuthill yesterday. The writ is directed to the Erring Woman's refuge, 5024 Indiana avenue, and is aimed to secure the release of Birdie Hall.

At the same time it is rumored she will become a bride when she regains her freedom. The hearing on the writ will take place this morning.

The young woman was committed to the refuge by Judge Tuthill several weeks ago, as the result of being in a saloon. Her mother lives at 288 Washington boulevard.

BOARD HOLDS UP JUDGES' PAY ROLL

GETTING BACK AT HANECY

President Foreman Making Up a Showing Regarding the Sheriff's Employes.

"A Daniel come to judgment" is before the county board—several Daniels, twelve in all. At least the county commissioners think it will be a judgment, but it may be more trouble.

Twelve extra judges will not receive their pay until the finance committee of the board has made an investigation of the authority by which they were employed.

This judicial pay roll was held up yesterday because the committee found that the amount for three months would require nearly every dollar of the appropriation made for the year, and because they could find no requisitions for the employment of the extra judges.

The judges of the Circuit court, through Judge Haney, have just commanded the commissioners to put sixty-eight additional employés at work in the sheriff's office and pay them. They now present a bill for extra judges, which the finance committee refuses to pass without investigation.

List of Amounts Held Up.

R. P. Goodwin	$ 660
J. H. Moffat	160
G. W. Paten	45
C. H. Donnelly	170
C. A. Bishop	300
E. Farrand	190
R. W. Hilscher	110
J. P. Roberts	270
R. B. Shirley	170
O. P. Thompson	110
E. P. Vail	750
H. B. Willis	150
Total	$3,070

All are outside judges brought in to aid the local courts in clearing crowded dockets. Against the advice of President Foreman the county board made an appropriation of $5,000 for this work. The pay rolls already presented will take $4,060, of which amount $980 is for extra county judges and the remainder is for the extra Circuit court judges during the first three months of the fiscal year.

Requisition Is Lacking.

It is claimed that no requisitions for extra judges have been received by the county board and that their employment was without authority. Chairman Walker of the finance committee said:

"This $5,000 was appropriated with the stipulation that the judges should get outside assistance by means of a requisition submitted to the superintendent of public service and approved by the county board. No requisitions for outside judges have been received, and these men were employed without authority from the county board."

The city judges were not pleased at the action of the finance committee. Judge Brentano sent President Foreman a letter regarding the matter, and Judge Horton sent a letter giving figures regarding the work done by the judges of the Cook county bench.

Retaliation Against Haney.

Retaliatory action against Judge Haney for his mandamus decision was begun in several directions. The first step was to get an affidavit from Chief Clerk Bradley to the effect that the rule of assigning cases in the Circuit court, if it had been followed, would have given the hearing to Judge Dunne.

Having established an implication that Judge Haney elected to override the custom of the court and have the hearing in his court, President Foreman then attempts to show what will be the result of the enforced appropriation for the sheriff's office.

"As a matter of business," said President Foreman, "the tax payer does not want to pay for sixty-eight employés of the sheriff's office when there is no work for them to do. The public cares more for the indigent insane, sick, and poor. For this reason the public will want to know that while the sheriff's pay roll has been increased by the order of the court our county hospital is short of room for internes and nurses to take care of the sick and injured poor who are taken there for treatment. Our county agent is short of funds to feed the poor.

"Judge Haney's statement regarding the action of Judge Tuley to secure the hearing of the case before Judge Dunne suggests the propriety of having this case come up before the judge to whom it had been assigned in the regular order. No other judge should have exercised the almost unlimited authority placed in the court to take the case physically and retain it for trial before himself."

Disagreement Among Judges.

Another disagreement has arisen among the judges in a matter brought up by Supt. McLaren of the public service department. Mr. McLaren asserts that he went to Judge Haney just before the judges' meeting was held to determine the number of employés, and asked him that action be delayed until a statement of the county's financial condition could be prepared. This was done at President Foreman's request. Judge Haney asserted that he brought the question of delay before the judges, but the other members of the judicial committee failed to remember the form in which it had come before them.

EDWIN W. GRAY WANTS $5,000.

Expelled Student Brings a Suit for Damages Against the Northwestern University Medical School.

Edwin W. Gray, who was expelled as a student from the Northwestern university medical school, has brought suit in the Circuit court for $5,000 damages. The defendants are Dr. N. S. Davis Jr., Dr. R. B. Preble, Dr. E. C. Dudley, and Dr. S. C. Plummer, members of the executive committee of the faculty. Gray alleges that he was expelled at the instance of the defendants without an opportunity to be heard. Dr. Preble said yesterday that before the expulsion Gray made a written confession to the charges against him and that nothing was to be gained by a hearing.

He was speaking at a reception given for Prof. I. Garland Penn, assistant general secretary of the Epworth league, at the Olivet Baptist church, Twenty-seventh and Dearborn streets.

"I am among the city officials every day of my life," continued the alderman, "and I know that two-thirds of them are God fearing men. They carry out their duties in the public administration with a Christian spirit, and the city is much better for it."

CROP PROSPECT FULL OF DOUBT.

Weather Conditions So Far Have Been Unfavorable, Declares B. W. Snow.

COLD SNAP A MENACE.

[BY B. W. SNOW.]

Weather conditions of the last week usher in the period of spring growth at a date earlier than usual.

A few days of remarkable heat at an unusually early date does not necessarily imply an early spring, but it does mark the beginning of plant growth and renders future vicissitudes of weather of immediate importance in the question of crop possibility. Until this quickening takes place and vegetation passes out from its period of winter dormancy, cool or cold weather in early spring is a matter of as little importance as low temperatures in midwinter.

Once growth has begun, however, conditions are radically altered, and severe changes of temperature become matters of grave importance.

The ideal spring, so far as vegetation is concerned, is one in which the rigors of winter are left gradually, with no return of freezing temperatures after warmth and moisture have started plant growth, and the more violently this ideal is departed from the more critical is the situation from the agricultural point of view.

Doubtful Outlook for Crops.

With this fundamental proposition in mind it must be conceded that weather conditions of the last week have been decidedly unsatisfactory for the farmer. Spring growth has begun, grass turned green, and buds are swelling, as far north as the latitude of Chicago, at a date when continued immunity from freezing weather cannot reasonably be expected.

On this account the situation is distinctly less favorable than it was a week since, but it does not necessarily follow that crop damage will result. That is a question to be determined by weather conditions of the next three weeks.

The danger to which different crops are exposed varies according to the difference in crop habits. The fruit crop is at one extreme with the greatest danger and the wheat crop at the other with the least. There are already strong indications that the more tender fruits, peaches especially, have been seriously injured in the Mississippi and Missouri valleys.

Advices from portions of Arkansas, eastern Kansas, a considerable share of Missouri, and some parts of central and southern Illinois show that peach buds are blasted and dead.

On the contrary, the apple crop seems uninjured up to this time. From the orchard districts of Michigan, however, reports up to this date are quite generally favorable, though the recent warm wave started the sap up and makes the crop more susceptible to weather damage than is usually the case at this date.

Wheat Condition Deceptive.

Nothing that is absolutely definite can yet be said as to wheat, but the situation is not so entirely rosy as the reports, official and private, up to this time, would indicate. Last fall the crop went into winter quarters with a high conditional average, the December condition being placed at 99.7, or practically perfect, by the department of agriculture.

Private reports were generally confirmatory of this high promise, and nothing has occurred during the winter and up to this time to materially modify this situation, provided the actual crop promise was as good as the mere conditional figures would indicate. It is an open question, however, if too much confidence is not being placed upon the mere face appearance of the plant.

Seeding was late on account of wet weather, but the crop germinated quickly and grew rapidly. When winter began the plant showed strong top growth, the color was unusually good, the stand perfect, and to the casual observer who formed his opinion from what was visible the situation was nearly perfect.

Much Depends on the Roots.

As a matter of fact, the fall season was far from ideal, and the luxuriant growth, in spite of the late seeding, was an unfavorable indication rather than a perfect condition. In December the promise of a wheat crop lies in the root rather than in the stalk. Unless the root growth is consistent with the growth above ground the situation is inherently weak, no matter how luxuriant the tops may be.

Such a season as was experienced last fall is not conducive to root strength. When the top soil is full of water short roots are sufficient to supply the plant with all the moisture required, and they run laterally near the surface instead of striking down and anchoring the plant firmly well below the surface.

Realizing that weather conditions last fall favored an excessive growth of tops at the expense of roots, the writer had fields examined in different parts of each winter wheat state, and the reports of these local investigators showed that the condition feared actually existed to a considerable extent.

It may be stated broadly then that the present wheat crop went into winter quarters with deficient root and excessive top growth, and that as a result of this situation the high conditon figures current at that time did not accurately represent the crop situation.

Future Weather the Factor.

Bearing this in mind it will be readily appreciated that the weather conditions from this time until harvest must be eminently satisfactory if a good rate of yield is to be secured.

The immediate danger to the crop, of course, lies in alternate freezing and thawing of the top soil. Of late years winter killing has not been serious, but this year the roots being comparatively short "heaving" from alternate contraction and expansion of the surface soil will cause them to break and leave the plant either dead or weakened in vitality.

Damage of this character is already evident in a considerable proportion of the counties of Missouri, and to a smaller but still important extent in Kansas. Farther north we are just entering the period when damage of this kind may occur.

Speculating still further upon possibilities it may be pointed out that a plant short and with roots running near the surface of the ground instead of down will possess greatly lessened power of resistence should any considerable period of drought be experienced in May or June. This was the root condition which accompanied the great spring wheat failure in 1900.

Situation Full of Uncertainty.

Summing the situation up, and speaking broadly, it may be said that, while the crop still shows promise almost as high as was reported last fall, yet there are inherent conditions in the situation that may result in sudden and severe deterioration should weather conditions prove even moderately unfavorable at any time before harvest.

Turning from prospective rate of yield to the acreage upon which that yield is to be secured, the facts are more satisfactory. The department of agriculture estimated the area seeded last fall at 34,000,000 acres, against only about 27,000,000 harvested. It is questionable whether the increase was actually so large as these figures indicate, but it is beyond question that the acreage now growing is the largest on record, and with such an enormous area, the average rate of yield may be heavily discounted and yet result in a crop burdensome in size.

Heavy Rains Retard Progress.

Spring work in the extreme south and southwest has been delayed by excess of rainfall, and with bottom lands again flooded, as is now the case, spring planting will be late.

Some plowing for corn has been done in Kansas and Missouri, but as a whole the season for spring work promises to be late.

DEATH TAKES A PIONEER.

MRS. MARY WISCHEMEYER EXPIRES AND LEAVES FORTUNE.

Believed That Roman Catholic Charities Will Get a Large Share of the Estate, Which Is Estimated at $350,000 and Grew from a Humble Beginning—Both She and Her Husband Were Servants in the Ogden Family—Fortunate Deals in Realty.

A pioneer of Chicago, in the person of Mary Wischemeyer, is dead at her old home, 132 Lincoln Park boulevard. Her husband, Henry Wischemeyer, died two years ago, leaving an estate, largely realty, estimated at $350,000, and it is understood the bulk of this will go to Roman Catholic charities.

The fortune left by Mrs. Wischemeyer was built from an humble beginning, and had its foundation in the hard work of both her husband and herself. The money that they earned was invested in real estate from time to time, and most of their ventures were fortunate.

Mrs. Wischemeyer is known to most of the old residents. E. B. McCagg met her as long ago as 1847, in which year he came to Chicago. At that time she was an upper servant in the house of William B. Ogden, who was a distant relative of Mr. McCagg's. Henry Wischemeyer also was an employé of Mr. Ogden's, and he and Mary were married in 1849 or 1850, but for several years continued to work for the Ogdens.

Mrs. Wischemeyer was really the first investor of the two, as she accepted an offer from Mr. Ogden, just after the great Chicago fire, which later netted her a big profit. In lieu of cash for her services for a stipulated time, she was given a lot in Superior street, and this property soon multiplied in value.

Mr. Wischemeyer was shrewd and farseeing and frugal to the point of self denial, but his wife has been known for her charities, most of which have been in connection with the Roman Catholic church. She gave liberally on many occasions, and always could be depended on to respond when the church societies were in need of cash to carry on their work of charity.

A short time before her death Mrs. Wischemeyer is known to have intimated that she would bequeath a large amount to charity, but what proportion of her wealth will be turned into such a channel is not known to her nearest friends. Both Mr. and Mrs. Wischemeyer were born in Germany.

The funeral will take place on Monday morning at 10 o'clock from the late residence and to the cathedral of the Holy Name. Burial will be at St. Boniface.

WOMAN CENTENARIAN IS DEAD.

Mrs. Ely Knudsen, Nearly 102 Years Old and a Native of Norway, Dies in This City.

A centenarian, and possibly the oldest resident of Chicago, died on Thursday when Mrs. Ely Knudsen passed away at her residence, 980 Ballou street.

Mrs. Knudsen did not emigrate until she was 80 years old. She was born in Lillehamer, Norway, May 23, 1801, learned to speak several European languages, and in her earlier days was governess in some of the leading Norwegian households. She was possessed of remarkable vitality, even until after she had passed the 100th mile post in life.

MRS. ELY KNUDSEN.

Up to the time of her death she stood as representing the first of four generations of her own family gathered together under the one roof in Ballou street.

DEATH OF CHARLES G. LELAND.

[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

FLORENCE, March 20.—Charles Godfrey Leland, the well known American author, died here today. He had resided in this city since 1886. He was a member of the American Philosophical society, the founder of the Rabelais club, the Hungarian Folk Lore society, and president of the Gypsy Lore Society of Buda-Pesth.

Mr. Leland was born in Philadelphia in 1824. His father was a commission merchant. Charles was graduated from Princeton in 1845, and studied later at the Universities of Harvard, Heidelberg, Munich, and Paris. From 1849 to 1853 he practiced law in Philadelphia and then entered newspaper work. He was editor of the New York Times, Philadelphia Evening Bulletin, Vanity Fair, Philadelphia Press, the Knickerbocker and Continental magazines.

From 1869 to 1880 he devoted his time principally to literature in London. He returned to this country in 1880 and was the first to establish industrial education, founded on the minor arts, as a branch of the public schools.

He discovered the "Sheita" language, spoken by the Celtic tinkers, which was subsequently verified by Kuno Meyer from manuscripts 1,000 years old as the famous lost language of the Irish bards. He was famous for his writings on the gypsies, among whom he traveled and lived for many years.

His published works are many. He was the author of "Hans Breitmann's Ballads," which were praised by Tennyson in his diary; "France, Alsace, and Lorraine," "English Gypsies," "Egyptian Sketchbook," "Life of Abraham Lincoln," "The Minor Arts," "Gypsy Sorcery," "Legends of Florence," "The Gypsies," "Algonquin Legends," "Anglo Romany," etc.

TEXT OF REPLY TO ARGENTINA.

Secretary Hay Explains the United States' Attitude Toward South American Republics.

Washington, D. C., March 20.—The text of the response of Secretary Hay to the Argentine note proposing combined action of the American states to resist the collection of debts by naval force was made public today. It is as follows:

[MEMORANDUM.]

Without expressing assent to or dissent from the propositions ably set forth in the note of the Argentine minister of foreign relations, dated Dec. 29, 1902, the general position of the United States in the matter is indicated in recent messages of the president.

The president declared in his message to congress, Dec. 3, 1901, that by the Monroe doctrine "we do not guarantee any state against punishment if it misconducts itself, provided that punishment does not take the form of acquisition of territory by any non-American power."

In harmony with the foregoing language, the president announced in his message of Dec. 2, 1902:

"No independent nation in America need have the slightest fear of aggression from the United States. It behooves each one to maintain order within its own borders and to discharge its just obligations to foreigners. When this is done they can rest assured that, be they strong or weak, they have nothing to fear from outside interference."

Advocating and adhering in practice in questions concerning itself to the resort to international abritration in settlement of controversies not adjustable by the orderly treatment of diplomatic negotiation, the government of the United States always would be glad to see the questions of the justice of claims by one state against another growing out of individual wrongs or national obligations, as well as the guarantees for the execution of whatever award might be made, left to the decision of an impartial arbitral tribunal, before which the litigant nations, weak and strong alike, may stand as equals in the eye of international law and mutual duty.

DEMANDS RIGHT TO HEARING.

Civil Service Commissioner Foulke Insists on Privilege of Replying to Critics.

Washington, D. C., March 20.—Civil Service Commissioner Foulke today sent a letter to Senator Spooner of Wisconsin in reply to sharp criticisms of letters written to individual senators by Mr. Foulke. These letters regarded certain alleged inaccuracies in statements made on the floor during the consideration of a resolution calling for information from the commission regarding the removal of Elmer E. Forshay from the surveyor general's office of Idaho. Mr. Foulke says:

"The paradox is presented that, although the charge was untrue, I had no right to point out the particulars in which it was untrue, even in letters to individual senators. If this position is sound, it would be the duty of executive officers to submit in absolute silence to the gravest charges of misconduct, or even of crime, uttered in the most public place in the nation.

"In conclusion I will say that, hereafter, when my conduct is attacked unjustly in either house of congress, I shall seek by every means in my power to make the world acquainted with the injustice. I do not believe that any considerable number of senators will insist upon such a doctrine of senatorial lese majesty as will prevent any officer, however humble the position he may hold, from protecting himself against unfounded accusations by every lawful means in his power."

OPPOSES LOAN BY SYNDICATE.

Minister Bowen Urges Venezuela's President to Make No Change in Settlement Plan.

Washington, D. C., March 20.—[Special.]—Minister Bowen today sent Señor Augusto F. Pulido, the Venezuelan chargé d' affaires in Washington, to Caracas on an important mission. Señor Pulido will sail from New York tomorrow with a letter from Mr. Bowen to President Castro urging the latter to stand by the arrangement made by Mr. Bowen for the adjustment of Venezuela's foreign indebtedness and not to enter into any agreement with the Seligman syndicate for a cash liquidation of the foreign claims. It is well known that Mr. Bowen is strongly opposed to the Seligman proposition for many reasons, among them that Venezuela will have to pay such heavy interest to the syndicate that her indebtedness will be increased greatly. It is said that the loan syndicate is bringing influence to bear on President Castro at Caracas to accept its proposal.

CRUM IS NAMED ONCE AGAIN.

President Reappoints Collector of Customs at Charleston Who Was Rejected by Senate.

Washington, D. C., March 20.—The president today reappointed Dr. W. D. Crum, colored, as collector of customs at Charleston, S. C., and William M. Byrnes United States district attorney for Delaware. Both of these nominations failed of confirmation at the recent session of the senate.

BATTLE OF CANAL ROUTES.

Change of Policy and National Sentiment in Deciding on the Isthmian Waterway.

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—The Sun prints two instructive editorials on the Panama canal treaty. The first says:

The senate's nearly unanimous vote for the canal treaty and for the canal by way of Panama may properly be placed in contrast with a previous expression of legislative sentiment as to the preferable route for the waterway:

Jan. 9, 1902.—The Hepburn bill for a Nicaragua canal passed the house of representatives amid great applause by a vote of 308 to 2.

The remarkable change of policy and of national opinion indicated by these two votes has occurred within fourteen months. In that brief time the battle of the routes has been fought and decided. The victory for Panama has been fairly won on the merits of the case, and there is now general acquiescence throughout the country.

This is shown by the rejoicings of newspapers which fourteen months ago were accustomed to treat the Nicaragua project as the only one in which our government could with dignity and decency and true Americanism engage. Some of the Nicaragua advocates were as bitter against Panama as Senator Morgan has remained to the—for him—bitter end. There has probably never been a swifter reversal of prevailing public sentiment in regard to a question of everlasting importance to the nation and the world.

It is perhaps a fitting thing to say now that when the Sun began to urge the French shareholders to repudiate the policy of the impracticable M. Hutin and to seize the skirts of a rapidly disappearing opportunity and come down to the figures of the Walker commission, the voices of the other New York newspapers, with a single notable exception, were set with apparent immobility in the direction of Nicaragua. The exception was the Evening Post, which had for a long time perceived clearly the superiority of Panama and had consistently favored the abandonment of the Nicaragua idea for engineering and commercial reasons.

The fact is now accomplished, barring the little business at Bogota and the subsequent details of finance and construction. Everybody is glad except Senator Morgan, and he will recover from his disappointment in season to wield a cheerful shovel at the inaugural ceremonies. The enormity of the irreparable blunder which has been so happily avoided will become more and more apparent as time goes on.

Many persons, forces, influences, circumstances, and accidents have contributed to the fortunate result. If we were asked to catalogue some of the principal factors we should promptly mention President Roosevelt, Secretary Hay, the Hon. Marcus Alonzo Hanna, Senator Spooner's genius for doing the right thing at the right time, the monitory eruption of Momotombo, and last, but not least, the former chief engineer of the French work on the isthmus, M. Philippe Bunau-Varilla, who throughout the negotiations has typified the good sense and good faith of the Paris shareholders, and has likewise illustrated in his own person a sort of resourceful energy which some people are accustomed to regard as peculiarly American.

Philanthropic Fourth Article.

The second editorial is as follows:

Although policy and the larger interests required the ratification of the canal treaty without amendment, some of the objections brought forward in the senate to the fourth article were well founded.

This section was primarily intended to reassure Colombia. Secondari , and unnecessarily, it was made to convey a general declaration of the disinterestedness of the United States with regard to South American and Central American republics. Here is the text:

"The United States freely acknowledges and recognizes the sovereignty and disavows any intention to impair it in any way whatever, or to increase its territory at the expense of Colombia or of any of the sister republics of Central or South America, but, on the contrary, it desires to strengthen the power of the republics on this continent, and to promote, develop, and maintain their prosperity and independence."

The heaviest vote mustered in opposition to the treaty as negotiated appeared on the question of so amending this superfluous declaration as to include Mexico, also a sister republic to the south of us, but not included in the category of Central or South American republics. Certainly our intentions regarding Mexico are as benevolent as those we entertain in the case of Costa Rica or Uruguay.

But there was no necessity for any general declaration of friendliness and good will in such a treaty. All that article iv. says on the subject is true as gospel, and quite appropriate to a presidential message or an official address at a Pan-American banquet, and, at the same time, totally inept and absolutely out of place, except so far as Colombia is concerned, in a definite contract with Colombia for a specific purpose.

Such voluntary effusions in the text of treaties sometimes become sources of embarrassment years afterward through the perversion of their significance. No man, when drawing a deed for the transfer of real estate or a contract for right of way through adjoining territory ever commits an error when he refrains from making that particular instrument the bulletin of his amicable sentiments toward all his neighbors in the same street.

IOWA POSTMASTER IS OUSTED.

Davenport, Ia., March 20.—[Special.]—George Metzger, for four years postmaster here, was removed from office today by Special Examiner Stewart. Capt. Lon Bryson was installed as temporary postmaster pending a selection by the president. It is claimed a recent investigation of the office led to the change. Although the inspectors announced that the accounts all balanced when they concluded the work a week or so ago, there were rumors of a shortage of $5,000 or $6,000. It is known that friends of Metzger were busy while the inspectors were here, with a mysterious subscription paper. Metzger was a piano tuner when he was selected to the office.

MERGER HEARING WILL END TODAY.

Defense Closes Its Arguments in the Northern Securities Anti-Trust Case.

THEN GOES TO JUDGES.

Attorneys Dispute Over Application of Sherman Law to Railroad Combine.

St. Louis, Mo., March 20.—Arguments in defense of the Northern Securities company, on trial here before the United States Circuit court for the district of Minnesota, closed today, and the case will be placed in the hands of the four judges tomorrow.

During the three days of argument the attorneys for the defendants have occupied nine hours, and up to adjournment tonight the government has taken five hours for presentation of arguments. C. W. Bunn of St. Paul, counsel for the Northern Pacific railroad company, opened today's session, and former Attorney General Griggs closed the case for the Northern Securities company.

Judges to Have Case Today.

The last hour of the session was occupied by Special Counsel T. D. Watson of Pittsburg in closing the case for the government. He was still talking when court adjourned until 10 o'clock tomorrow and he expects to conclude by noon. The famous merger case will then be in the hands of the court for decision.

Attorney Bunn endeavored to show that prior to this case there never had been a suggestion that a consolidation of railway interests was a violation of the anti-trust act of July 2, 1890.

Griggs Closes for Defense.

In concluding for the defendants former Attorney General Griggs asserted that the purpose of the anti-trust act was to control the operation of individuals engaged in commerce and not to control the ownership of corporations so engaged. He asserted that a man or men can buy all the property he or they have the capital to purchase, and that the law cannot limit the amount of that purchase, and that the anti-trust act does not specifically say such purchase is a violation of its provisions.

Attorney Watson, in closing for the government, asserted that it was his purpose to demonstrate that the merging of railroad interests by the Northern Securities company was a most willful violation of the anti-trust act.

Declares Competition Best.

"Isn't it the law of competition," he said, "that different roads traversing the same territory will make different rates, carry different kinds of commodities, run different kinds of trains, and in a hundred ways seek to better their own interests over those of their rivals? But here the defendants have merged the interests of all the roads in a certain territory, and yet they try to show that it is not done to the disadvantage of competition, and that it will benefit interstate and foreign commerce."

Attorney Watson then cited decisions of the United States Supreme court at length to show that various phases of the merger were in apparent violation of the Sherman anti-trust act. He declared that a man has not the right to corner any commodity to such an extent as to engross the market, nor monopolize a certain line of business. He asserted that, therefore, a corporation has not such a right.

HOUSE LACKS A QUORUM. BUT MUCH WORK IS DONE.

Many Bills Advanced at Springfield—New Measures Introduced by the Committees.

Springfield, Ill., March 20.—There was less than a quorum of the members of the house present this morning, but considerable business in the way of advancing bills was transacted.

The following bills were introduced:

By committee on judiciary—To legalize acknowledgments of deeds, mortgages, etc., taken before commissioners who were at the time of the taking of the same officers in or stockholders in interested corporations. The bill is designed to legalize mortgages in favor of building and loan associations which have been acknowledged before officers of such organizations, the Supreme court having recently decided that such acknowledgments are void.

By committee on judiciary department and practice—To provide for appeals from interlocutory orders of decrees granting injunctions or overruling motions to dissolve the same or enlarging the scope of injunction orders or appointing receivers or giving further powers or property to receivers already appointed.

By McElvain—Providing for the following additional terms of the Appellate court: At Chicago in July, at Ottawa in July, at Springfield in August, and at Mount Vernon in May.

The following house bills were read a first time and advanced to second reading:

Amending the Chicago primary election law by making it unnecessary to call the roll in political conventions except in cases where there are contests.

Requiring all executors, administrators, and trustees in Cook county to register all land held by them under the Torrens land law.

MAYOR JONES NAMES HIMSELF.

Toledo Executive Issues a Proclamation to the Voters Explaining His Campaign Plans.

Toledo, O., March 20.—[Special.]—Mayor "Golden Rule" Sam Jones has issued a proclamation nominating himself for mayor of Toledo for the fifth time. In it he says: "Having been nominated a nonpartisan candidate for the office of mayor by a number of citizens, by petitions, I accept. I have faith that the people do not need political guardians to 'get out the vote' and 'watch the count,' and will therefore have none of the organized machinery of party campaigns. I will, however, hold public meetings, inviting the coöperation of all."

MATCHES RECORD WITH HARRISON.

Stewart Answers Bluff That Only Mayor Can Show Traction Work Done.

SPEAKS ON SOUTH SIDE.

Heard by 2,500 People at Three Meetings in as Many Different Wards.

With 2,500 voters as witnesses, Graeme Stewart last evening "called" Carter H. Harrison's bluff that he—the mayor—has the only traction record in the mayoralty contest. The republican candidate proved that he was working for better street car facilities in Chicago long before Mr. Harrison had come out with his biennial slogan.

Mr. Stewart took a swing through south side wards, speaking at Wentworth avenue and Sixty-ninth street, Garfield boulevard and Halsted street, Emerald avenue and Forty-third street, and at Douglas hall, Indiana avenue and Thirty-fifth street. The halls were crowded and the receptions given the candidate were enthusiastic. Thomas Shaughnessy, candidate for city treasurer, State's Attorney Deneen, and Ald. Foreman also addressed the meetings.

Compares the Two Records.

"Let us look into Mayor Harrison's charge that he alone has a traction record," said Mr. Stewart. "I want to take you back to the days when the repeal of the Allen law was first urged. When the matter came up in the republican city convention I had the pleasure of seconding the resolution asking the repeal and I was a member of the committee which framed the repeal plank for the platform. Now what was Mr. Harrison's traction record at that time? I haven't been able to find it, and you will find he had not yet begun to think about this question.

"The fact is, I feel that I have more of a traction record than he, although he has been in office and I in private business. For he, through all these years of transportation agitation, has done absolutely nothing to give the city relief. It was Harrison who wanted to dissolve the first committee on local transportation ever appointed in the council. It was the republican majority that passed an ordinance making that committee permanent. It was the same majority that got expert reports on the traction situation with a view to relief. And after awhile Mr. Harrison woke up and found that the republican councilmen were cutting all the political timber out from under him. Then he got busy with his slogan, though nothing tangible has as yet come of it."

Harlan Leader Chairman.

At the Wentworth avenue meeting Clark T. Northrup, a former Harlan leader, was the chairman. He introduced Mr. Stewart declaring that he would always believe in Harlan but realized that Stewart was the man for this campaign.

"What does Carter Harrison know about the financial condition of the city?" asked Mr. Stewart. "If he knows anything about the true state of affairs he is careful not to tell you. In 1898 there was $3,000,000 to the credit of the city. In the five years since that time we have eaten up all the taxes and used up that surplus. That means that we have lived $600,000 a year beyond our means. That means bankruptcy. The controller's report for 1901 was published three months ago, just one year late. The report for 1902 is not out yet. It is in the hands of the printer and probably will be till after election. It will show that the city received $39,000,000. But how was that amount disbursed. No one knows. You can get no information on the subject at the city hall."

"Mr. Harrison generally wakes up about June 1," continued the speaker, "and declares that there is no money with which to pay city employés. But if I am elected mayor I promise you that as a part of my business administration I shall have every department, and especially the controller, publish a statement of the city's financial condition every sixty or ninety days. Then the taxpayers can tell where they stand. And if I find that we are living beyond our means I shall stop it before the finances reach their present deplorable condition."

Wins Confidence of Audience.

At the meeting in Emerald avenue Mr. Stewart struck up immediate confidential relations with his audience, and not a few hard luck stories were poured out to him in the course of frequent interruptions.

"I notice that all the individuals who get into the mayor's chair immediately set about planning their reëlection, while letting everything else go by the board. But my promise to you is that I shall take office, if elected, with no further political preferment in view, and with only the earnest desire to give you good government for two years."

"We want streets, not rivers," interrupted a man in the audience.

"So I noticed tonight while trying to get here in a carriage," replied the candidate. "We must have everything better if the city is to be redeemed. We must deal fairly with the traction corporations, in order that capital will be attracted here, but we must give capital to understand that a seat must go with every fare. There must be as good service in Wentworth as in Indiana avenue."

"Yes, and Halsted street," replied Mr. Stewart.

Meetings for Tonight.

Woodlawn Park Club hall, Sixty-fourth street and Woodlawn avenue—Graeme Stewart and other candidates, E. A. Bancroft, Lorin C. Collins, and Harry F. Atwood.

Oakland Music hall, Fortieth street and Cottage Grove avenue—Graeme Stewart and other candidates, Dr. J. B. McFatrich, and Frank P. Sadler.

Stewart Business Men's Club to Begin Organization at Once in the Wholesale Houses.

Employés of the big wholesale houses of the city are to be organized at once in the interests of Graeme Stewart's candidacy. This was decided on yesterday by the business men's committee, and the work was placed in charge of Fred J. Tucker, E. C. Young, John V. Farwell Jr., Henry J. Frercks, Henry Grasse, Lee Wampold, Louis Kuppenheimer, J. H. Sells, and A. A. Putnam. Headquarters will be opened in the building at 260 Franklin street.

Branch headquarters will be opened on Monday at 225 Dearborn street, with E. B. Fletcher, who managed John M. Harlan's campaign, in charge. Mr. Stewart announced that he would be at that place every day from 12 o'clock to 1 p. m. to meet people who want to see him.

The Young Men's Stewart club completed its organization yesterday with the election of a vice president from each ward and an executive committee of thirty-five. Following are the vice presidents:

Eugene R. Pike,	De Forrest Pomeroy,
Fred A. Acker,	Andrew Martin,
J. E. Scully,	T. R. Sammons,

John G. Scales announced that there would be a meeting of the club at 1 p. m. today in the fruit auction rooms at the south end of Dearborn street bridge. He reported that at noon yesterday the membership petition contained 706 names.

The Bohemians of the southwest side organized a Stewart club, with Anton Novak as president, Joseph Smejkal as secretary, and John L. Novak as treasurer, and started with a membership of 600. The club has opened headquarters at 934 West Twelfth street.

LONE STRIKER WHO TIES UP A BIG PLANT.

WILLIAM MEYER.

A lone stoker stood on picket duty before the doors of the Selz, Schwab & Co. shoe factory yesterday, while the 1,200 machines of the plant stood idle, the offices grew cold, and the army of employés went home. The lone stoker was on a strike, and as the rain rolled off his grimy clothing he told curbstone audiences how, without assistance, he was winning the fight.

It was considered a joke when Business Agent T. J. Riordan of the stationary firemen told the members of the firm on Thursday afternoon that they would have to give their only stoker, William Meyer, a 100 per cent increase in wages. They were allowed twenty minutes in which to do it, and when they failed the stoker walked out of the engine room and took his stand as picket.

The joke became serious an hour later, when the engineer, William Trager, refused to stoke the fires. When a nonunion man appeared to do the work the engineer refused to tend the boilers. Then the steam went down, the machines began to stop, and the firm welcomed the sound of the 6 o'clock whistles.

Morris Selz called upon John C. Driscoll of the associated teaming interests and explained the case.

"What?" shouted Driscoll. "They tried to tie you up for one man? He is getting 12½ cents and wants 28½ cents an hour? You can't afford to pay it. Tell those business agents so. Make them go to arbitration."

Orders were shouted out to Driscoll's aids. President Albert Young of the Teamsters' National union hurried out to the plant. Teams were being stopped and coal was shut off. Young was indignant and informed Meyer that the teams would have to be let alone. Young then told the business agents of the Firemen's union that they would have to arrange a settlement by arbitration. An adjustment is looked for today.

PARTIES HAVE A POSTER WAR.

Republicans and Democrats Tear Down Each Other's Advertising in Washington Street.

The two political parties copied the methods of rival vaudeville shows in Washington street yesterday, and engaged in a poster war. Some days ago the Marquette club rented a room in the building directly across the street from the city hall, and has been using it for noonday republican meetings. Incidentally it used the windows to display pictures of Graeme Stewart.

This invasion of the sacred neighborhood of the city hall stirred up the democratic county committee, and it rented, for advertising purposes, the windows of Justice Prindiville's old office, which adjoins to the east the room used by the Marquette club.

In the morning the windows were filled with posters advocating the reëlection of Mayor Harrison, while next to them were posters equally laudatory of Stewart. In the afternoon the posters of both parties began to be torn down. The republicans claim the democrats first tore down the republican posters, and the democrats are equally positive the republicans started it. Both parties were kept busy repairing damages all the afternoon.

CAMPAIGN POET BEGINS WORK.

Criticises Mayor Harrison, Calling the Traction Issue "Carter's Little Silver Pill."

Republican criticism of Mayor Harrison's administration is not confined to prose in this campaign. The poets are at work and they have turned the traction issue into three stanzas, entitled, "Carter's Little Silver Pill."

Those who read the billboards will have their attention called to these rhymes this morning, for they were printed on large posters yesterday and spread on boards and dead walls throughout the city last night. The effusion follows:

Carter had a little pill,
'Twas just as smooth as soap,
'Twas labeled Traction Issue,
And it was full of dope.

The pill was full of promise,
The patient ne'er got well;
Six years he bravely stood it,
And cheap his life would sell.

So Carter thought he'd try once more,
Four times would change the rule,
And sung out "April Fool."

Then he got well.

HARRISON SCORED BY CRUICE.

Labor Candidate Says the Mayor "Wiped His Feet" on the "Little Ballot."

Daniel L. Cruice, the labor candidate for mayor, who, as president of the Referendum league, carried on the "little ballot" campaign, denied yesterday that Mayor Harrison gave the league the least help in that struggle. Mr. Cruice was speaking to the employés of the Western Electric plant at noon, and, referring to the posters got out by the democrats which read: "Harrison stands on the little ballot; the people will be for Harrison," he said:

"Harrison not only stood on the little ballot, but he wiped his feet on it. I defy the mayor to show that he ever offered any aid to the campaign for the referendum.

"We made repeated appeals for aid in that campaign. We sent out letters to all citizens urging them to contribute to our funds. Mayor Harrison never gave us a cent. We poor men carried through that campaign. Of all the men in the city hall Dr. Howard S. Taylor was the only one who gave us the least help."

POLITICS BAD FOR WATER

DELAY IN LEGISLATURE THREATENS CHICAGO'S SUPPLY.

If Sanitary District Bill Is Not Reported Next Week It Probably Cannot Pass and Lake Will Continue Contaminated—Opposition Laid to Factional Wrangling—Plan for a Tax to Develop Power Also Meeting Much Opposition.

The state legislature is likely to stand accused of deliberately injuring Chicago's water supply if its committees continue to refuse to report the bill providing for the annexation of the Calumet and Evanston territory to the sanitary district. The sole cause of the delay in presenting this measure is laid to political wrangling, which is more or less involved with the continuance of the mud thread known as the Illinois and Michigan canal.

The question of the purity of Chicago's water supply now hinges wholly on this measure, and if the bill is not reported by next week it will be practically beaten.

Health Commissioner Reynolds urges that it is of the utmost importance to the city that this measure be passed.

"The polluted water supply is the chief factor in causing typhoid and similar diseases in Chicago," said Dr. Reynolds, "and demonstrates the urgent necessity for the fullest development of the purpose and intent of the sanitary district law. It is not enough to have created a sanitary district which is still a fragment. The only real benefit of the drainage channel thus far has been its effect in reducing the frequency with which the main river is flushed out into the lake.

"Now, people should not cry that the canal is a failure. Its plan simply must be consummated in its entirety. Completion of the intercepting sewage system will divert all of Chicago's sewage. The waste of Evanston and Calumet, too, must be diverted ultimately to perfect the plan."

The sanitary board's bill asking an additional tax for three years by which to raise $4,000,000 for the installation of water power on the channel also is faring badly. Members friendly to the state canal are said to be fighting this because they hope to develop a good thing in the water power line on the old ditch. Chief Engineer Randolph estimates that the board could install a power plant at Lockport, at a cost of $2,750,000, which would yield an annual income of $681,000, and at Joliet for $990,000, capable of an annual income of $426,000 at the lowest figures—a minimum yearly return of $1,107,000 on a maximum investment of $3,740,000.

Members of the sanitary board will confer on Monday afternoon on plans for a proposed public massmeeting to urge the passage of the annexation bill.

CAREY SCOLDS HIS COMMITTEE.

Says Members Who Oppose Mayor Harrison's Re-election Should Resign to Make Room for Others.

Chairman Carey of the democratic county committee believes that the members of that body who are not favoring Mayor Harrison's reëlection should resign and let loyal Harrison men take their places. He so declared himself at an executive session of the committee yesterday afternoon.

It is understood that there were some lively passages between the chairman and certain committeemen, among others Thomas Gahan, the democratic national committeeman. In his talk Mr. Carey is reported to have said that certain of the members were doing more to defeat Harrison than they were to elect him.

"For ten years," said Mr. Gahan, "I have been paying all the expenses of every campaign in my ward, but this time I was not invited to participate in the campaign, and, not having been invited, I naturally supposed my services were not needed."

Mr. Gahan's colleague, D. B. Levy, reported that no work had been done in the Sixth ward, and consequently the democrats there were apathetic. The committeemen of other wards, however, reported that strong organizations had been built up and that an effective campaign was being made in every precinct. This led Chairman Carey to observe:

"We can and will elect Mayor Harrison without assistance from the kickers."

Alley Held to Be Open.

Property owners interested in an alley running north from Harrison street, in the block bounded by Harrison, Van Buren, Clark, and La Salle streets, are sustained in their contention that the alley is open by an opinion given to Commissioner Blocki by Corporation Counsel Walker. The alley runs half way through the block, and north of it is a private alley.

YOUNG MEN HEAR MAYOR'S LECTURE

Auditors Are Told They Are Nation's Hope and Purifying Power in Politics.

NEEDED BY BOTH PARTIES

Mr. Harrison Compares Himself to Policeman Guarding Property of Citizens.

"The character of all politics depends on the character of its lowest stratum, the politics of the ward precinct and the country precinct. It is upon this petty politics that the greater structure is built. If the substructure is bad, the superstructure is necessarily weak."

This was the text of a heart to heart talk which Mayor Harrison gave to about seventy-five young men at an organization meeting of "young democrats" at the Briggs house last evening. When the mayor faced the young men he dropped municipal politics for the time and became an instructor and adviser along broad political lines.

Young Men the Nation's Hope.

"I believe the salvation of the country is the infusion of young blood into municipal and national politics," he said. "When I read in the newspapers that the supporters of my opponent in this campaign were organizing the young men into political clubs, and knew that my supporters had commenced a similar work, I saw in both movements an importance far beyond their effect on this campaign.

"Both clubs will do good work for the politics of Chicago. When young men bring their youth and their strength and their freshness into this work, it will result in the elevation and purifying of both municipal and national politics. I do not think I am betraying any confidences when I say here that there is a great opportunity for purification in both of the great political parties."

But the executive did not leave without getting back to first principles which he announced on the opening night of his speaking campaign—that of "blowing his own horn." He also made an appeal for the remainder of the ticket, and his references to John E. Owens, candidate for city attorney, were characterized by especial enthusiasm.

The treasurership contest was discussed, and the pledge of Ernest Hummel to turn over to the city all interest above a $15,000 salary was contrasted with the failure of Thomas Shaughnessy, republican candidate, to do as much.

The mayor earlier in the evening addressed a meeting of French democrats at 107 Dearborn street, and closed his itinerary at Libuse hall, Twelfth and Robey streets, in the Eleventh ward. Charles Vopicka presided at the last meeting, and a good audience, largely of Polish residents, was in attendance.

Compares Himself to Policeman.

The mayor covered in brief practically the same ground he had covered in previous speeches, but used one noticeably new figure in answer to the question "Am I an obstructionist?"

"If I am an obstructionist," he said, "then so is the blue coated guardian of the peace who walks the streets all night guarding your homes and your property from thieves, robbers, and freebooters."

He talked at length of the business administration which he declared he had given the city hall, and declared:

"When I became mayor peanut and soda and candy stands crowded the corridors of the city hall. They were there by reason of someone's pull. These have all been cleaned out, and I have secured for the city remuneration for many license privileges that were then considered the spoils and perquisites of the corrupt politician."

During the evening the mayor made no reference to the "big democrat from the east" who figured in previous addresses.

Mayor Harrison's old throat trouble came back on him yesterday and he is extremely hoarse. It is doubtful if he will be able to keep all his speaking engagements during the campaign.

Meetings for Tonight.

TELLS WHAT HARRITY SAID.

Mayor Harrison Admits There Were No Specific Offers of Political Preferment Made.

Mayor Harrison acknowledged yesterday that W. F. Harrity of Philadelphia had made no specific offers to him of political preferment in case he would be "a good boy" on traction matters. In fact, neither Mr. Harrity nor Mr. Auerbach made any offers at all, and the expression "taking him up on a high mountain" and showing him "the earth and the fullness thereof" was simply a figurative way of expressing what the mayor thought they might have meant.

"They certainly talked politics," said the mayor, in talking of Mr. Harrity's statement in THE TRIBUNE, "but no promises of any kind were held out or suggested. Mr. Harrity had a great deal to say about the part he had taken in democratic politics in years gone by and also of what my father had done toward securing the nomination of Cleveland in 1884. He said that had not my father held Illinois in line for him at that convention Mr. Cleveland could not have been nominated.

"Mr. Auerbach also told me what a good democrat he was and what a part he played in the democratic politics of New York City.

"I probably would not have thought anything about the matter had it not happened that five years before, when Mr. Yerkes was trying to get his fifty year franchise through no less a person than Richard Croker of New York came on to Chicago to tell me what a good fellow Yerkes was and how much Tammany thought of him. It seemed strange that every time this franchise question came up a big democrat from the east appeared in Chicago to talk politics with a democratic mayor.

"As for Mr. Harrity, after his first visit to Chicago, when he called on me he took no further part in the traction discussion. He was not here when the last conferences took place."

Chairman Revell of the republican campaign committee suggested that Mayor Harrison ought to publish an affidavit giving in detail his conversation with Mr. Harrity. When informed of this Mr. Harrison said he had been misunderstood, as no specific offers had been made.

FORM HARLAN-HARRISON CLUB.

Democrats Start an Organization by Which They Hope to Secure Certain Republican Votes.

The democratic county committee has started a "Harlan-Harrison" organization, by which it hopes to secure the votes of some Harlan republicans for Harrison. Yesterday the mayor received in his office nine men who said they represented the Harlan Workingmen's club, claiming to have some 10,000 votes which they could deliver to Mr. Harrison. The names of the men were W. H. Phillips, J. McGuire, Joseph Bodett, Charles Hodgirn, George Gear, Thomas Davis, William Hochgartner, and Hermann Gahle.

Independent Labor Party Meetings.

A massmeeting of the independent labor party was held at Stiles Assembly hall, Millard avenue and Twenty-second street, last night. It was addressed by Daniel L. Cruice, the candidate for mayor, and others. Another meeting will be held at Trades Assembly hall, 326 Ninety-second street, South Chicago, at 2 p. m. today.

HELPS MAIL TUBE GRANT.

COMMITTEE RECOMMENDS THE ORDINANCE FOR PASSAGE.

Compensation Fixed at 3 Per Cent of Gross Receipts for First Four Years and 5 Per Cent Thereafter—Work to Begin Within Six Months After Securing Franchise — Lines to Connect Depots and Old and New Postoffices—New Charter Legislation.

Chicago took one step nearer rapid mail transportation for the city when the judiciary committee of the council yesterday recommended for passage the ordinance of the Chicago Postal Pneumatic Tube company.

The question of compensation to the city for the use of the streets was fixed by the committee at 3 per cent of the gross receipts for the first four years, and 5 per cent a year during the rest of the twenty year grant. The work must be begun within six months after the passage of the ordinance.

The government contract for four years already has been let to this company, requiring, for an annual compensation of $14,500 a mile, the laying of nine miles of tubes. The carriers in the tubes must make thirty miles an hour, and are expected to reduce the time between the new postoffice and the stockyards from fifty-three to eleven minutes.

Location of Tube Lines.

The lines are to extend from the temporary and the new post offices to the following points:

Union depot, passing the Rand-McNally building substation.

Illinois Central railway station, and an extension southward to accommodate the Twenty-second street substation, the Armour station at Thirty-first street and Indiana avenue, a projected new station at Thirty-first and Halsted streets, and to the stockyards substation at Forty-third street.

Ex-Judge Adams, A. Goodrich, and ex-Congressman Allan C. Durborow represented the company before the council committee.

Propose New Charter Legislation.

Another proposal for charter legislation will be placed before the legislature if the council passes a resolution recommended for passage by the judiciary committee. The general assembly will be requested to amend the constitution to permit the holding of charter conventions where the citizens so decided by a vote.

The plan for Chicago is to have the question of charter revision submitted to the people at the earliest opportunity after successful action has been secured from the legislature. If the voters should decide for the holding of a charter convention they would elect one delegate from each ward and fifteen representatives at large. These delegates would constitute the convention to take up the matter of charter revision.

RECEIVERS ARE ASKED FOR TWO EASTERN TANNERIES.

Debts of C. Moench & Sons Company and Moench, Fischer & Gaensslen of Buffalo Reach $1,884,000.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 20.—The C. Moench & Sons company and Moench, Fischer & Gaensslen of Gowanda, two of the biggest tannery concerns in this part of the country, are insolvent, and application for receivers for both companies was made today.

The capital stock of the Moench & Sons company is $1,500,000, and that of Moench, Fischer & Gaensslen is $600,000. The motion for the dissolution of the companies was made in behalf of the majority of the directors. Both corporations have large plants at Cattaraugus, Gowanda, and Salamanca, and at Alpena, Mich. Warehouses of these concerns are located at Chicago, Boston, and other cities.

Attorney Moses Shire, who presented the petition of the Moench & Sons company, said there was a necessity for dissolution proceedings, because over $500,000 in notes is now due certain creditors.

According to C. E. Moench of Chicago, who is in charge of the local branch of the tannery concerns, the failure was brought about by impatient creditors, who insisted on immediate settlement, even though the companies would have been able to pay dollar for dollar if given a little time.

NEW BREAKS IN LEVEES RENEW PERIL IN SOUTH.

Mississippi Still Rising and Crevasses Are Growing Larger—Arkansas Inundated, Large Tracts Under Water.

Memphis, Tenn., March 20.—Two additional breaks are reported in the St. Francis levees north of the first crevasse at Trice's Landing, Ark., and reports of impending danger are being received from Mississippi points. The river here has risen .1 foot.

The breaks in St. Francis levee are at Random Shot and Shawnee Village, Ark., the first about forty-two miles from Memphis and the second about thirty-five mile away. Both crevasses are serious, the one at Shawnee being the worst of the three. The breaks of today probably will increase the water in the territory, which is flooded by the break at Trice's, and in addition are flooding a vast area of country which has thus far been free from water.

Water Rises at Vicksburg.

Vicksburg, Miss., March 20.—Showers have caused a rise in the river of six feet in twenty-four hours. Reports from Duvalls late this evening state that the Chotard old protection levee is in bad shape. The private levee at Davis island was dynamited tonight to ease the floods.

Factories in Danger.

Appleton, Wis., March 20.—There is a crevasse in the upper dam of the Fox river of eleven feet, and great alarm is felt by manufacturers along the river for fear that a section may give way, in which case much damage would be done to mills and railroad property.

LONGS FOR A MAYORALTY FIGHT

Whiting, Ind., Soon to Become a City, but Peculiar Conditions Deprive It of a Hot Municipal Election.

On the eve of casting off the knickerbockers of a village for the raiment of a full fledged city, Whiting, Ind., finds itself deprived of much of the excitement attending the transformation owing to its limited mayoralty timber.

Under the laws of Indiana the mayor of a city must be versed in the law, that he may be able to preside over the mayor's court. This the 12,000 inhabitants of Whiting interpret as limiting their selection for the office to lawyers, and there are just two disciples of Blackstone in the town.

It happens that one of these lawyers, Charles Greenwald, is a republican, and the other, George Gavitt, is a democrat. Neither of them, under the conditions prescribed, ought to have any difficulty in securing his party's nomination, and, as Whiting is overwhelmingly republican, Greenwald's election would seem to be assured.

That is why the citizens of Whiting, who come into their new estate on April 1, look with envy on the mayoralty contest in Chicago, and wonder what profit it is to them to be in a city if they are deprived of political excitement.

WOMAN STILL A BUFFALO SUSPECT

SAME PERSON IN MIND.

Party Has Been Under Suspicion Since the Day the Crime Was Discovered.

Buffalo, N. Y., March 20.—[Special.]—The Buffalo police authorities reject the theory that Arthur Pennell murdered Edwin L. Burdick. They declare Burdick was killed by a woman.

Superintendent of Police Bull said today that his opinion as to who killed Edwin L. Burdick had not been changed at any time since the murder.

"I believe a woman killed Burdick," he declared, "and I suspect the same woman now that I did the day of the murder. I believe Mr. Cusack and the district attorney are of quite the same opinion."

The foregoing statement was made by the superintendent in an interview denying a published report which quoted him as saying: "It looks more like Pennell's job than at any time since the murder."

Seeking for the Weapon.

Ever since Burdick was murdered the police have been trying to learn, among other things, what kind of a weapon was used in the commission of the crime. A golf stick and the missing cocktail bottle have been considered. The latter is now eliminated from all consideration. Dr. Danzer, the medical examiner, said this evening that a cocktail bottle never could have made the wounds which killed Burdick. It was possible, he said, for the back of a hatchet to have caused the wounds which, in his opinion, were made by an instrument with a sharp edge. He admits it is possible that a golf stick such as a putter could have made them.

Former District Attorney Thomas Penney said today: "Not a dollar of Mr. Pennell's life insurance will go to Mrs. Burdick."

Mr. Penney made this statement in view of the publication of a report that only $25,000 of the enormous insurance carried by Mr. Pennell was made payable to his estate. The circumstances have given rise to surmises that Mrs. Burdick might be the chief beneficiary.

Mrs. Burdick Will Get None.

"It is not known yet who are the beneficiaries," Mr. Penney said, "but this much is known, that Mrs. Burdick will not get a dollar of it."

A. F. Aird, general manager of a New York insurance company, confirmed the statement of Mr. Penney.

"Mr. Pennell had $30,000 life insurance in our company," he said, "and this is made payable to his estate. From all I have heard I believe that the rest of his life insurance will be found to be payable to his estate or to his family."

Empty Boat Found in the Lake.

A drifting boat picked up near the two mile crib yesterday caused some inquiry until it was learned that it had broken away from a pier at the foot of Indiana street, and probably had drifted out with the shore wind. The boat is the property of Henry Johnson, 276 Townsend street. In the bottom of it were two oars with the name "Keuhl" painted on the blades.

INFLUENZA AGAIN.

ANOTHER EPIDEMIC OF THE GRIP IS ANTICIPATED.

Many Cases Reported Already in This Part of the Country—A Common-Sense Remedy for the Disease and Its Effects.

Owing to the climatic conditions this year many physicians fear another epidemic of the grip, that form of influenza which so many have cause to remember. In some cases this disease has run its course with but little more severity than a hard cold, in others it has caused acute sickness. In nearly every case it has left a train of after-effects more troublesome than the disease itself. It is characteristic of the grip that ordinary medicines will not cure it permanently. The patient seems to have recovered and then suffers a relapse more severe than the first attack. The trouble in such cases is that the disease was not thoroughly eradicated from the system by the treatment employed.

Miss C. A. Peck of No. 633 East Fourteenth street, Minneapolis, Minn., had a very severe attack of grip in 1889, and it left her prostrated. "I could not get over that feeling of utter exhaustion," she says. "I had no ambition to do anything, and any little exertion made me out of breath and tired out. I grew thin, nervous, and irritable. Then I decided to try Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People and the first box made me feel better. Four boxes restored me to my natural good health."

The after-effects of the grip are often worse than the disease and many times they baffle all efforts of the best physicians to drive them out of the system. Health is shattered—the blood becomes poor, the flesh falls away, the sufferer grows nervous and irritable, and even slight exertion causes shortness of breath. These are dangerous symptoms and indicate that the system is in a state that invites pneumonia, bronchitis, or even consumption. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People will quickly restore the health after an attack of grip and expel the lingering germs, and, working through the blood, will render the system proof against the disease. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People may be had of all druggists, or direct by mail from Dr. Williams Medicine Company, Schenectady, N. Y., fifty cents a box; six boxes for two dollars and fifty cents.

DEFEAT THE BILL.

Representative Turner of this county has introduced a bill to cut down the powers of the board of review. It has been reported on favorably by the revenue committee of the house. That is strange, for the committeemen, if they had paid any attention to the bill, would have seen that it is a most objectionable measure.

It provides that no decrease or increase shall be made by the board of review in any personal property assessment until the board of assessors shall have been notified and given an opportunity to be heard. That is not an improper requirement. The assessors should have an opportunity to defend their assessment. The provision that no personal property assessment shall be increased unless a majority of the assessors concur is of doubtful propriety. It takes from the board of review the power of reviewal it should have.

That is a trifling matter, however, compared with the chief feature of the bill. That is the deprivation of the board of review of the power to raise or lower individual real estate assessments. The board is to be left the power to equalize real estate assessments as between townships, but it is not to be permitted to decrease the unjustly high valuation which may be put on a piece of property or to raise the assessment when it is scandalously low. The board of assessors is to be the sole and final judge of the comparative values of lots and buildings in each township. It may assess one lot on the west side at half its fair cash value and the adjoining lot at double its fair cash value, and its action is to be a finality.

The owners of real estate in Cook county should be up in arms against a bill which robs them of the right of appeal from the board of assessors to the board of review. If they lose that right they will be remediless. The courts cannot be appealed to on the ground that an assessment is too high until the taxes shall have been extended. That means an expensive suit, and usually a fruitless one.

The owners of real estate in this county are not the only ones whose interests are assailed. The farmers in the 101 other counties will have no remedy for an excessive assessment if the Turner bill shall pass. That bill will deprive their board of review of reviewing power. It will be expedient for the country people to call the attention of their senators and representatives to the Turner bill and ask them to lay it on the table. There has always been a body authorized to revise the action of assessors and remedy errors in individual assessments due to bad judgment or caprice. There must continue to be such a body in every county or there will be no security for real estate owners, and assessors will be autocrats.

FORBIDDEN TO TEACH.

When on July 1, 1901, the French chambers required all religious associations to secure civil and secular authorization the number of persons in such associations was at least 400,000. This number will seem sufficiently formidable if one remembers that the total population of France is less than 40,000,000. What would the associations do? Would they request authorization or not? The pope told them that they might, provided that they did not, while strengthening their loyalty to the state, diminish their loyalty to the church. The language used was ambiguous. It was too much like the language of those oaths taken by ecclesiastics in the middle ages when they swore to do certain things "saving the honor of the church." No one could tell what "saving the honor of the church" might mean.

Even with the pope's ambiguously worded permission, however, it seems that authorization was requested by less than 25 per cent of the religious associations of France. The other 75 per cent transferred their personnel and as much as possible of their property to foreign lands. The devout Catholic tasted exile as the devout Huguenot tasted it some time ago. Another swarm was added to the already large number that have issued from the French hive on similar occasions.

But now came up the question of the fate of those associations that had staid behind and that had asked the state for permission to continue in existence on French soil. The chamber of deputies has decided that as far as the male teaching associations were concerned further existence was impossible. The reason was political, not religious. The charge is that the male religious associations are teaching doctrines contrary to republican institutions—are undermining the principles of 1798 and making French citizens disloyal to France.

The principles of 1798 ought to have struck deep root by this time. It ought to be beyond the power of religious teaching associations to uproot them if so inclined. Americans, less timid than Frenchmen, do not molest religious associations which teach. Americans are not afraid that such associations will subvert the principles of 1776 or in any way endanger the republic. The existing French republic is more than thirty years old. The great mass of the people appear to be strongly attached to the republican form of government. It is queer that there should be such a dread of "clericalism" and such lively apprehensions that it will undermine the republic. Is it not possible for the government to establish schools which shall be as good in all respects as those conducted by religious associations and let parents send their children where they please?

A BUSINESS MAN NEEDED.

The revenues of the city are not what they should be. That makes it necessary for the municipal government to leave undone some things which ought to be done or to induce some other agency to attend to them. The bridges at State and Randolph streets which the drainage trustees have paid for would have been built by the city if it had had the money.

The embarrassing lack of means makes it all the more necessary that the municipality should put in charge of its affairs a business man who will disburse the revenues in accordance with strict business rules. That kind of man will pick out as heads of departments persons whom he has met in business life and whom he can rely on to get for the taxpayers a full dollar's worth of labor or materials for every dollar paid out on their order. A mayor who has good intentions and a rudimentary acquaintance with business principles, who does not let politicians run him, and who selects as his subordinates men who mean well, even though they do not know much, may be able to administer municipal affairs in a tolerably satisfactory manner when he has ample resources at his command. When revenues are scanty or when political influences partially paralyze good intentions citizens complain loudly of the way in which affairs are managed.

Had there been in the city hall during the last six years more business ability and less politics much more would have been accomplished with the limited revenues of the city. There would have been a higher standard of efficiency. There would have been rigid economy. There will be no politics in the city hall if Mr. Stewart is elected mayor. He will not use the office to reward political friends or punish political opponents. He has no political ambitions to gratify. The mayor who looks on his office chiefly as a stepping stone to higher positions cannot be an efficient administrative officer. Mr. Stewart's acquaintance with politics will enable him to avoid mistakes which the business man who knows nothing of politics would be likely to make, but no political considerations will cause him to forget the business principles which have governed him in private life.

The revenues of the city will not be increased until a settlement shall have been made with the traction companies under which they will be liberal contributors to the city treasury. Such a settlement Mr. Harrison makes no effort to secure. It is necessary while the municipal government has limited resources that a business man who knows how to do the most with them shall administer them. Chicagoans have treated Mayor Harrison generously. They have given him six years in which to learn how to give the city a business administration. He has been a poor scholar. Further opportunities would not be improved by him. He has had his day in court. It is time to relieve him from duty and put a better man in his place. The politician should go out and the business man should go in, bringing with him economy, efficiency, and energy. These are the qualities which have made Chicago great industrially and commercially. They are qualities which the city needs in a mayor. It can have them by electing Graeme Stewart.

FOURTH SUPREME COURT DISTRICT BILL

The house of representatives has passed a bill changing the boundaries of the Fourth Supreme court district. The senate should concur in the action of the house. The districts have not been altered since they were laid out by the constitutional convention of 1869, and there are now great inequalities in population. The Fourth district is the smallest of them all and should have the larger population which the house bill gives it. A judge is to be elected next June, and, as a change in boundaries can only be made on the eve of an election, the district must be enlarged now or nothing can be done for nine years.

The changes made in the Fourth district, which is overwhelmingly democratic as now constituted, will contribute to the reelection of Judge Carter, who was put on the bench by the political landslide of 1894. It is desirable that he should stay where he is, not because he is a republican, but because he is so excellent a judge. He was the leading lawyer in his part of the state when he was nominated nine years ago, and he has won as high a reputation on the bench as he did at the bar. The Supreme court would be weakened if he were to cease to be a member of it. The lawyers of the state are fully aware of his ability and would deplore the loss of an able, hard working, and experienced judge.

The senate should take up and pass the house bill without delay. It is a meritorious measure from every point of view.

SHAMROCK III. AND RELIANCE.

Shamrock III. made its first plunge into water on St. Patrick's day, as was befitting, and to that extent has beaten Reliance, the new defender of the America cup, which is still in the yards of Herreshoff, though well on the way to completion. Whether Shamrock III. has or will have any other advantage remains to be seen. No one can forecast the final result with anything like accuracy. Reliance probably will not be ready for the water before the second week in April, and it will be some time before any satisfactory test can be made of its ability and quality. No challenger before has had such ample time for tuning up as Shamrock III. When it meets Reliance it will be in the best of trim. The latter will be in the same condition and has the advantage of not having to cross the ocean.

Only one thing may be asserted with any degree of certainty as to the forthcoming contest. Given the proper weather conditions for each boat the race will be uncomfortably close. Shamrock III. and Reliance will represent the maximum of architectural skill in racing yacht construction. This time, if all reports are correct, the contest will not lie between two racing machines closely assimilated in points of construction. Some radical departures have been made in each case from the conventional models, though the general scheme is the same. The challenger has a fin of excessive bulk, though short, a moderate beam and draft, and about one-third greater depth of body than any of the recent boats of its class. The Clyde experts are of opinion that if Shamrock III. will steer, trim, and carry its sails it will undoubtedly beat anything that has yet been seen over there. No detailed description has been made of Reliance's points. It departs from the lines of Constitution and Columbia, and is said in some ways to approach those of Lawson's unlucky Independence. It has the same length and draft as Shamrock III., but in area of deck, in the long forward overhang, and in sail area it will have advantage over the challenger.

Both boats are surprises in many features. Perhaps the result of the race will be a surprise. But we shall have the best boat Herreshoff ever has turned out, and undoubtedly Mr. Lipton will have the best of the three Shamrocks. If we retain the cup it is not likely to be contested for again for a long time. Three times will be as often as any man cares to be beaten in such costly trials, and no one else on the other side seems anxious to try to lift the cup. If, on the other hand, we are beaten, it will not be a misfortune to real sport. Under other rules and conditions it would be a contest between real yachts, perhaps, and not between racing machines—a contest of real seamanship and the real ability of the racers in any sea and with any wind.

THE CUBAN TREATY.

Of the twenty-four senators who voted or were paired against the Cuban reciprocity treaty seventeen are from southern states. There is not one of them who would not be offended if he were called a protectionist, but the treaty was objectionable to most of them simply because it lowers by one-fifth the duties on Cuban sugar and tobacco. The treaty will benefit many southern industries, agricultural and manufacturing, but it is opposed by cane sugar and tobacco interests in the south and beet sugar producers in the west, who say they need all the protection the Dingley tariff law gives them. Southern democrats who never say a kind word about the Dingley law on this occasion voted to stand by it. When congress meets next winter they will probably be found voting against a joint resolution to make the treaty operative. Until such action shall have been taken the treaty will be in a state of suspended animation. The senate having ratified the treaty, it will be under a moral obligation to enact without needless delay the legislation required to make it operative. The bitterest opponent of the treaty hardly will go to extreme lengths to defer action on that legislation.

The Cubans might justly complain of the dilatory policy of the United States, but they are a good natured and patient people. They are rejoicing over the ratification of the treaty, although it will be of no value to them so far as this year's crops are concerned. They deem a lowering of the American tariff barrier so great a gain that they are ready to wait patiently for another year in order to secure it. They have displayed so much dignity and self-restraint during the years which have elapsed since President McKinley first asked that they be given easier access to American markets—although they have at times been on the brink of industrial bankruptcy—that congress cannot decently delay the enactment of enabling legislation. That should be the first matter attended to next winter.

A JOCULAR LEGISLATURE.

As practical jokers the members of the present Illinois state legislature will make Puck and Till Eulenspiegel look like pallbearers. It is only by keeping this fact in mind that the amendments to the civil service bill can be understood.

Everybody admits, of course, that those amendments completely pervert and corrupt the bill. This in itself is sufficiently funny and serves to keep legislative humor in a good humor with itself. And even funnier is Mr. Darrow's action in withdrawing from the thin ranks of the reformers in order to enter the large and portly circle of the reactionaries. He has been a vehement advocate of every reform that the lovers of ancient abuses have ever had thrust upon them. If anybody wanted to know anything about any measure looking toward the overturning of anything, Mr. Darrow was the man to interview. Yet Mr. Darrow has given his cordial support to the amendment which, by removing penalties, has made the proposed civil service law practically inoperative. But perhaps Mr. Darrow is following as closely as possible the principles enunciated in the title of his book, "Resist not Evil."

All this is funny, perhaps funnier than it is amusing, but the funniest part of the game, the climax of the joke, is yet to come. There is a bill before the legislature providing for the reincarnation of the state board of charities as a state board of control. Such a board of control would have a thoroughly consolidated authority over all the charitable institutions of Illinois. It would be charged with the care of all the dependent, defective, and delinquent wards of this state. All the patronage now in the hands of separate boards of trustees would pass into the hands of the new board of control conveniently situated at Springfield under the eye of the state administration. The only reason why the people of Illinois were willing to have such a change made was because they thought that at the same time there would be an introduction of a complete state civil service system. Now let civil service be killed—as it has been killed—and let the board of control bill be passed—as it may well be passed—and where will the state find itself? It will find itself saddled with a consolidated charitable-patronage, political-machine arrangement which will make its previous burden of patronage seem like feathers.

No civil service—consolidated patronage! Humor is said to consist in the "juxtaposition of incongruous ideas." Isn't the state legislature humorous? Isn't it whimsical? But hasn't the joke gone too far?

It appears that the emoluments of the office of city treasurer have been absurdly exaggerated. All it yields for the comfort of the loved ones at home is $45,000.

The more they stir up that Buffalo mystery the more unsavory it becomes.

The game that has been played on Cuba is known technically as the short change racket.

The fondness of certain members of the legislature for the old "canal" can only be explained on the theory that there is no accounting for tastes.

Senator Money has more or less prejudice, also, against street car conductors.

IN A MINOR KEY.

Conjectural as Yet.

"Well, what does he say?" impatiently asked Mr. Spotcash.

"I'll tell you in a moment," replied his secretary, who was still struggling with the opening sentence of a letter from the German correspondent of the firm. "I haven't got to the verb yet."

Lacking in Finish.

"Let me impress upon you, children," said the young man from Boston who was addressing the Sunday school, "the importance of storing your minds with wisdom, which may be defined as the capacity for making a right use of knowledge, and, in fact, presupposes the acquisition of knowledge. Thereby you will not only enter into the possession of what is best in life but rejoice the hearts of your parents, who are anxious above all things that their children shall become noble and useful members of society. Solomon expresses this idea rather crudely, it is true, but forcibly, when he says, 'A wise son maketh a glad father.'"

LETTER OF MARQUISE DE FONTENOY.

Copyright: 1903: By the Marquise de Fontenoy.

ANOTHER manifestation of the enlightened policy of Emperor Nicholas of Russia is to be found in his removal of the narrow minded official who has filled until now the position of censor of the press, and the appointment in his stead of Counselor of State Tatitscheff, who for a number of years past has been the resident agent in London of the Russian treasury department, that is to say of the minister of finance, Count Witte, the most liberal and progressive Muscovite statesman of the day.

M. Tatitscheff has, like M. de Witte, the well deserved reputation of being an anglophile, has worked consistently for an understanding between Great Britain and Russia, and is not only popular in England but likewise enjoys the confidence of all the English people with whom he has been brought into contact. He speaks English perfectly, has made it his business while in England to get into contact with the press, and may therefore be relied upon as chief imperial press censor of Russia, that is to say of the department which not only controls the utterances of all Russian newspapers but likewise passes on press dispatches sent abroad and upon the utterances concerning Muscovite affairs in foreign papers entering the Russian empire, to inaugurate an altogether new and liberal era in that particular branch of the Russian administration which has been so frequently portrayed as an illustration of Muscovite despotism.

While on the subject of the press let me state that the picture published on the front page of one of the latest numbers of the Paris Illustration, representing five soldiers grouped behind three decapitated heads, and which purported to be a photographic demonstration of the horrors perpetrated by the Ottoman troops upon the unoffending Christians of Macedonia, furnishing indeed the theme for an entire page of text on Turkish moslem atrocities in Christian Macedonia, is altogether misleading. Indeed in a subsequent number the illustration has been forced to admit that the photograph which it published and of which it made so much capital was altogether erroneous, since the heads were not those of Macedonians or of Christians but of brigands, who had been shot down in the wilds of Albania by Turkish gendarmes, and who had then had their heads cut off in order to demonstrate to the governor of the province that the bandits were really dead.

The Macedonian insurrectionary committee has an active press agency with branches in most of the big European capitals, and under the circumstances it will be just as well to take the tales that are being published of Turkish atrocities in Macedonia with the same amount of salt that experience has taught us in the past to accord to the bogus atrocities ascribed to Turkey in Armenia and twenty-five years ago in Bulgaria.

Lord Curzon, it is now practically settled, will retire from the viceroyalty of India at the end of the current year, and there is a good deal of speculation with regard to his succession. Secretary of War Brodrick, whose name was freely mentioned in connection therewith a few weeks ago, has since his unfortunate showing in the house of commons with regard to the army reforms, come to be regarded as out of the running.

It is doubtful whether Lord Milner can be spared from south Africa for some time to come, and although Lord Cromer could undoubtedly have the office for the asking yet it is probable that he prefers the virtual governor generalship of Egypt and of the Soudan, with the prestige which he enjoys there, its proximity to Europe and his three months' leave of absence each year in England and Scotland to an exile of several years in India as viceroy. For, as I have mentioned before in these letters, the viceroy of India is debarred from leaving India and from returning to Europe throughout his entire term of office.

Among the younger men whose names are mentioned as possible successors to Lord Curzon is Earl Percy, the eldest son and heir of the duke of Northumberland and now under secretary of state for India. He is a brilliant young fellow, who has already achieved considerable distinction as a traveler and explorer and as an author.

The royal yacht on which Queen Amelia of Portugal is now cruising in the Mediterranean with her two sons, and on which she will visit various places along the French and Italian Riviera, formerly belonged to the late Col. Harry McCalmont, when it was known as the "Banshee." It was built at Lea in 1900, and was sold to the king of Portugal shortly afterwards, when Col. McCalmont volunteered for service in south Africa. It has been now rechristened the Amelia, and a considerable sum of money has been spent in refurnishing and in redecorating the craft.

The cruise is to last a couple of months, and the queen travels under the strictest incognito, as the marquise de Villa-Viosca, and she is attended by only one lady in waiting, the countess de Figueiro, by the latter's husband, by her court physician, her chaplain, the painter, Casanova, and by a couple of men in attendance on the young princes. The yacht is commanded by Dom Fernando de Serpa, younger brother of the marquis de Gouvea, and has among the officers under his command a lieutenant of Irish origin and ancestry, bearing the name of Dom Hugo O'Neill.

An odd quarrel has arisen between the vatican and the French government in connection with the use of a single Latin word employed in the papal bulls of investiture of French archbishops and bishops. The pope insists on employing the words "excellentissimus presidens Emilius Loubet nobis nominavit." The president, his administration, and the council of state of France object to the use of the word "nobis," which, instead of making the sentence read: "The most excellent President Loubet has appointed," alters it to "The most excellent President Loubet has designated to us," which implies that it is the pope and not the president who makes the appointment.

The French government insists upon the suppression of the objectionable word "nobis," and as the vatican declines to accede to this demand the government has refused to register the papal bulls. To this Leo XIII. has responded by declining to recognize five bishops appointed by President Loubet, so that at the present moment there are no less than five Episcopal sees in France without bishops, all on account of this miserable little Latin word "nobis."

London's new chief commissioner of the metropolitan police, appointed by the king in the place of Sir Edward Bradford, who has retired, is one of the most capable and experienced police officials in the service of the British empire. Edward Henry—for that is his name—like Sir Edward Bradford before him, fist learnt police work in India, and after a term of office as magistrate he became inspector general of police in India, an appointment which he held for over ten years, introducing not merely the Bertillon system for the identification and registration of professional and other criminals but likewise the means of classifying and registration of finger marks. Towards the end of 1900 he was commissioned by the colonial department in London to proceed to Africa to organize a police force in the Transvaal and Orange River colony, and on his return to London was appointed assistant commissioner of police there.

A LINE-O'-TYPE OR TWO.

The Battle of the Harbingers.

Robin and Richard were pretty birds two;
Robin was redbreasted, Richard was blue.
They came from the southland a message to bring,
And each thought himself the first herald of spring.
Said Richard to Robin, "I got here on Monday."
Said Robin to Richard, "I got here on Sunday."
"You know you are lying," said Richard, "confound you!"
"Go way back," said Robin, "and perch on the ground, you!"
Then Richard defiant sang Robin a dare,
And both for a battle began to prepare.

Now, while they crossed beaks to see which had the right of it,
Coming home late after making a night of it,
Tom Cat observed them, and said, with a grin,
Whenever two heralds of spring disagree

That was the end of the silly birds' quarrel.

$1,000 REWARD!

The Harrison bacillus captured by Short Change Mike has mysteriously disappeared, and the Line-o'-Type offers a reward of $1,000 for exclusive information leading to the arrest and conviction of the perpetrators of this dastardly outrage. Mike reports that late last night one Ed Lahiff, a person prominent in city hall circles, was seen to board a Northwestern suburban train carrying a huge valise and accompanied by a dog. Mr. Lahiff was shadowed to his home in Rogers Park by Mike, who will remain on watch until he ascertains the contents of the suspicious valise. If Lahiff's dog could only speak!

UNIQUE AND PALATABLE.

The guests from La Grange, Chicago, Evanston, and Hyde Park began to arrive at 8 o'clock. The grand march at 9 o'clock was a sight never to be forgotten. Though sixty-five in number they had plenty of room, the spacious parlor, library, and dining room were thrown into one, and dancing followed till an advanced hour in the evening. In the large dining room wholesome refreshments were served. Plenty there was, and everything was unique, original, and palatable to the delight of the epicure. Though everything served really deserved praise, we will mention specially the punch, which we will call a royal punch, for delicious it was and fit for a king. To serve, Mrs. Turnock was assisted by her sister, Mme. Bourgeois of Chicago, who, by the way, was at the punch bowl and treated us all so generously. Mrs. Cooper, from Chicago, also assisted in distributing the "grub." Mr. Nelson Clark, who came to have a glimpse of the show (for a sight it was), made himself a very handy and welcome waiter and did his utmost to help his hostess empty the contents of the dishes, to the merriment and satisfaction of every guest. Nothing went begging, and Mr. and Mrs. Turnock deserve great credit and high praise for their skill in entertaining.—La Grange (Ill.) News.

A GOOD deal of the loose talk against the Chicago orchestra has its origin in the narrow belief that the orchestra is wholly an amusement enterprise. "THE RAPID PROCESS."

Mr. A. L. Coffey, the well known shoemaker at Leroy, is becoming quite an artist, and already has done a score of pieces in oil that are a credit to him as well as to the town. Some three weeks ago he saw an oil painting and thought he could, possibly, do as well. He tried and succeeded. He has taken no lessons and does all his painting by what is known as the rapid process. A large landscape takes him three-quarters of an hour to complete, while smaller pieces are done in half an hour. Mr. Coffey is the brother of Mrs. Clara Beatrice St. George of Chicago, formerly of Leroy, who has quite a reputation as a writer of prose and poetry. A number of years ago she wrote poetry for the Pantagraph.—Bloomington (Ill.) Pantagraph.

A DAY WITH A CANDIDATE FOR MAYOR
GRAEME STEWART

GRAEME STEWART has been too long a business man to allow a little thing like running for mayor materially to interfere with his daily schedule. He got up Thursday morning at his regular hour, which is 7 o'clock, glanced over his paper, ate breakfast with his family, and then started from his house on Lincoln Park boulevard, just above the Chicago avenue water works, to walk downtown.

He didn't meet any of the other candidates for mayor because he begins his working day earlier than most of them. His friends seem to think the fact that he is used to beginning early in the morning and working until late in the evening will be of advantage to Chicago after he moves into the city hall.

Walking over the Rush street bridge he stopped first at the wholesale grocery house of which he is the managing director. The early mail carrier has already left a big bundle of letters addressed to him there. There was a stenographer waiting and—again showing his business training—Mr. Stewart sat down, ran through the letters, and dictated replies to all of them before he did anything else. Promptness in dealing with the questions of each day as they arise is another quality which Mr. Stewart's friends say will be found in the mayor's office after next month.

The mail which a candidate for mayor receives and handles every day is startling both in volume and in contents. On top may be a letter from an old friend, from whom he has not even heard for ten years. The letter is one of congratulation and good wishes. Next is a note inclosing ten tickets for the masquerade ball of a pleasure club in one of the suburbs. The tickets cost $1 each. "A life long democrat" writes in to say that he has determined to cast in his lot with the republican candidate and that he has already influenced ten of his democratic friends to do likewise. An indignant parent writes to complain about conditions in a certain public school and asks the candidate if he will promise to remedy the evils complained of if elected. An ingenious inventor has a machine which will automatically deliver speeches on a dozen downtown street corners, at the same time flashing life sized pictures of the candidate in electricity. A South Water street merchant has organized a campaign club with 600 members and wants 1,000 campaign buttons and a couple of meetings arranged for. Would the candidate be kind enough to subscribe a few dollars to a worthy charity, the objects of which are fully explained in the inclosed circular? Does he know that in the 'steenth precinct of the 'steenth ward there are thirty-six democrats registered who have no right to vote at all? Will he join the Anglo-Austrian-Swedish alliance, the initiation fee being $20? A manufacturer writes that he will be glad to give the candidate an opportunity to meet and talk with his employés; a woman wishes to know if he will close up the policy shops which have almost ruined her son; a grocer on the northwest side wants to know whether the candidate will see that the street in front of his place of business is paved and decently cleaned; a school teacher reports that the children under her charge are being demoralized by playing penny slot machines in the neighborhood of the school building, and says the police will not stop them from running; a taxpayer would like to know if he stands any chance of getting $77 in rebates which has been due him for more than ten years.

As soon as the mail was out of the way the candidate walked over to his personal campaign headquarters in the Marquette building. There again a big bundle of letters was waiting for him and again they were quickly read and as quickly answered or disposed of in some way. This is not picturesque, to be sure, but there is not much of the picturesque about a good business man—except the results he accomplishes.

From the Marquette to the county central committee's headquarters at 76 Fifth avenue was the next step. More letters—more dictation. A brief conference with Chairman Revell followed and the men in charge of different branches of the campaign reported progress and asked for instruction.

This is Mr. Stewart's first candidacy for an elective office and he thinks it only fair, both to himself and to the voters, that he should personally meet and shake hands with as many of them as possible. So, with the morning's mail out of the way, he started out with a friend to make the rounds of Marshall Field & Co.'s retail store. From counter to counter and from floor to floor of the great building he traveled, shaking hands with hundreds of salesmen and men on the floor. It was touch and go, but they all had a chance to see that the candidate was a big, tall, broad shouldered, athletic looking man with a good smile and a firm handclasp.

Luncheon at a downtown restaurant in company with some friends was not a long or an elaborate function. Immediately thereafter the republican candidate lit a cigar and—for the time—disappeared in its smoke, at least so far as politicians were concerned. As a matter of fact he was hanging on to the rear step of a Van Buren street electric car, which was otherwise crowded to the guards. In his mail of the morning had been several letters calling attention to the disgraceful condition of the paving on West Van Buren street, and, as he was to speak in that neighborhood in the evening, he wished to go out and see the exact condition of things with his own eyes. He rode almost the whole length of the street, most of the way on the rear platform, talking with other passengers, who were not aware of his identity, and making mental notes of things as he found them.

So when evening came he could talk of physical conditions as they actually were, as he had seen them with his own eyes, and not be at all dependent on the reports of other people.

So far as possible Mr. Stewart has made it a rule to make a careful personal inspection of conditions in each neighborhood in which he is to speak, so that he may speak with certainty of things as they really are. In this idea his friends also profess to see the trained instinct of the business man, who is energetic and shrewd enough to make a personal investigation of conditions at some little cost of time and trouble before taking action. They point out that a man like that in the city hall would not be easy to fool or deceive in any way.

A brisk walk from the Adams street terminus of the street car line took him back to the central headquarters on Fifth avenue, where three or four men were waiting by appointment to see him. During his absence, also, a large number of letters had accumulated. They were all gone over and directions given for the handling of each of them.

"All letters must be answered on the day they are received" is a rule which Mr. Stewart has found good in business and equally good in politics.

During the afternoon a dozen or more delegations from different parts of the city were received. As is always the case a good many of them came to present matters which might have been better handled by some of the subordinates in the offices, but they were all given a hearing by the candidate and each one sent to the proper department for action.

At 4 o'clock the executive committee held its regular meeting, with all the candidates on the city ticket present. Members of the committee to whom had been assigned different parts of the work made their reports. One man, for instance, who is in charge of arrangements for halls and speakers, read a list of the different halls he had engaged and the speakers he had assigned to each. He was told that in a certain ward, for instance, conditions had changed somewhat. It would be wise to put two or three more meetings into the ward, with speakers who would pay particular attention to such and such subjects. The chairman of the committee on printed matter reported that he had ordered so many thousand of a certain speech and so many thousand of another poster. He was ordered to double his order for posters and not to get so many copies of the speech.

HANGING ON TO THE REAR STEP.

headquarters and walked home to eat dinner with his family. After dinner he took his carriage and, stopping to pick up former Judge Collins on the way, drove over to the west side, where he was billed to deliver three speeches in as many halls.

The meetings were in that part of the city where Mr. Stewart lived for thirty years and many of the people who turned out to pack the halls were old friends of his boyhood and young manhood. There were bald headed men there with whom Mr. Stewart, though still a young man, went to public school and he even ran across some of his classmates at the old Chicago university, in which he was a member of the class of '72, though he dropped out at the end of his junior year and did not graduate.

The last meeting was over by 10:30 and a fast drive across the city brought the candidate home by 11 o'clock. He slept soundly and was up as usual at 7 o'clock yesterday morning. Eight hours sleep a night is one of the luxuries which Mr. Stewart rarely denies himself.

CLUB IN SECTIONAL FIGHT

Cry Raised for Home Rule and Husbands of the Members Have Been Drawn Into the Struggle—Two Candidates Are Presented and a Lively Contest Is Promised — Administration Said to Be Arrayed Against Nonoffice Holding Class.

A political battle which promises to make irreparable breaches in the ranks of west side society is waging in the West End Woman's club. Husbands have been drawn into the fight and the spirit with which the struggle has begun promises lively happenings between now and election day.

The trouble is all caused by the nomination of a south side woman for the presidency of the west side club. The west siders are making a strong "cling together appeal." They aren't saying "united we stand; divided we fall," because that is too old, but that's what they mean. Instead they are saying:

"Would it be real nice to make our president take such a long car ride from the south side every Friday? She'd get home so late every night and would be so tired out."

Double Headed Ticket Reported.

The storm has been gathering for some time, and it broke yesterday when the nominating committee—the west side people say they don't like nominating committees—presented the name of Mrs. Martha Throop Vaughan, a south side resident, for the presidency. Mrs. Vaughan moved from the west to the south side a little over a year ago, and has not returned to the niche she formerly occupied in the west side club woman's heart since that time. But the nominating committee divined trouble and placed another nominee in the field for the presidency, Mrs. Ella D. Richolson.

An ominous hush fell over the meeting as the double headed ticket was announced by Mrs. E. G. Clark. It meant that the nominating committee had compromised. It meant that the fight would be carried to the polls.

Administration Against Members.

The retiring club president, Mrs. D. W. Graham, and the board of directors are said to favor Mrs. Vaughan, while Mrs. Richardson is a candidate of those who do not hold office. It is the administration arrayed against the members, the west side against the south, sectional feeling against broad mindedness, and velvet against silk. This is the way the contest is described by those who are involved in it.

Each faction is said to be trying to outswe the other in the magnificence of its display of the modiste's and milliner's arts. Long before the hour set for the meeting carriages began to roll up to the curb in front of the West Side Y. M. C. A. building. Each deposited its quota of handsomely dressed women. They were still arriving when Mrs. Graham called the meeting to order, but everybody was there when the nominating committee was called on for its report.

Many Names Before Committee.

Mrs. Clark, chairman of the committee, explained that the members had asked for two tickets, but that the committee had been scarcely able to frame up one.

"For the presidency," she said, "107 different women received one vote each."

"Sixty-seven women received two votes each," continued Mrs. Clark, "and five received votes for every office in the gift of the club. We found ourselves in a hopeless tangle. We did a great deal of telephoning, and have at last been able barely to make up one ticket. We can never have two tickets in this club until we are big enough and broad enough to accept defeat gracefully."

List of the Nominations.

There was absolute silence when Mrs. Clark read the list of nominations. It follows:

For first vice president—Mrs. Frances S. Lane.
For second vice president—Mrs. John McLaren.
For recording secretary—Mrs. Helen B. Stewart.
For corresponding secretary—Mrs. Martha Gemmell.
For treasurer—Mrs. Calista E. Bigelow.

"Yes, and the husbands are all involved in it," declared Mrs. Grace Wilbur Trout. "The husbands are urging their wives to vote for a west sider, and not to let the presidency go to a south side woman."

Klio Faces a Battle.

The West End is not the only woman's club that is on the verge of political warfare. At the Klio association an interesting little battle is said to be on. Miss Snider, who was nominated by the association at its last meeting, is objected to on the grounds that she is too young and is unmarried, and hence cannot sit in the presidential chair with the required amount of dignity.

"But she is over 30," urge her friends.

Nevertheless the opposing faction will vote for Mrs. Palmer and will work for her election.

Much interest is centering around the coming election at the Chicago Woman's club. From inside circles it is learned that Mrs. Charles Henrotin is scheduled to become the successor of Mrs. Matz.

ANIMAL SHOW ARRIVES TODAY.

Hagenbeck's Collection of Birds and Beasts Will Reach Chicago This Afternoon Over Alton Road.

The Carl Hagenbeck wild animals will arrive here by special train over the Alton railroad this afternoon. Owing to the fact that the Great Northern theater cannot be secured until nearly midnight it will be necessary to keep the animals in the car all day. As soon as the stage is cleared, however, the big cages will be set up and the animals transferred from their traveling boxes. There are in all nearly 150 birds and beasts in the Hagenbeck collection. The first performance is scheduled for tomorrow afternoon.

EASTER HAT OF HORSE HAIR BRAID.

Horse hair braid, the fashionable mode of last spring, will be worn to a certain extent by the Easter girl this year, and is shown worked up in a number of pretty effects, of which the illustrated mode is a beautiful example. Fashioned together in a fancy form the braid shape is trimmed simply with lace and the whole scheme of the hat is a monotone on the ecru order.

CHICAGO ORCHESTRA REHEARSAL.

It was an afternoon of thorough enjoyment Mr. Thomas had prepared for the patrons of the Chicago orchestra yesterday at the Auditorium, and the audience, although not quite as large as have been those present at the public rehearsals of late—the weather conditions were not of a favoring kind—was nevertheless keenly appreciative.

In fact, after the D'Indy symphony, Mr. Ganz, who assisted at the piano in that number, was called upon with more than customary heartiness for an encore, and the applause that followed the Liszt "Les Preludes" was so long continued that Mr. Thomas thrice bowed his acknowledgments and would have been warranted in repeating the selection had he deemed it permissible.

The program contained two novelties, and of more than average attractiveness and interest they proved. The first was a poem for orchestra, "La Bonne Chanson," by C. M. T. Loeffler, the violinist-composer, now resident in Boston. It has as its suggestion the poem of Paul Verlaine's beginning "Avant que tu ne t'en ailles," a song of approaching dawn that is of rare poetic delicacy and fragrance. Mr. Loeffler has found peculiarly apt tonal colors in which to voice this morning message of love told to the fading stars. He has been able to suggest the emotions that come to one who stands in the fields at the hour when the night is not yet ended nor the day yet begun, and, feeling the freshness and coolness of the air, hears the first notes of the birds, sees the glitter of the dew in the dawning light, watches the east grow bright, and welcomes the coming of a day clear and beautiful.

The poem of Verlaine has in it this charm, and the composer has put much of it into his music. The quieter, gentler tints on the orchestral palette are used almost exclusively, but there is no hint of monotony or lack of climax. The thematic material is attractive, possessing strength as well as beauty of melodic outline, and the manner in which it is handled is thoroughly admirable. The composer clearly knows his orchestra and its possibilities, and his technical proficiency is such that effects of suggestive power and of charm are achieved by him with ease and certainty. It is a work that unmistakably pleased yesterday, and a rehearing will at any time be welcomed.

The transition from this morning song of Loeffler to the symphony for orchestra and piano of Vincent d'Indy was easily accomplished, for the latter work is founded on a French mountain song, and has therefore about it a musical flavor also suggestive of outdoor life and freshness. The gifted Frenchman chose a folk song that has not only a quaintness of melodic interval that lends it an individuality that causes it to be remembered but has also the valuable merit of being susceptible of telling treatment in the manner chosen by him for its use. The treatment he has accorded is interesting and on the whole attractive.

The first movement impressed yesterday as the least satisfactory of the three, wanting something of definiteness and character. The second movement, which exerts no inconsiderable charm, owes much of its quality to its constantly shifting rhythms, and the last division of the work is inspiriting in the snap and vigor that distinguish it.

The performance by the orchestra was of the same high grade that prevailed throughout the afternoon. Mr. Thomas and his men seeming in especially happy mood and doing their work con amore.

Rudolph Ganz was at the piano, and although the composition is not one designed with any eye to the exploiting of the pianist—the instrument being treated not from a soloistic standpoint but merely as one of the members of the orchestral body—Mr. Ganz by his work was able to increase the already high measure of esteem held for him as player and musician. He gave himself entirely to the task in hand, seeking no personal prominence, and so complete was his self-effacement and so efficient his performance that the result was entire harmony between him and Mr. Thomas and the orchestra. It was an achievement that spoke of artistic earnestness and high purpose, and the approval the audience and Mr. Thomas bestowed on the player was but recognition justly bestowed. An encore was insisted upon and responded to with a finely spirited and technically complete performance of the last of the Chopin Etudes in A minor.

The three other selections on the program were the "Genoveva" overture of Schumann, the Liszt "Les Preludes," and the "Good Friday Spell, Transformation Scene and Glorification" from Wagner's "Parsifal," all of which are time tried favorites, and which played as they were yesterday were again source of keen delight and satisfaction.

The usual concert tonight at 8:15 o'clock.

Saturday, March 21.

YE SAINTE.

St. Benedict, patriarch of western monks.

ST. BENEDICT, famous as the founder of western monasticism, and patriarch general of all the monkish orders that follow "The Rule of St. Benedict"—Carthusians, Cistercians, Vallombrosians, and others—and author and perfecter of that noble rule, rendered great service to the world by the sensible goodness of his life. In spite of the large amount of bric-à-brac in the way of picturesque miracle that adorns his name he was distinctly and earnestly a man. He abhorred affectation, and taught his monks to eat sufficiently, to work actively, to study diligently, to think highly, and to pray devoutly. A wealthy young Roman Benedict fled at 15 from his vicious young school fellows and corrupt city society to the wilderness. Three years of hermit life established his fame for piety, and ultimately his cave at Subiaco became the center of twelve monasteries. Here he remained for thirty-five years. The knowledge of his increasing wisdom and holiness spreading, disciples of all ages and professions flocked to him. More than once he confounded jealous schemes and schemers against his own life, but fearing for his pupils he at last fled and founded on Monte Cassius, near Naples, the famous abbey, a place of pilgrimage today, the ancestor of tens of thousands of such which sprang up all over Europe. The community life there was based on manual labor in contrast to merely meditative seclusion. Agriculture was dignified and solitary places made fertile. The two main principles of the rule of St. Benedict are labor and obedience. A noble, intellectual life was the glory of the order which furnished or patronized all the earliest artists and architects of Europe. St. Benedict gave dignity to the female side of monasticism, and the story of St. Scholastica, his twin sister, is most tender and beautiful.

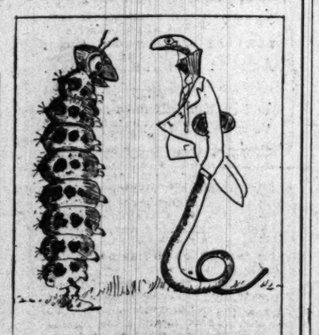

YE SINNER.

Archbishop Cranmer, who served two kings.

ARCHBISHOP CRANMER, though he was burned at the stake during Bloody Mary's reign, and has had his martyrdom celebrated in that cheerful Foxe's book, which has been the spiritual pabulum of many a pious soul, yet won not a halo of glory and a place among the Black Letter Saints in the calendar. If his end alone had been taken into consideration he would have won the martyr's crown, for nothing in life became him like the leaving of it. As a whole his life was not ignoble. He was a learned theologian, and helped forward greatly the reformation, but was better fitted to compile liturgies, articles, and homiles than to settle matters contested at court. The several promotions he received through Henry VIII. were not sought nor always willingly accepted. His privately expressed opinion that home ecclesiastical courts were competent to divorce the king and queen Catherine without further jurisdiction when reported to Henry led him to declare with a round oath, "This man, I trow, has got the right sow by the ear." This was the tide in Cranmer's life, which led him out of obscurity to be a king's tcol. He assisted Henry VIII. in securing three several divorces, disannulling marriages he had but a short time before sanctioned, though not willingly. He was too fearful of a king's displeasure to resist the royal commands, though they be degrading, and too vacillating when facing great responsibilities to have won the respect of posterity. After serving two kings and ministering to them in their last hours, weakly yielding to the last wish of Edward VI., he was convicted of treason and heresy, degraded from office, and duped into writing recantation after recantation. Yet he repented of these, though his adherence to them might have saved his life. The old man exposing steadfastly to the flame his offending hand, "the unworthy hand," which wrote the lying words, is a pathetic figure.

ANIMAL STORIES FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

THE CATERPILLARS' BALL.

THE caterpillars' dance was the biggest thing that the caterpillar family had given for many and many a long day, and you may rest assured that not one of the invitations that were sent out was thrown away. All the caterpillars from far and near came, and the rush was so great that it was feared at one time that evening that they all could not get into the big ballroom. But they opened up one side of the house, so that those who could not get on the dancing floor could promenade about the large lawn and hear the strains of beautiful music floating out upon the moonlit night.

When the fiddlers had just begun to fiddle and the dancers had lined up on the floor for the first grand waltz, who should come along but Mr. Earthworm. Now, of course, nobody but caterpillars had been invited to this dance, and the doorkeepers were a little surprised when they saw Mr. Earthworm marching up to the entrance, decked out in his Sunday best, and evidently ready to take part in the big affair.

"Only caterpillars are admitted here," said the chief doorkeeper.

"Well, I'm a caterpillar," answered Mr. Earthworm, and he looked offended.

"What kind of a caterpillar?" asked the doorkeeper.

"I'm a bald headed caterpillar," answered the earthworm promptly.

"Well, where's your invitation?"

The earthworm fumbled in his pockets as if he was looking for his card and then said:

"I must have lost it."

So they decided to let him in, anyway, and soon he was in the hall and dancing with the prettiest lady caterpillar there.

Everybody looked at them and admired them, for they certainly did appear to be the finest looking couple there.

But one of the little caterpillars dropped a piece of chewing gum on the floor, and right in the midst of the whole affair Mr. Earthworm slipped on it, and down he went in a heap on the floor.

Everybody cried "O!" for they thought that he must have been hurt, but he sprang up quickly enough and was ready to keep on dancing. But, wonderful to relate, the earthworm got up wrong end foremost and began to dance around upside down, for you know that one end of an earthworm looks as much like his head as the other. But the caterpillars knew the difference, and they all thought that he must be a ghost. The lady caterpillars screamed and the gentleman caterpillars jumped out of the window, and that ended the big ball, except that when Mr. Earthworm started to go home a crowd of caterpillar policemen caught him and sent him to jail for three summers for his badness.

After Twenty-Three Years of Excruciating Agonies and Sufferings Mrs. Welcher Is Cured By

Paine's Celery Compound

From time to time adventurers and speculators without conscience or soul, actuated only with a desire to make money easily and fast, resort to the compouding of worthless and dangerous preparations, and advertise them as cures for the common diseases that afflict men and women in the springtime.

MRS. H. A. WELCHER,
Kingston, Tenn., Had Suffered Agony for Years.

Would to Heaven that the cry of danger! danger!! could be sounded in the ears of all who unthinkingly buy and use such deceptions and frauds.

Fortunately honest druggists despise such worthless remedies and refuse to sell them. They will tell you with candor that Paine's Celery Compound is the spring medicine they can recommend. They know its composition, are acquainted with the facts of marvelous cures affected by it, and have seen its happy results amongst their personal friends.

Can you, dear sufferer, hesitate to try this disease-curing medicine? It has restored to health and the full enjoyment of life tens of thousands whom doctors were unable to cure. Mrs. H. A. Welcher, of Kingston, Tenn., says:—

"It gives me great pleasure to tell the world what Paine's Celery Compound has done for me. For 23 years I have suffered with chronic flux or ulcers of the bowels. I have had eight or nine of the best physicians of the state at different times to wait on me, but never had any relief. I was treated by several of Knoxville's best doctors, and after seeing so many testimonials and so many that I knew, I was induced by my son to try a bottle, and before I had used the first bottle I could feel quite a difference—that I was getting stronger, and I enjoyed my food more, and after taking four bottles I was entirely cured. I only wish that the medicine could be placed in the reach of all suffering humanity."

You know your painter; we don't; we only know painters in general. There are two sorts of painters, as of everything else. One paints as well as he can; the other as poor as he can and get business; the former is always learning, the latter knows it all now.

BOTH LEAGUES AGAINST DAVIS.

President Pulliam Says National League Will Fight Players in the Courts.

DELEHANTY IN SAME FIX.

Efforts of Brush and McGraw to Repudiate Peace Treaty to Be Blocked.

New York, March 20.—[Special.]—The National league is prepared to make a legal fight against George Davis playing with any National league club. This statement is contained in an official announcement regarding the Davis and Delehanty cases made today by President Pulliam.

Davis threatens to make a legal fight to play with the New York Nationals, and the National league, respecting the Cincinnati peace conference, will fight Davis in the courts if necessary. President Pulliam's statement of the position of the National league towards George Davis and F. J. Delehanty is this:

"Neither man is eligible to play with the National league until released from his contractual obligations to the club holding a contract with him. The fact that George Davis is now practicing with the New York club or the fact of litigation, friendly or otherwise, between Davis and the New York club will not operate to change the attitude of the National league in this matter until it is decreed by the court of last resort that this position of the National league shall be changed, and then, and not till then, will it change.

Player Is at Fault.

"The National league is prepared to maintain its position in the courts. There was no secrecy, chicanery, or unfair dealing at the peace conference between committees representing the National league and American league at Cincinnati. In the case of Davis it only asks him to live up to a contract entered into by him and drawn up by his own attorney. There is no hardship here other than asking a man to do what he contracts to do.

"If as a result of the litigation which may ensue it is established by the courts that a player is justified in repudiating an obligation one year and then wrapping himself in its folds another year to shield himself from wrongdoing it will be a sad day for professional baseball, because it will mean that disorder, double dealing, and worthless contractual obligations will prevail."

No Trades to Be Considered.

President Johnson of the American league supplemented Pulliam's manifesto by the statement that Davis and Delehanty will not even be traded to the New York American league owners, who are trying to get them both.

"Davis will have to live up to his contract with Chicago or remain idle," said Johnson. "The case of Delehanty is the same. He will play with Washington or not at all. Neither will be allowed to get away from the personal contract signed last year. It is a matter of principle, and for that reason I say the New York American league club need not make any further efforts to secure their releases."

It would seem to be up to John T. Brush to define the exact position of the New York National league team in regard to the rebellious behavior of the two players in question. Brush is in Indianapolis, and there is nobody here to speak for him.

SAYS DELEHANTY MUST REPORT

Manager Loftus Passes Through Chicago and Talks of His Rebellious Player.

"Delehanty will have to report to Washington to make himself look good to me if he wants to play baseball anywhere," said Manager Tom Loftus of the Senators yesterday. "After that, if there are any offers of trades or cash for him, I will treat them just as I would for any other player. But until Delehanty shows himself willing to play with my club, to which he belongs according to the peace treaty, he has no chance to play baseball again."

Manager Loftus stopped in Chicago for a few hours on his way from Dubuque to Washington to take up the white manager's burden for the season, and the decisive statement quoted was made in reply to a request for his position on the complication which has been brought about by the big outfielder's refusal to abide by the conference committee's action in awarding him to Washington, his declaration that he will play nowhere except in New York, and the offers that have been made for him by the New York National league team.

"Those fellows, Brush and McGraw, evidently haven't awakened to the fact that the two big leagues are at peace and working together," continued the senatorial magnate, "and that they are up against a stone wall combination which is liable to jolt them up a little if they butt into it too hard. Delehanty himself is guessing evidently and is spending his $4,000 advance recklessly in postage stamps begging McGraw to advise him what to do. I see he has written Fred Postal, too, asking for a conference with me. Well, he knows where to find me. I will be in Washington tomorrow unless the train breaks in two, and expect to stay there until the season opens. He can have his conference any time of day, night, or Sunday. The team is ordered to report there Monday next, and if Del is not on hand it will be so much the worse for him, that's all."

President Johnson is expected to return from New York today or tomorrow to look after the mass of routine business connected with the league's affairs which has accumulated during his absence.

LOS ANGELES SHUTS OUT COLTS

Los Angeles, Cal., March 20.—[Special.]—The Chicago team played its second exhibition game today against Los Angeles before 2,000 people, and suffered a shutout at the hands of the locals.

It was "ladies' day" and the fair sex was much in evidence. Although the day was a little dark, fully 1,000 women in summer garb applauded the brilliant plays made by both teams.

Joe Corbett, Jim's brother, pitched for Los Angeles, and the way he put them over shows he has lost none of his old time form, only one hit being made off his delivery in six innings. He seemed to have nothing but a straight ball at first, then started to mix them up good and plenty till the sixth. Wheeler took his place and was just as effective.

Hardy pitched seven innings for the Colts in first class style. Corridon replaced him in the eighth. Corridon was announced as the "world's greatest curve pitcher."

Evers played second base, Capt. Lowe directing operations from the bench, and the way the youngster picked up grounders was a wonder. Hardy, Selee's utility man, played outfield instead of Slagle, who has a sore ankle. Hardy dropped Smythe's long fly in the ninth, and this, with a questionable decision of the umpire, gave Los Angeles the second run.

The Colts will play an exhibition game in Pueblo on April 1. Today's game was played under old rules. Score:

DECIDE AGAINST AUSTIN.

Members of High School Board of Control Rule on a Protest—Is a Factor in the Championship Race—Question of Division of Schools Into Divisions for Baseball Is Considered—Season Will Start on May 2—Hyde Park Defeats Calumet.

English High won its protest against Austin High school before the high school board of control yesterday afternoon. Austin claimed the basketball game scheduled between the two schools by default, as the English High team did not appear until too late to play. The English High lads claimed they could not get to the suburban school earlier. The high school board decided that the two teams play the game within the next ten days.

The decision has an important bearing on the basketball championship, as it gives English High another chance for the championship, and the coming game between the two teams will decide which plays in the finals.

The board ordered all preliminary basketball games to be played before April 8 and the final games settled before the last of April. An attempt was made to get the baseball league organized. It was decided to organize the leagues into two divisions—major and minor. The teams will be pitted according to strength, instead of location, in the same manner as governed the football leagues last fall. A committee was appointed to decide the strength of the baseball teams and to class them in the two divisions. Englewood, Northwest Division, and South Chicago representatives were named as the committee.

A meeting of baseball managers was called for next week, and May 2 was decided upon as the opening baseball date.

Calumet lost its chance to reach the finals in the high school basketball finals by meeting defeat at the hands of the Hyde Park team at the Hyde Park gymnasium yesterday afternoon by a score of 30 to 10. The victory places Hyde Park in a tie with Lake for second place in the eastern section. Whipple and Nuth were the Hyde Park stars. Frary of Calumet won applause by throwing two baskets from the center of the field.

MEET AT ILLINOIS TONIGHT.

University of Chicago Athletes Reasonably Sure of Defeating Prof. Huff's Class.

Relieved from the strain of quarterly examinations, the University of Chicago track team will leave for Champaign this morning at 10 o'clock to take part in the Chicago-Illinois dual meet in the Illinois gymnasium tonight. Director Stagg's team will be weakened by the loss of two of its best men—Capt. Jerome Magee in the pole vault and Clyde A. Blair in the sprints. Despite these losses and the improved condition of the Illinois athletes the Chicago men feel reasonably confident of victory.

Capt. Magee will accompany the team, but will be unable to vault. Clyde Blair has gone to his home in Fort Scott, Kas. Robert Maxwell is not certain whether he will be able to compete or not in the shot put. Otherwise the team is in good shape.

Mort Cahill is picked to win the half mile. Tommy Taylor is given the victory over Kern, the fast Illinois quarter mile runner. Catlin is expected to carry off the first honors in the hurdles, and Fred Hall is a sure winner in the two mile against Melin. Hall may run in both the mile and two mile races. Henry and McCully are fast men in the half and one mile runs for Illinois.

Chicago Fencer Wins at Harvard.

At the open junior fencing tournament held by the Fencers' club in the Hemenway gymnasium, Boston, Mass., on March 17, in which there were fifteen entries, Arlowe K. Miller, Harvard, '03, of Chicago, won the second prize, a silver cup.

High School Meets Today.

High school track teams will keep the indoor track hot today in the university gymnasium. Oak Park and Lake View will hold a dual meet in the morning and North Division and English High will meet in the afternoon.

COMISKEY DONS HIS UNIFORM.

Mobile, Ala., March 20.—[Special.]—With the thermometer registering 80 in the shade, Comiskey of Chicago put on a uniform this afternoon and played first base for the White Sox during two hours of hard practice. The Old Roman made a great showing in fielding, but refused to do any work with the bat. Incidentally he devoted considerable time to coaching the new men, especially the pitchers.

Nothing has been heard of the missing trio—Isbell, Davis, and Gleason.

Callahan expects to play the first practice game of the season tomorrow, but the first public exhibition game is set for Sunday. Lineup for Sunday:

The problem of third base is still unsolved. Comiskey and Callahan held a conference today, and may make an experiment when Isbell reports and shift him to third, placing White on first. White has made a fine showing on first. The general opinion here is that Davis and Gleason are lost to the club. Comiskey insists he will have Davis.

The team is in great physical condition, the men working hard. Both Comiskey and Callahan are satisfied with the showing made by the new men up to date. The rumor here is that Isbell is in New Orleans, and may report on Saturday.

Signal Corps Defeats Second Regiment

The Signal corps indoor baseball team defeated the Second regiment nine at the Second Regiment armory last night by a score of 11 to 6. The game was a pitchers' battle between Anderson and Hopper. Score:

Signal Corps . . . . 3 4 1 0 3 0 *—11

Ever Hear of Hopper Before?

LONDON, March 20.—In a cycle meeting held at Sydney, N. S. W., the correspondent of the Daily Mail says the American cyclist, Hopper, won the $5,000 prize in the mile cycle race in the record time of 1:53 2-5. Walker, the Australian champion, was second.

CHICAGO OFFER FOR BIG FIGHT.

"Paddy" Carroll May Make Bid of $30,000 for Jeffries and Corbett.

DOES NOT NAME PLACE.

[BY GEORGE SILER.]

If Jeffries and Corbett have not tied themselves down to fight in San Francisco they can get a $30,000 purse to battle for in a middle west town of 350,000 population. The prime mover in this new championship fight angle is "Paddy" Carroll, the local promoter.

Carroll will not divulge the name of the city where he says he can pull off the big fight, but acknowledges that he and the men behind him have everything fixed and will guarantee protection to the fighters.

"I know what I am talking about," said Paddy last night, "and to show that I mean business I will put in a bid for the battle and back up my bid with a forfeit of $10,000. The balance of the purse—$20,000—will be placed in the hands of a responsible party, with orders to turn over the full amount into the hands of the referee or any man the fighters may select before they enter the ring. This may look like a huge bluff, but we have the money and the place to pull off the fight, and it is up to the principals to take it or turn it down."

Buffalo is the only city which seems to fit the conditions named by Carroll, and it is thought he may possibly be acting in the interest of the Fort Erie club. Cleveland, San Francisco, Cincinnati, and Pittsburg are the only other cities close to the 350,000 mark.

Carroll will try to locate Billy Delaney today and make him the proposition.

Billy Delaney, Champion Jeffries' trainer and general manager, arrived in town from Pittsburg yesterday. Billy left the ex-boilermaker and Fitzsimmons in the smoky city, where they are billed to show tonight.

"All this talk about Jeffries' health being undermined because of dissipation is bosh," said Delaney. "The big fellow was never physically better than at present. He, of course, takes a drink now and then, but I have yet to see him intoxicated since he and Fitz doubled up. They have been playing to big houses and have made a barrel of money. It was their intention to tour the world, but Corbett was so persistent to fight Jeff he canceled all foreign engagements and took him on."

Delaney has no fear of the result of the coming battle.

BRITT TEARS UP GOOD MONEY.

San Francisco, Cal., March 20.—[Special.]—Biddy Bishop and Aurelio Herrera have shown the white feather. The pair induced Jimmy Britt to journey to Montana to take on the Mexican, and after they got him there they turned him down with a proposition to fight at a weight he could not make in time to get back here to fight Fitzgerald before the San Francisco Athletic club.

Willie Britt and Jimmy Britt arrived in Butte yesterday on the strength of a letter from Herrera's manager offering to match him with Herrera at one of three fights—132 pounds at 3 o'clock, 133 at 7, or 134 ringside.

Bishop said at the conference that a mistake had been made, and that he was willing to pay the fare of the Britts back to San Francisco. He handed Willie Britt $80 in $20 bills. To show his disgust at the outcome of the conference Willie tore the money into shreds and threw the same into a cuspidor.

Chicago Wrestler Defeated.

Montreal, March 20.—[Special.]—John Haslip of Buffalo defeated James Bothener of Chicago in a wrestling bout tonight, winning two straight falls—the first in seventeen minutes and the second in ten minutes fifteen seconds.

Cincinnati Y. M. C. A.	8	Social turners	1

Indianapolis, Ind., March 20.—[Special.]—The Chicago men who were entered in the Indiana state meet of the Central A. A. U. in Tomlinson hall tonight were so successful that the Indiana men are inclined to refuse to compete with men from other states in the future.

The First regiment team of Chicago won forty-eight points, and would have made it an even fifty if the pole used in the pole vault had not been carried beyond Indianapolis by the railroad company, necessitating the use of a strange pole.

The nearest competitor for points was the Indiana university, which captured seventeen points. Chicago Y. M. C. A. got seven points.

The work of the Chicago men was superb, and elicited applause. Their superior training was evidenced by the ease by which they carried off first honors in almost every event.

By an accident in the 440 yards hurdle the three leaders in the final lap fell down, the first man running into an official. The result was that Gipe, an Indianapolis high school boy, slipped into first place. Summaries:

880 yards run—Won by W. G. Uffendell, First regiment, Chicago; L. H. Clapper, Chicago Y. M. C. A., second; J. Hoefling, Cincinnati Y. M. C. A., third. Time, 2:14.

Skating Race at the Coliseum.

W. Norwood, a junior, captured the roller skating race at the Coliseum last night for students of the Chicago College of Dental Surgery. The first heat was for freshmen and was won by R. H. Daniels, with A. C. Rathers second, and G. A. Walther third. The second, which was for junior "dents," went to Norwood, with J. Saylor second and Dexter third. The heat for seniors was won by Lord, Allen second, Knapp third. In the final heat Norwood shot to the front at the start and was never headed. Dexter came in second. Before and after the races the students skated to music furnished by the "dents" band.

Columbia Yacht Club Dinner.

Ex-Commodores Boyle, Porter, Price, and Weightman and E. T. Balcom are among those scheduled to speak at tonight's dinner of the Columbia Yacht club. Commodore McGuire will preside, and in addition to a discussion of the various races planned by the club the committee working to secure a permanent harbor for small yachts in the new lake front park will report.

FOUR MILE STAKE TODAY.

WINTER RACING AT NEW ORLEANS REACHES GETAWAY DAY.

The Way and Maj. Mansir Are Expected to Put Up a Good Struggle in the Final Fixture—Only Two Other Starters—Maltster Captures Handicap—Jockey Foley Is Seriously Hurt When Radiant Heat Falls in a Race.

New Orleans, La., March 20.—[Special.]—The racing season in New Orleans will end tomorrow and the New Louisiana stake at four miles will be the closing feature.

There were eighteen entries, but the starters narrowed down to four, and the event is not likely to prove a good contest. With a good track, which is promised for tomorrow, the Bush cup winner, The Way, is likely to be given a stout argument by Maj. Mansir. Accolade and Latson are not conceded a chance, but anything is expected to happen in a race at this distance.

The track today looked to be at its best, but was soft and slow, although the footing was good from fence to fence. The star number on the program was a handicap at a mile, in which six started and De Reszke was the choice. Maltster proved to be the best by running in front practically all the way. Mrs. Frank Foster raced with him to the top of the stretch, but was all out.

What looked like a serious accident happened in the second race, when Radiant Heat fell and carried Jockey Foley with him. The mishap occurred just as the field was straightened away in the stretch. Radiant Heat was just getting up to the leaders when he crossed his legs and went down. Socapa, who was following closely behind, stumbled over him and almost fell, and Morper had all he could do to keep his seat. When Foley was picked up it was found his collar bone was broken and two ribs were fractured. He was taken to the Charity hospital, where the surgeons said he would be out in a short time. Henry of Trastamare won the race by two lengths from Limelight. Had Radiant Heat stood up it is likely he would have won.

NO HORSES FOR LITTLE ROCK.

Arkansas Derby Apparently Will Be a Walkover for the Barney Schreiber Entry.

Memphis, Tenn., March 20.—[Special.]—The weeks of preliminary preparation administered to horses here for the early stake engagements at Little Rock have proved fruitless, owing to the inability of owners to secure transportation from Memphis to Little Rock. Railroad officials connected with the two lines leading to the Arkansas capital today informed the Montgomery park delegation it would be impossible to send a train over the submerged tracks in the St. Francis basin for probably ten days. The only route afforded was via St. Louis, and when this news was announced the trip was abandoned.

Charley Mahone sent Banter, an Arkansas Derby possibility, over a fast mile and an eighth trial this morning, and had made plans to ship him, as had G. C. Bennett, whose Au Revoir would probably have been made favorite in the race.

As a result of the local horses remaining here the Arkansas Derby will likely result in a practical walk over for Barney Schreiber, as his Mindora, Lacy Crawford, Hetzel, and Sigmund are the only remaining eligibles for the race that were regarded as having a chance to win.

TICHENOR & CO. CUT OUT HARLEM.

Refusal of Lacrimae's Entry Last Season Responsible for Feeling.

STABLE'S FINE CONDITION

Unless the racing firm of Tichenor & Co. experiences a change of heart between now and the opening of the racing season of the Harlem Jockey club, its colors will not be seen on that track this year. This was vouched for yesterday by G. W. Poole, the trainer for the stable, who arrived in town from Memphis. Poole reports every horse in his charge as fit.

"None of the bunch," said Poole, "has an ache or a pain. In all my experience on the turf I have never handled a stable of horses that has wintered as well as those that I have in charge at present. Our Derby representatives, Flocarline, Harry, Foxy Kane, and Sidney C. Love, could not be in better condition if they had no other race in view. When I speak of their present condition I include the general health of every horse in the stable."

Asked why his firm would not race at Harlem, Poole said neither Tichenor nor Newgrass approved of Judge Hamilton's method of ruling. When pushed to the point of his firm's grievances he let out the fact that the refusal of Lacrimae's entry by Judge Hamilton was the direct cause of the firm's decision.

"Our horses always ran to win," said the "bishop," "and the records will show that we won the biggest share of the races in which we started. Every turfman knows that a horse is apt to get out of gear at times and will not run up to the form expected, and that was the case with Lacrimae when Hamilton put up the bars against her. We will race at Memphis and come down the line to Hawthorne and Washington park, and after the latter meeting we will split up our stable and race in the east and at the western tracks, barring, of course, Harlem. We have entered largely in the east and have gone to the expense of building our own stables at the Sheepshead track."

San Francisco, Cal., March 20.—[Special.]—Sam Fullen displayed his racehorse qualities in the fourth race this afternoon. Off absolutely last, six lengths behind the leaders, he ran all over his field in the stretch and won in a gallop from Position, while Sweet Tooth came in third. If he stands up Sam Fullen will bear watching at Chicago this season.

All improvements are given the severest tests under the supervision of experts before being placed on the market.
The world's most eminent musicians, such as Patti, Nordica, De Reszke, and others, have bought Kimball pianos for their personal use.
You will make no mistake if you are guided by such authorities.

KIMBALL SELF-PLAYING PIPE ORGANS, from one which occupies but a trifle more space than upright piano to one of sufficient volume to fill the largest auditorium.

MINES AND MINING.

A BONANZA CHANCE—
5,000 SHARES ONLY AT 50 CENTS.
A WONDERFUL STRIKE.
The GOODSELL MILLING AND MINING CO. MINES are located five miles southwest of the Silver King and Daly West Mines of Park City, Utah, and has seven claims in one body, with 3,600 lineal feet of the same apparent contact lode and same character of ores as the Silver King. The mine office is located at American Fork, Utah, where the ores are brought 18 miles on down grade road to railway, and only 30 miles to Salt Lake smelters.
CAPITALIZATION $350,000, in shares of $1.00 each, full paid and non-assessable, with original treasury reserve of 150,000 shares. Development about 1,000 ft. of tunnel, winzes, and crosscuts.
We have now a 10 ft. vein of smelting ore that assays about $90.00 per ton in silver, lead, and gold. When we had four feet of this ore a month ago we considered it a bonanza, from which dividends were assured. Now we are confident of a product of $10,000 to $20,000 per month. No stamp mill expense necessary.
Last assay, made March 5: Copper, 1 per cent; lead, 42 per cent; silver, ozs., 89 9-10; gold, $3.72 per ton.
Telegram:
B. W. GOODSELL, Chicago:
"Have now ten feet of ore, all high grade. Congratulate all. W. L. GOODSELL, Treas."
We need only a small amount of funds to put on machinery and extra buildings, and to carry us over until the snow is gone and shipments made early in May. After that no more stock will be offered at less than par. This stock should be worth $3.00 per share within a year. Last chance to buy this stock at 50 cents per share. No lots of less than 100 shares accepted.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TRIBUNE.]

MR. JOHN LANE of the Bodley Head has on the press for early publication two volumes of "New Letters and Memorials of Jane Welsh Carlyle." The two volumes contain a collection of hitherto unpublished letters, with an introduction by Sir James Crichton-Browne, F. R. S.

This new batch of letters and memories of Mrs. Carlyle has apparently been made with the distinct idea not only of rehabilitating that much misunderstood woman but also for the rehabilitation of her husband.

These "New Letters and Memorials of Jane Welsh Carlyle" are annotated with loving comments by Thomas Carlyle, and are also supplied with notes by Alexander Carlyle, to whose wife they belong.

Coming to London to live, in 1831, Mrs. Carlyle writes to her mother-in-law in Scotland:

"I have no notion of London housekeeping yet; but am lying back till, with 'weender and amazement,' I have reviewed the ground. One fact I may mention as a sample: potatoes are a penny a pound, so that we pay 3 halfpence for barely as many as we need for a meal. The milk, too, is ridiculously dear, and such stuff after Nooly's! Thank heaven, we have good butter without running to the shops, and Carlyle has fastened a lid with a padlock on the can; but what place unites all the advantages of both town and country."

"For my part I am content. I have everything here my heart desires, that I could have anywhere else, except society, and even that deprivation is not to be considered wholly an evil; if people we like and take pleasure in do not come about us here as in London it is thankfully to be remembered that here 'the wicked cease from troubling and the weary are at rest.' If the knocker makes no sound for weeks together it is so much the better for my nerves. My husband is as good company as reasonable mortal could desire. Every fair morning we ride on horseback for an hour before breakfast (my precious horse knew me again and neighed loud and long when he found himself in his old place). Then we eat such a surprising breakfast of home baked bread, and eggs, etc., as might incite any one that had breakfasted so long in London to write a pastoral. Then Carlyle takes to his writing, while I, like Eve, 'studious of household good,' inspect my house, my garden, my live stock, gather flowers for my drawing room, and lapfuls of eggs; and finally betake myself also to writing, or reading, or making or mending, or whatever work seems fittest. After dinner, and only then, I lie on the sofa and (to my shame be it spoken) sometimes sleep, but oftenest dream waking. In the evening I walk on the moor (how different from Holborn and the Strand!) and read anything that does not exact much attention. Such is my life—agreeable as yet from its novelty, if for nothing else."

The letters are not all written to Carlyle. Some of them are to women friends, others to members of her husband's family. There is an amusing one written to Carlyle, who was visiting the lord bishop of St. David's at the time. She describes a visit from Darwin, whom she had not seen for a week because he had been helping the Wedgwoods to buy mourning for their father. "Good God," she exclaims, "how some people take these things. It made me quite sick to hear of a father gone out of the world, and no other care felt about the matter except that of getting mourning." Then she goes on to say that Darwin was much out of humor about Harriet Martineau. It seems that a fund of £1,300 had been collected for her, and the first thing she did was to get a silversmith's list and mark off £100 worth of plate that she wanted. "Certainly Harriet is going all to nonsense with her vanities," writes Mrs. Carlyle. "Now she will probably be quite angry at these men, who have done so much for her, because they refuse to comply with her whim." In another letter she writes: "I forgot to tell you I saw her the day before I left Liverpool—the picture of rude weatherbeaten health. Of course she was all bustle, and we were only a short time together; but there was not a word about animal magnetism. Her eloquence was chiefly directed against lion liunters, who tormented her existence at the lakes.

When she incloses some buttons that Carlyle, who is at Ecclefechan, has written for:

"Here are your bits of buttons, dearest; which, I think, will suit the taste of a philosopher better than metal prince's feathers. As for the mother-of-pearl! the bare idea was enough to make one scream! When I said to Helen I must go to get some buttons for you, she tossed her head with an air of triumph and remarked: 'Well, it's a mercy there is one thing which the master fancies is to be got in London better than in the country'—a small mercy for which let us be duly grateful."

To a friend she writes:

"My husband has been busy since his return from Scotland; but with no result as yet. He brought all that he had written into the room where I was peacefully darning his stockings the other day, and it was up the chimney in a fine blaze before I knew what it was that he was burning!"

Some one took Mrs. Carlyle to the opera, where she saw the divine Taglioni dance, but evidently she had no taste for such things, for she writes:

"I saw a curious sight the other night, the only one I have been to for a long while—viz.: some thousands of the grandest and most cultivated people in England all gazing in ecstasy, and applauding to death, over a woman, not even pretty, balancing herself on the extreme point of one great toe, and stretching the other foot high into the air—much higher than decency ever dreamt of! It was Taglioni, our chief dancer at the opera; and this is her chief feat, repeated over and over to weariness—at least to my weariness. But duchesses were flinging bouquets at her feet; and not a man (except Carlyle) who did not seem disposed to fling himself."

Mrs. Carlyle could be as sharp with her pen as with her tongue when she chose to be. She writes to Carlyle:

"Yesterday evening I dined at the H——s'; dining there is like sea sickness; one thinks at the time one will never encounter it again; and then the impression wears off, and one thinks perhaps one's constitution has undergone some change, and this time it will be more bearable."

In this same letter she writes:

"Did you know that Alfred Tennyson is to have a pension of £200 a year after all? Peel has stated his intention of recommending him to her gracious majesty, and that is considered final: 'A chaqu' un selon sa capacite!' Lady Harriet told me that he wanted to marry; 'must have a woman to live beside; would prefer a lady, but—cannot afford one; and so must marry a maid servant.' Mrs. Henry Taylor said she was about to write him on behalf of their housemaid, who was quite a superior character in her way."

WRITER OF SHORT STORIES.

Miss Grace Lathrop Collin, whose stories under the title, "Putnam Place," have just been published by the Harpers, is a Smith college girl, who was born at Elmira, N. Y. Her girlhood was spent in Ithaca, where her father was a member of the faculty of Cornell university law school. She was graduated from Smith college in 1896 with the degree of B. L., also taking the degree of M. A. at Columbia university in 1899. Miss Collin lives in Brooklyn. She is averse to the conventional life of society, and devotes most of her time to study and literary work.

A WOMAN'S HARDY GARDEN.

A Good Book of Practical Advice on Flowers.

Among the many out-of-door books published recently few are so practical or more attractive than "A Woman's Hardy Garden," by Helena Ely. While the book modestly claims to be only a series of plain directions as to the planting and care of a garden, it really is something more. It is written by one who knows and loves all flowers, from the earliest snow drops to the last chrysanthemum. With its absolute clearness of style, simplicity and accurate knowledge it will, no doubt, prove a trustworthy guide.

Mrs. Ely is no lover of blossoms forced under glass, but advises long borders planted with all sorts of old fashioned posies, hollyhocks, fox glove, phlox, and larkspur. "Don't follow a landscape gardener," she says. "Live on your place awhile until you yourself are sure what you want and where you want it." She has no sympathy with growing flowers simply for show and she realizes fully what rich returns one may have from a small sum of money wisely spent. Not the least attractive feature of her writing is the sense of humor and mother wit seen throughout the book. Her point of view reminds one of Elizabeth and her garden; in watching and caring for her flowers she finds the same satisfying pleasure and relief from all petty annoyances. Through the long winter evenings she wonders a little if the plants remember her, and though these fanciful musings are only bits between pages of practical directions, they add greatly to the charm of the work. The author loves flowers, also, for the sympathy they create between all sorts and conditions of men and writes delightfully of her "friend the baggage master" and "the woman with six children and a tiny garden, who always had flowers to give away."

The book is provided with a full index and excellent plans for beds and borders. The illustrations, taken from photographs of the author's garden, are beautiful and would tempt one to buy hoe and rake and begin at once. (The Macmillan company.)

HALE ON EMERSON.

Address on the Concord Man by the Venerable Unitarian.

The address which forms the first part of this little volume was delivered before the Brooklyn institute at the ninetieth anniversary of Emerson's birth, and is made up of affectionate reminiscences and grateful appreciation of the Concord philosopher. The strong, simple, practical, every day side of Emerson's character has been too little dwelt upon by his biographers, and for that reason this book, written by a personal friend, well qualified in mind and heart to understand his subject, finds a real place in literature. To the charm of the style is added the freshness of personal experience.

The latter half of the volume consists of two early essays of Emerson written when he was a college undergraduate, and are not included in his collected works. It is interesting to note how the thought and style of the youth, which are staid and unimpassioned, differ from those of the man in his maturity. Yet they are characterized by originality and vigor of treatment, and give promise of unusual intellectual prowess.

This book has been issued before, but was out of print. It has seemed desirable to preserve its material in the present permanent edition.

LEES AND LEAVEN.

New York Story of Today, by Edward W. Townsend.

This is an ingeniously devised, well wrought out, quite impossible tale, related in brisk, unpretending, straightaway fashion. The action passes partly in provincial, partly in metropolitan, New York, and it is pleasingly patent that the writer knows every inch of his ground. Broadway by night is touched in with special deftness and precision—trust the creator of "Chimmie Fadden" for that!—and an exposition of "business" methods in the office of a big sensational newspaper is uncommonly interesting. If true to fact—and no doubt it is true to fact—it should prove a profitable eye opener to intending or commencing journalists.

Of the eight or ten principal characters in the book two are "well found" and capitally hit off; one, together with four or five pendant personages, is pure burlesque and extravaganza—rather well done in kind, but quite out of tone with the rest of the story; the others are unremarkable.

Color, atmosphere, aroma, suggestion of "the infinite and eternal verities"; the products, in short, of temperament, as distinguished from intelligence, however acute and well trained; the qualities that differentiate the work of the artist from that of the mere craftsman, however competent—of these the book shows never a trace. Still, doubtless, the average fiction reader will be well enough entertained with it in an idle hour—and the average fiction reader might do far worse. (McClure, Phillips & Co.)

HOW MILLIONAIRES LIVE.

A Book About Their Households and Their Domestic Economy.

"Millionaire Households and Their Domestic Economy" confesses to its character in its title. It is written by Mary Elizabeth Carter, "a deserter from the ranks of superintending housekeepers." A great deal of practical information is given about the division of labor in elaborate households and the manner of best caring for that vast quantity of paraphernalia with which millionaires surround themselves. Many an old chatelaine might find it of value in enabling her to reconstruct some of her ideas of management, and the young millionaires, entering upon the direction of her own ménage, cannot fail to find in these sensible pages good advice as to the conduct of her house—and her own responsibilities toward her servants.

Some recipes said to be rare are printed at the conclusion of the book—also suggestions as to how to extinguish "Croton bugs" and "scarlet runners." These "small deer" are known to a less euphemistic world under other titles, but one realizes that even a "deserter" from the ranks of superintending housekeepers must continue to be genteel. Genteel is the word, isn't it? However, gentility aside, New York is carrying her arrogant provincialism a little too far when she takes our friendly water bug from us and calls it a Croton bug. One realizes now what is meant by carping westerners who say that New York recognizes nothing on the wrong side of the Alleghanies. (Published by D. Appleton & Co., New York.)

AMERICAN POLITICAL THEORIES.

A Good Book for Students by C. Edward Merriam.

In his "History of American Political Theories" (Macmillan), Mr. C. Edward Merriam traces the historical development of American political theories from the colonial days down to the present time. The political philosophy of the colonists is first considered, with especial attention to the significance of the puritans. The doctrines of 1776 and their expression in state constitutions is made a subject of investigation and is followed by an examination of the reaction from these ideas as seen in the Federalist and in the school of which Adams was the great theoretical exponent.

The characteristic doctrines of the Jeffersonian democracy are carefully analyzed and the further expansion and expression of these ideas in the Jacksonian democracy is described, the political philosophy of the slavery controversy is examined, and the texts of the pro and anti slavery parties studied in detail. The development of political ideas in connection with the great conflict over the nature of the union is discussed at length and the principles of the great schools of interpretation compared from the standpoint of modern political science. Recent tendencies in political speculation are taken up and contrasted with the doctrines characteristic of earlier days. Throughout the discussion the various types of political theory are considered in connection with the facts of American history, and the intimate relation between the ideas and the environment is strongly emphasized.

Dickinson's Magazine.

Dickinson's Magazine is a newcomer in the field of periodicals. It is edited by Dr. Frances Dickinson and Mrs. Alice S. Blount, the latter being the owner. It is devoted to "politics, science, literature, and art," but the advertisements are all those of medical supply houses. Considerable space is devoted to the doings of women's clubs. The individuality of Dr. Dickinson is stamped upon the magazine in many places. If any one can make it go, she is the one.

ELIA W. PEATTIE ON CONRAD'S YOUTH AND ISHAM'S UNDER THE ROSE.

THE complaisant reviewer who undertakes to classify "Youth" by Joseph Conrad will find himself confronted by an unwonted task. To begin with, he perceives in the three stories which compose the book a vague, yet apparently strong, purpose, a solemn and almost sinister eloquence, a series of fate-driven heroes, with whom one suffers a poignant sympathy, and an inconclusiveness about the dénouements, which is so tremendously lifelike as to be fairly overwhelming. I have often thought, as I finished a tidy and conventional tale, that it was a great mercy the artists tied the ends of their threads, since nature and fate are so careless about the way they leave things dangling. This particularly helps to reassure shivering mortals, who, aghast at the uncertainty of life and the inconclusiveness of death, like to be beguiled by those little providences, the story tellers, into the idea that mortals are carefully looked after, and will be at last located in the places that were intended for them from the beginning.

Mr. Conrad does not so coddle his readers. He writes as one who, having beheld life and death, having questioned the stars and the hearts of youth, having looked at age, sought knowledge, and inquired into the constituents of wisdom, is inclined to admit that he has received no satisfactory answer to anything. But he does not submit this angrily, as Gorky does. He has not the manner of a pessimist. He merely affirms that about the best of life appears to be the illusions of youth. However, it may be that Mr. Conrad is still young, and that when he is older he will find that the half knowledge of age has some value and some joy.

It is said by the publishers that Mr. Conrad is a Pole, and that his facile and graphic English is not native, but acquired. This is interesting, indeed, particularly in view of the fact that he has used that instrument not only with perfect correctness but with more passion than most of his English contemporaries. Another curious thing is that, notwithstanding Mr. Conrad's origin, he has, in this work, seemingly identified himself with the Anglo-Saxon race, and has stood for those distinctive virtues on which the Anglo-Saxon prides himself.

Not since Mr. Kipling wrote "The Man that Would Be King," have stories with such wild and haunting adventure been set before the fiction loving public. But the intent of Mr. Conrad's tales differs in many respects from Kipling's. The "White Man's Burden" becomes by his delineation the white man's devilish assumption—his relentless and evil usurpation of rights, and his ultimate curse.

"Heart of Darkness," the second story in the book, is a tremendous and awful picture of a savage country invaded by the white man at the worst of his venality and arrogance. It would be difficult to forget—having once read—this conception of the impiety of civilized man's intrusion into savagery; of his precipitate anticipation, so to speak, of the processes of evolution. The point of contact between the superstition, the docility, the evil power of the savage, and the colossal assumption of tyranny, the misapplied ingenuity, and the subtle intelligence of the civilized man is fearful. Whatever is worst in each comes to the surface, as it has, probably, in the saddened Philippines and in many another land where men have been coerced into relations with the commercial, individualistic world.

Nor can one feel that the character of the men in charge of this savage country—the agents and overseers of the government and companies allotted concessions there—are out of keeping with the probabilities. In the character of Kurtz, a monstrous, domineering creature of marvelous power for mastery, there is more than a reminder of Baranoff, that brutal "Overman" who reduced Alaska to a taxable property, and by his amazing brutality, ability, orderliness, and chicanery built up a profitable country, which the United States has not, even at its lavish and slovenly worst, been able to render valueless.

It may be that England, a civilization older than ours, with men born to civic and military service, and taking these labors as a hereditary charge, may be as faithful as Kipling always wishes us to believe to the charges laid upon them in far countries—though Richard Harding Davis, who is not a reckless perverter of fact, gravely bore witness to the contrary. But even the most loyal of Americans must admit that our keen adventurers, with their sudden assumption of authority, and their national eye to business, are not reliable guardians for tantalizing, vicious, and treacherous savages. Association between the two cannot but result in outrages of the most disgusting character. At least, so hundreds of thousands of Americans urge, and if such wish a picture to give eloquence to their arguments, let them read the second story in "Youth," where a man of terrible power cowed a race of black men and made them his servitors.

That strange, monochrome or monologue, "Typhoon," with which Mr. Conrad astonished his readers a while ago, giving them the impress of his strange compelling, and erratic power, was not more arresting than this wild book—this unusual and stirring argument for the humanity of men, for the dearness of dreams—each man to his own dream!—for the divine theory of human rights. It seems impossible to give to this bold and peculiar writer just the right word of praise. But it may be as well to leave him unclassified. He is for good—he is unique. McClure, Phillips & Co., New York, publish the book.

The most fetching romance since "The Prisoner of Zenda" is "Under the Rose," by Frederick S. Isham. It is set in the court of Francis of France—that interesting and insincere monarch who watched the fires of the renaissance die out in the heart of the world. Its hero is a court jester, its heroine a fair follower of the princess, and the scene of action is now in the hall where the petted fools of the royalties and nobles meet, now the dungeons of the palace Francis wrested from his high constable, now in the open field where men meet in deadly earnest at death doing, and now the joust, at which the ladies of a belated court of love look on with eyes no less amorous, even if less simple, than in the days of true chivalry.

That interesting and arrogant group of dames, Catherine de Medici, Diane of Poitiers, and Margaret of Navarre, figure in the tale—Rabelais, the duke de Guise, Henry of Navarre, and many more swaggering masculine figures serving as background—but the pretty tale concerns itself not much with these personages. They give excuse for the fortunes, good and ill, of the reckless and insouciant hero and a debonaire maid.

Mr. Isham knows his time well, and the reader cannot but appreciate the author's self-restraint in withholding the more obvious evidences of his study and employing his knowledge only that he might provide the proper atmosphere for his tale. That dull pulsed creature, seeking for "improvemen," who supplements a Chautauquan course with the reading of historical novels, will not find here pabulum for her inquiring brain. The story is a romance pure and simple, set in the daring court of a perfidious gentleman of undeniable taste, and setting forth sweetly the joys of true love even in a maudering time.

The story is consciously dramatic, and it is all but ready for the stage as it stands. People enter at the proper cues; bridges sink at desirable moment; the hero is saved in the nick o' time. None of the realist's mishaps—none of those avoidable catastrophes which in the books of sadder men are permitted to overtake the unwary! Here one is confident of being in good company and attaining victory.

It is easy to foresee popularity for the book. It has an attractive cover of green cloth with conventionalized roses. It seems almost necessary to say that Howard Chandler Christy—that overworked artist—has illustrated the book. These pictures are richly colored—and are, indeed, remarkable examples of what can be done in the way of color printing. Nothing more attractive has been seen in any of the year's novels. ELIA W. PEATTIE.

CREATOR OF "CHIMMIE FADDEN."

It is some time since Mr. Townsend made his first essay in fiction, and it seems to have been successful enough to tempt him once more. The second venture is called "Lees and Leaven," and, like the other, it is a story of New York City life. McClure, Phillips & Co. publish it.

BOOK GOSSIP IN LONDON.

[Copyright: 1903: By the New York Times.]
[BY CABLE TO THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE.]

LONDON, March 20.—Messrs. A. & C. Black publish Prof. Percy Gardner's "Oxford Crossroads." The author, who was a Cambridge man but holds the professorship of classical archæology at Oxford for sixteen years, regards the institution of the Cecil Rhodes scholarships as marking an epoch in Oxford's history. His book deals with the educational ideals of Oxford abroad, which Prof. Gardner says are the natural result of the American system of university teaching for the last twenty years, which have seen enormous growth and spread of universities in America and an immense rise in their standards of knowledge and scientific attainment. At present he holds there is a tendency at Oxford to level up athletics and level down studies. If Oxford determines not to abandon its old ways he is sure such influence on English thought and learning which she might claim will pass from her, possibly to London, possibly to Boston.

Dr. Robert Munro has written "Schleiermacher, Personal and Speculative," which Alexander, Gardner & Paisley have published. The book is well spoken of by good judges. In his preface the author declares that Friedrich Schleiermacher's name is one of the greatest in the history of modern thought. He was a distinguished theologian, preacher, philosopher, moralist, and statesman, yet to the English speaking people he is little more than a name.

A. J. Boger has written the story of the career of Gen. Bacon at Waterloo, in the Spanish peninsula, and here in England. At the age of 16 years Bacon left England with a commission in a light dragoon regiment. Subsequently he was exchanged into the Tenth Hussars, and with that regiment fought at Waterloo. He had a picturesque career, about which nothing adequate hitherto has been written. Bacon married Lady Charlotte Hardy, to whom Byron dedicated "Childe Harold."

Methuen has published the sixth volume of John Murray's new edition of Byron's poetical works. It contains a fragment of the seventeenth canto of "Don Juan," which has never been published before. Countess Warwick's "History of Warwick Castle and Its Earls," including the great kingmaker, is now being printed in two volumes. A striking series of portraits serve as illustrations.

Hutchinson is the publisher of the latest addition to the English men of letters series, the "Life of Mrs. Gaskell," which Clement K. Shorter will write. He is also writing a "Life of George Borrow" for another series.

John Lane will publish the new edition of Dr. Richard Garnett's "Twilight of the Gods," which the author has enlarged by the addition of several stories.

Mr. Lawson's New Story.

Elsworth Lawson is the name of the author of a novel with an unusual title, "From the Unvarying Star," published this month by the Macmillan company. The scene is laid in Yorkshire, the author's English home. The hero is a young minister who brings to his new parish his sister, who has committed a grave social fault. He conceals her story, and is slandered by an evil minded deacon. The heroine of the story is the girl he loves. The book is not a "tragedy, though it has all the elements of a tragedy in the opening. It is far removed from the problem novel in its unconventionality, its freshness of insight, and its glimpses into experience. There is an element of passion in the author's work, underlying a genuine religious feeling. So it may be left to the reader an unconventional story on a high spiritual plane, and at the same time a passionate love story.

Hermann Klein's Reminiscences.

Hermann Klein, who will tell readers of the April Century about "Modern Musical Celebrities," was a prominent musical critic in London for thirty years, his work bringing him in touch with nearly every figure known in the musical world since 1870. The April paper will record Mr. Klein's personal meeting with Verdi, Wagner, Gounod, Liszt, and Tschaikowsky on the occasion of the last visit of each to London. Later articles will treat of famous singers and other notables in the world of music.

[SPECIAL CORRESPONDENCE OF THE TRIBUNE.]

PARIS, March 10.—"Mme. de Staël et Napoleon," by Paul Gautier, published by Plon, is one of the most interesting books yet published, showing the political rôle of women during the career of Napoleon. Naturally the conqueror of Montenotte, Millesimo, Mondovi, Cherasco, Lodi, Lonato, Mantoue, Roveredo, Bassano, Arcole, and Rivoli, a fascinating man of 28, received a great many letters from women just as the Kitcheners and Marchands of today, who are hardly able to count their mail.

Every woman in Paris during Napoleon's time had her fair head turned by his first brilliant exploits, and among the many declarations of "loving friendship" was one which particularly attracted his attention, a woman who thus expressed herself: "You are Scipion and Tancrede allying the simple virtues of the first to the brilliant actions of the second." This enthusiastic letter writer did all in her power to turn Bonaparte from his conjugal duties. One of her many devices—all used in her letter writing—was to ridicule Josephine.

"It is a monstrosity," she wrote, "the union of a genius to a little, insignificant Creole, incapable of appreciating him."

When these letters reached him the young general invariably laughed at them. "The woman is mad," he once said to Bourrienne, his secretary, and again: "A woman of intelligence, a pretender of sentiment, to compare herself with Josephine! I will not answer such letters." The writer was a grande dame—Germaine Necker, baronne de Staël, daughter of Jacques Necker, a Swiss banker, general controller of finances under Louis XVI., who had sincerely loved the philanthropic doctrines which had hastened the end of the reign of the unfortunate king. She had, one might say, been rocked in the revolutionary religion of the political leaders of the day and her advances to Napoleon were more towards the genius of the "pacificator" than towards the man. In the republican general Mme. de Staël hailed the aurore of a new era, or, as she called him, the "best republican in France."

With great and respectful devotion Mme. de Staël sought an occasion to meet her hero face to face, which she accomplished in the salon of the Citizen Talleyrand. He was so pale, so thin, so fatigued upon that occasion that she concluded that "twenty battles won were becoming to his youth and his pallor made him all the more interesting." It would almost seem as if Mme. de Staël had a prophetic presentiment of the coming greatness of her hero and crazy to attract his attention she invented coquetry after coquetry to win him—throwing herself in his way whenever the occasion permitted, and, after indefatigable efforts, finally managed to have her five minutes' conversation with him at Talleyrand's ball. Unfortunately, Gen. Bonaparte detested women who, like Mme. de Staël, had pretensions towards a political influence. The disastrous loveliness of "La Pompadour" haunted his mind, a sentiment shared by all his contemporary revolutionary friends, and one which explains the disgrace of Marie Antoinette, Mme. Roland, and Theroigne de Mericourt. In the short interview the future emperor and the celebrated "femme de lettres" soon perceived the mutual antagonism which grew bitterer through succeeding years. These animosities between the two form the "fond" of Gautier's book. The incomparable volubility of Mme. de Staël kept Napoleon from sleeping and the thought of her alone irritated him, her writings disgusted him, her politics annoyed him.

On her side, she confided to Lucien Bonaparte that she became foolish before his brother from trying to please him. "I know nothing when I try to talk with him, and I want to speak to him. I seek my words, turn my phrases, and try to force him to occupy himself with me, and I grow as stupid as a goose." Think of Mme. de Staël growing stupid as a goose when she wanted to make an impression!

"I understand," replied Napoleon when the remark was repeated to him. "Her astonished genius tumbles before mine."

The victory of Marengo displeased Mme. de Staël, and in her memoirs she wrote of it: "I had hoped that Bonaparte would be beaten." This wish later became a fixed idea, and she considered herself in a state of war with the greatest of warriors. "Genius," said she, "is also power," and she "girded her loins" to battle with the power of the formidable Napoleon.

"Delphine," which appeared in 1802, contained an immoderate praise of the English, Napoleon's enemies. "It must be admitted," says Gautier, "that this systematic admiration of the foreigner turned into a real mania. Naturally, this literary campaign furiously irritated Napoleon, and he used hard means to put an end to it. His letters to the police were wild missives of anger, and his soldiers nearly killed their steeds bearing such messages as this to the minister of the police:

"Do not allow that rascal of a Mme. de Staël to approach Paris. I know that she is not far away," and the illustrious writer so haunted him that he organized a whole police force of his own outside of those controlled by Fouche, to whom he wrote:

"I am sorry that you are so poorly informed. Mme. de Staël is probably still in Paris. She has had many dinners with the gens de lettres. If her head had not been filled with illusions all this would not have taken place, and she would be tranquil. In not taking from her every hope of ever returning to Paris her misfortunes and disagreeable scenes are only increased, for I shall have her put to order by the gendarmerie."

And one can but think that in Napoleon's time it evidently took a good deal to rout a literary woman.

The importance, however, which Napoleon attached to De Staël's writing was not in the least exaggerated. He was too modern not to realize the value of public opinion, and his fury showed no bounds when in 1810 his director of libraries placed upon his desk the sheets of her new book, "L'Allemagne," an apotheosis of Germanic virtues when Germans were everywhere rising against Napoleon. Her expulsion from France and request to sail for America followed, but she managed to remain in Europe, an evil genius for Napoleon. Through all her movements Gautier portrays Mme. de Staël, and exposes her participation in the intrigue which led Bernadotte to join the coalition of kings against Napoleon. Too late she realised

SCIENTIFIC SIDELIGHTS.

Compiled by James C. Fernald. Funk & Wagnalls company.

Mr. Fernald, who was one of the Standard Dictionary editors, has compiled a book which is of value to those who desire short cuts across the scientific field. There are no prefaces, no homilies, no long drawn arguments, nor tedious enumerations. All the tiresome work has been done for the reader by the editor. The authors have been selected, the volumes read, the dull parts skipped, and, wherever a bright gem was hidden, it has been picked up and set so as to catch the light. One who thinks of "science" as something dry, dreary, technical, and forbidding, with abstruse theories uttered in "words of learned length and thundering sound," will find this volume a revelation of a new world.

The authors quoted are those whose names are each of itself a warrant for the authority and merit of the quotation. In a rapid glance down the list one catches the names of Agassiz, Argyll, Avebury (better known as Sir John Lubbock), Bacon, Bain, Benjamin, Berkeley, Boucher, Brehm, Brown-Sequard, Carpenter, Chapman, Dana, Darwin, Dawson, Drummond, Faraday, Fiske, Flammarion, Geikie, Gill, Gray, Hæckel, Henry, Humboldt, Huxley, Iles, James, Ladd Langley, Liebig, Lyell, Mason, Mill, Münsterberg, Newcomb, Pasteur, Proctor, Reclus, Russell, Shaler, Sully, Tyndall, Wallace, Wilson, Wundt, Young, and many others of world-wide fame. Besides the quotations from works written in English, numerous selections are given from the works of French and German scientists, especially translated for this volume.

Four full indexes of "General Topics," "Cross References," "Proper Names," and "Authors and Publishers," make all matters contained in the volume readily accessible.

Spring Books in Boston.

The following books not previously included in the spring announcements of Houghton, Mifflin & Co. will be published by them this season: "Trent's Trust," by Bret Harte; "Alice Freeman Palmer," a report of a memorial service; "Ruskin's Comments on Dante," with an introduction by Charles Eliot Norton; "The Correspondence Between Ralph Waldo Emerson and Hermann Grimm," edited by Frederick W. Holls; "The Confiscation of John Chandler's Estate," by Andrew M. Davis; and "Of Education," by R. R. Bowker.

Spoils of Empire.

The wondrous splendor and power of Mexico in the time of Montezuma furnish the rich historical background to an absorbing romance entitled "The Spoils of Empire," which Francis Newton Thorpe has written. Mr. Thorpe is a well known lawyer, lecturer, and writer on historical subjects. His "Constitutional History of the United States" is a recognized authority. Little, Brown & Co. will publish the book this spring.

that in trying to bring about the downfall of Napoleon she had struck a blow at France. Her repentance was sincere, and Gautier thinks she should be forgiven, for with all her faults she had penetrated the secret of Napoleon, the weakness under his greatness. He even goes so far as to state that her deception at finding that Napoleon did not remain the apostle of liberty was greater than her feminine indignation that her charms produced no effect upon him and her literature no impression. GRACE CORNEAU.

SOCIALIST AND THE PRINCE.

A Novel of the Sand Lots Agitation by Mrs. Older.

The anti-Chinese agitation in San Francisco is the foundation on which Mrs. Fremont Older rests her first novel, "The Socialist and the Prince" (Funk & Wagnalls company). Mrs. Older takes a great crisis as the theme of her story, but she discards the real characters who were identified with the events she refers to and substitutes instead characters of her own imagination, who are entirely swayed by the love motives which form the thread of her story and not by the motives which animated the real men who were concerned in the great "sand lots" agitation in California.

"The Socialist and the Prince" will make better reading for the younger generation whose heads are not cluttered with recollections of the real events and personages of the events Mrs. Older uses as the basis of her story. Mrs. Older makes a socialist named Paul Stryne the leader of the anti-Chinese agitation, the central figure of the "sand lots" meetings, and the originator of the immortal phrase, "The Chinese must go." The sand lots meetings, unfortunately, were not so long ago but that most of us remember that Denis Kearney was the man who did the things ascribed to Paul Stryne. But Denis Kearney certainly was not influenced in what he did by love of a millionaire's daughter named Theodosia Peyton, nor did he fight a duel with an Italian prince, his rival, and after inflicting what was supposed to be a mortal wound on the prince and losing an election in consequence flee the country and afterwards die while leading a mob in Italy against the palace where dwelt in peace and happiness the prince and his young wife, who had been Theodosia Peyton. Of course, novelists reserve to themselves the right to take what liberties they please with historical incidents and personages, and the only objection that can be made against Mrs. Older is that she purports to give us "a novel of California life, with the scenes and action in the days of the anti-Chinese labor agitation." Most of her scenes are invented and the action entirely so.

The story chiefly concerns itself with the whims of Theodosia Peyton, the pampered daughter of a millionaire, who in one chapter smiles on the socialist and in the next on the prince. Mrs. Older's socialist, Paul Stryne, is hardly the sort of agitator that can be regarded as typical. He was highly educated, possessed court manners, came suddenly from nobody knew where, and was at once picked up by the laboring classes and made a sort of king, to whom the workingmen bowed down blindly. The American workingmen are hardly in the habit of picking up an unknown man and making an idol out of him. One who wins his place as a leader among them only does so after years of hard work and after giving repeated proof of his loyalty and devotion to the principles for which they contend. Mrs. Older's socialist and workingman's idol was either a most remarkable man, the like of whom has never been seen, or else she believes that the masses are easily dominated and controlled.

In spite of its many inaccuracies and absurdities there are many thrilling bits of action in the book and the story is decidedly interesting.

Poets of Transcendentalism.

In "The Poets of Transcendentalism," an anthology (Houghton, Mifflin & Co.), the editor, George Willis Cooke, has collected, for the first time, the best verse produced during the most extraordinary period of American literature—that which saw the rise of the transcendental movement. It was a movement of inquiry and revolt, of the assertion of the worth and dignity of man. It included figures like Emerson, Thoreau, Alcott, Margaret Fuller, Ellery Channing, Jones Very, Higginson, Christopher Cranch, and a host of lesser known writers. The verse of the forty-two authors represented in this volume is distinctively American. The principle of choice has been that of the transcendental view of life, and the result is to present that famous historic aspect of American thought in a noteworthy fashion. It is a book for lovers of poetry as well as students of American life.

An introductory essay and biographical notes by Mr. Cooke add to the value of the volume.

Encyclopedia of Common Things.

The Educational company of this city has published the "Educational Encyclopedia of Common Things," compiled by Richard Linthicum. It is a volume of over 500 pages, divided into two parts, the first being devoted to the encyclopedia and the second to "civics," a description of the different departments of the government, the duties of officials, and some public documents. The encyclopedia covers a multitude of subjects upon which the average citizen should be posted, but on many of which he is ignorant. Of course such a work is greatly abridged, but there is no doubt that the book will prove useful to any who buy it.

By J. LAURENCE LAUGHLIN

Professor of Political Economy of the University of Chicago.

This most important work is the first of a truly monumental series of books planned by the author, perhaps the first American authority in this branch of economics, on the general subject of money.

In this volume he clears the field for discussion of practical details, such as metallic money and its history in the United States, paper money here and in foreign countries, and banking, by establishing the theory underlying them. The book is an elaborately organized treatment of principles.

ELLIOTT FLOWER'S

Political Novel

THE SPOILSMEN.

PRICE, $1.50.

A story of municipal politics, the scene of which is laid in Chicago. While not attempting to depict actual conditions in any particular locality, the author shows a state of affairs common to practically all large cities. The political methods employed, however, are in most instances taken from the actual experiences of men who have served the public in some capacity or other, while the stories told of some of the characters are literally true.

Two reviews from advance sheets:

CHICAGO TRIBUNE:

"Political and social personages of the Twenty-first ward have been 'put in a book.' It is called 'The Spoilsmen.' Elliott Flower of Chicago is the author and L. C. Page & Co. are the publishers. . . . . half disguised, but recognizable, is one of the personages, both political and social. . . . . not disguised at all, is another personage, entirely political. Then there are . . . . . and sundry other politicians, good, bad and indifferent, mostly bad. . . . . There are numerous other 'senators,' alderman, state representatives and ward committeeman, who may be recognized as actual personages by the more alert among their friends."

CHICAGO EVENING POST:

"Elliott Flower, whose 'Policeman Flynn' attested his acquaintance with certain characteristic aspects of the American city, has written a novel of municipal politics which should interest many readers. . . . . The characters are obviously suggested by certain actual figures in local politics, and while the conditions he depicts are general in large cities in the United States, they will be unusually familiar to local readers. . . . . Ned Bell, the 'Old Man' or political boss; Billy Ryan, his lieutenant; 'Rainbow John,' the Alderman; are likely to be identified . . . . . and other personages of the story are traceable to their prototypes."

THE SOCIALIST AND THE PRINCE

By MRS. FREMONT OLDER

A Novel of Californian Life

The scenes and action are in the days of the anti-Chinese labor agitation. Paul Stryne, leader of the workingmen, and Ruspoli, an Italian prince, are rivals for the hand of Theodosia Peyton, the daughter of a millionaire. There are many situations of dramatic power, from the love scenes to the street riots, and from the altruist's lofty orations to the jealous lover's duel with Prince Ruspoli. The author's style is remarkably crisp and racy. She has a striking aptitude for epigram and witty phrase. The reader is led rapidly from page to page with a rare sense of exhilaration, and a feeling that at last he has found something fresh and unusual.

HON. GEORGE C. PERKINS, U. S. Senator from California, formerly Governor of California: "In depicting the Socialist she has used with great effect the events of the anti-Chinese agitation in San Francisco during the latter 70's, and has truthfully portrayed many of the scenes of those exciting times. She has also shown in what manner the mass of workingmen were then gained over to the movement, and how they were subsequently organized into a political power in the state. . . . None the less admirable is her character drawing in the case of the heroine and the 'Prince.' Most of the scenes in which they are the principal actors have great dramatic force."

SCRIBNER'S for APRIL

THE TREASURY. By F. A. Vanderlip, formerly Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. This is the third of the important series of papers on "The Government of the United States," and is a most brilliant and lucid account of the country's great financial department. Mr. Vanderlip says in the opening of his article: "Astonishment at the extent and diversity of interests embraced in the Treasury Department must have been one of the first sensations of most Secretaries after taking up the duties of the office." This astonishment will be felt by all readers who follow Mr. Vanderlip's description of its vast activities and problems.

BELOW THE WATER LINE. By Benjamin Brooks. A description of the work of engineers and stokers on the ocean steamships. Mr. Brooks has been an assistant in the engine-room of one of the great Transatlantic liners, and the dangerous and exhausting work of the engineer and his duties below deck have never been pictured with such vividness. The article discloses a new talent in the field of narrative writing that cannot fail to thrill the reader. The pictures by Edwin B. Child, in colors and in black and white, were drawn by the artist from the actual scenes.

AN EXPLORER-NATURALIST IN THE ARCTIC. By Andrew J. Stone. Mr. Stone's position on the staff of the American Museum of Natural History gives him distinction and authority. His account of his experiences in camping for long periods in the Arctic regions, and his description of unusual phases of Arctic life and scenery make his article novel in explorers' literature.

JOHN FOX'S SERIAL STORY. "The Little Shepherd of Kingdom Come," continues with increasing interest.

F. HOPKINSON SMITH contributes a short story, "A Procession of Umbrellas." With illustrations by E. M. Ashe.

TEN CO-EDUCATED GIRLS TWO HUNDRED YEARS AGO. By Mrs. H. M. Plunkett. The ten girls were the sisters of the celebrated Jonathan Edwards, and the author tells of their remarkable education.

WEEK'S REVIEW OF TRADE

ONLY ONE UNFAVORABLE FACTOR IS REPORTED.

Business Circles Inclined to Wait on Fear of What May Happen Rather than Because of Anything That Has Actually Occurred — Reports from the West Are Especially Satisfactory—Iron and Steel Industries Unable to Keep Up with Demand.

New York, March 20.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly review of trade tomorrow will say:

"Only one distinctly unfavorable factor is reported in the business situation, and it exists more in the fear of what will happen than through anything that has actually occurred. Several strikes are in progress, but none that seriously hampers industry, although many controversies are threatened and may interrupt trade unless agreements are speedily reached. Progress has been made in relieving traffic blockades and deliveries are more prompt, yet railway facilities need much extension if they are to keep pace with the nation's growth.

"Jobbing trade is large, and the advancing season stimulates retail sales in many lines. Reports from the west are especially satisfactory, agriculturists making extensive improvements, notably in the purchase of the most modern machinery. Buying of spring and summer merchandise is heavy for the interior, and mills are resuming that have long been idle because coke could not be secured.

"A careful canvass of building operations at the leading cities makes a fair comparison with last year outside of Chicago, where special conditions caused exceptional activity in 1902. Returns are unanimous in disclosing a decrease compared with 1901, however, which was the banner year in this respect. The high cost of material and wages of labor are undoubtedly retarding influences at the present time. Railway earnings thus far available for March show an increase of 14.6 per cent over last year and 26.1 per cent over 1901.

In Iron and Steel Trade.

"Prospects in the iron and steel industry are still conspicuously encouraging. Only two drawbacks of serious importance are seen—railway congestion and labor disputes. The former has greatly diminished with settled weather and coke is moved freely to blast furnaces, while pig iron and other products reach their destination with less interruption.

"Quotations are fully held at Pittsburg and a large purchase of bessemer iron for delivery in the last half of the year is still under consideration. Some wire products and cast pipe are advanced in price, and, as many mills are unable to deliver billets for several months, foreign steel is still purchased freely. Pig iron is continually arriving from abroad and finds a ready market.

"Textile markets are only fairly active, the buying at first hands for home account being on a moderate scale and forward business indifferent except in the case of a few specialties. Unquestionably the undertone of the cotton goods market is strong. Demand for heavy weight for woolens has decreased, most new orders being for the cheaper grades. More cancellations of early orders are reported. Much better conditions prevail in the dress goods market, both as to staples and fancies.

"New England shoe shops report increased sales, western jobbers placing orders for August and September delivery. Leather is more active, and tanners are not carrying surplus stocks. The market is in a healthy condition. Another general reduction is reported in domestic hides, but foreign dry hides average higher, despite larger receipts.

"Failures this week numbered 220 in the United States, against 209 last year, and 22 in Canada, against 31 a year ago."

As Seen by Bradstreet's.

"Excessive moisture in the form of heavy rains and floods, or of merely bad roads, is an apparent drawback to distributive trade. Over against this, however, is to be placed an improvement in the jobbing trade at some leading western centers, a shade better than heretofore reported collections, a perceptible easing of the car shortage trouble, and increased strength in the iron and steel trades.

"There is even some, though perhaps more apparent than real, improvement in the labor situation, some strikes having been avoided or settled, but labor disturbance is still a possible unsettling feature, particularly in the building trades. The Easter season is one of the latest on record, but actual spring weather conditions are operative, as may be judged from the fact that lower lake navigation is already pretty well opened. The next two weeks will see applied the test of demand in retail lines. Gross railway earnings for the first half of March show an aggregate gain over last year of fully 12 per cent.

Cotton Goods Stronger.

"In prices, features are the further slight strengthening of cotton. Cotton goods have displayed exceptional strength, though a waiting tendency as regards new business is noted at first hands. No effect of the higher level of prices in the shape of checked demand is announced by jobbers, however, who almost universally report the dry goods business this spring as the largest on record.

"The feature in the cereal markets has been the general easing of prices, sympathized in by pork and lard, among hog products, mainly the result of increased pressure of supplies and smaller export business, though at the decline the tendency of foreigners to come in is noted. Hides are slightly weaker, while leather and finished products continue strong. Tin and copper, among the metals, after quite steady advance, have weakened slightly.

Still Unequal to Demand.

"Strength of prices is a leading feature in iron and steel at all markets, both at home and abroad. Domestic production is still unequal to demand. Foreign markets for pig iron and steel billets are reported higher. Eastern seaboard prices are also firmer and steel billets are higher at leading western producing centers. More is doing in iron ore in the central west, but higher prices seem to have deflected consumers from lake to imported ores on the eastern seaboard.

"Finished materials are still active the country over. Western mills are sold far ahead. Wire and wire products are especially active and tinplate mills are running full time.

"Hardware is active at all markets. Rather more inquiry is noted for pig iron at Birmingham, though buyers and sellers are still reported apart. Material for pipe manufacturing has been advanced in price and in structural material, the only unfavorable feature is the continuance of labor trouble in construction lines. Lead is higher on the week, but copper and tin are lower.

Exports of Grain.

"Wheat, including flour, exports for the week ending March 19 aggregate 2,395,598 bushels, against 3,366,796 last week, 4,326,804 in this week a year ago, and 3,256,644 in 1901. Wheat exports since July 1 aggregate 170,946,328 bushels, against 191,494,597 last season and 146,473,063 in 1900.

"Corn exports aggregate 3,407,068 bushels, against 3,257,999 last week, 339,891 a year ago, and 2,605,082 in 1901. For the fiscal year exports are 40,887,258 bushels, against 23,994,701 last season and 141,588,120 in 1901.

"Business failures for the week ending with March 19 number 194, against 176 last week, 197 in the like week of 1902, 231 in 1901, 192 in 1900, and 182 in 1899. In Canada for the week failures number fourteen, as against twenty last week, and twenty-six in this week a year ago."

Gains in Bank Clearings.

IN THE NEW YORK MARKETS.

Quotations on Dry Goods, Coffee, Butter, Poultry, Metals, and Other Special Lines.

NEW YORK, March 20.—Dry goods—The market was slow and uneventful, but sellers show no inclination to make concessions ... to agree to any offers of buyers that are at all under the market. Jobbers are doing only a moderate business with nearby retail trade, but reports from the country are that retail trade is increasing more favorably.

Coffee, Spot and Future.

Coffee—The market opened steady at unchanged prices and ruled quiet. It closed barely steady at a decline of 5 points. The early news was conflicting, even if there had not been any changes reported, and was hardly sufficient to produce any particular enthusiasm in the local market. Total transactions were 34,000 bags. The spot market was irregular and quiet, with quotations on the basis of 5½c for Rio No. 7.

CHICAGO LIVE STOCK MARKET.

Movement of Cattle, Hogs, Sheep, and Lambs, with the Range of Prices and Comparisons.

Estimated receipts of cattle here yesterday were 1,500, hogs 10,000, and sheep 3,000. Not enough steers arrived to change conditions in the beef cattle trade. Current prices are about the same as a week ago, but the extreme heavies are not as popular as the handy weights. Fat cows and heifers closed higher for the week. Feeder trade has been active all week and prices strong. The light run of hogs gave prices a good boost yesterday, the average being around 10c over Thursday's prices, while some of the droves cost a shade more than on Monday. The top was $7.65.

Cattle.

The small run did not afford enough fat steers to create much of a market. Eastern buyers needed a few to fill out shipments, and for such cattle as they could use they were ready to pay steady prices. There was some local demand also, and the trade closed fully steady, with prices a shade better than on Monday, but practically the same as at the close last week. None of the choice qualities were in sight yesterday, the best bringing around $5.15. Butcher market was active, but with supplies light business was of necessity limited in volume. On the general run of good, fat cows prices show an advance of 10c to 15c for the week. Some extra qualities show a 25c advance. Quotations:

Hogs.

The market opened with bidding 5c to 10c higher than Thursday's opening quotations, and continued with a good strong tone through the session. The run was hardly sufficient to attract all the big buyers, but shippers and speculators were active competitors, and sellers had no trouble in disposing of their holdings at the advance noted. On this basis stock was well cleaned up. Quotations:

Common to good, 245 to 400 lbs	7.20@7.50
Good to prime, 190 to 245 lbs	7.25@7.50

Light mixed, 160 to 200 lbs	6.70@7.20
Pigs	5.70@6.75

Sheep.

The close was steady with Thursday, but, considering quality, 10c to 15c higher was paid. The run was inconsequential in volume and indifferent in quality. No choice lambs came in, and the supplies were readily cleared up at prices steady with Thursday, the advance for the week being 25c to 50c above last week's prices. Quotations:

CHICAGO CASH GOES INTO THE KANSAS RISK FIELD.

National Life Insurance Company, U. S. A., Buys a Controlling Interest in the Union Life of Topeka.

The National Life Insurance Company, U. S. A., of Chicago has bought a controlling interest in the Kansas Union Life of Topeka, the capital being $100,000. The Kansas Union was organized by officers of the Kansas Mutual Life to take over the latter's business. Judge Hook of the United States court, however, enjoined the transaction and appointed receivers to take charge of the Kansas Mutual on the ground that the transfer was being made by irregular methods. An appeal has been taken from Judge Hook's decision to St. Paul, where attorneys for the National are coöperating with Kansas Union lawyers to secure a reversal. If the reversal is secured the National will then take over the Kansas Mutual business.

The Western union, which has closed its semi-annual meeting at Washington, D. C., took no radical action in any direction. Considerable talk arose over the situation in open fields, especially Iowa, where little coöperation is in evidence. Pledges were given for better coöperation.

The Southern Underwriters of Greensboro, N. C., has been launched, backed by the Southern Stock Mutual, the Southern Loan and Trust, the Underwriters of Greensboro, and the Home of Greensboro.

The State Insurance company of Nebraska has completed its organization with ex-Gov. J. E. Boyd as president, E. A. Cudahy, the packer, as vice president, and A. J. Love, an Omaha local agent, as secretary and manager.

The members of the Chicago Underwriters' association through the official bulletin have passed the amendments as to class 3 agents.

ACCUSED OF WRECKING A BANK.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 20.—George B. White, vice president of the South Pennsylvania bank of Hyndman, Pa., was arrested here today by federal officers charged with conspiracy to wreck the bank. He is accused of looting the institution of $20,000. He was taken before the United States commissioner and held in $8,000 bail for further hearing. He declares the charge against him is a matter of small importance.

EGGS ARE GILDED BRICKS.

MEN WHO CORNERED MARKET NOW POCKET THEIR LOSSES.

South Water Street Houses and the Big Packing Firms Learn a Costly Lesson in Cold Storage—Butter and Apples Also Help Deplete the Bank Accounts of the Heavy Buyers—Are Conducting Their Business with More Caution Now.

If eggs are placed in cold storage at 16 cents a dozen and are sold for 11 cents a dozen, the loss on each car load is $1,200. The South Water street commission men likewise have found that butter and apples bought on speculation are dangerous, and the result is that a number of the firms are sailing nearer the shore this spring than for years past.

April eggs are the eggs that commission men want to put into storage. They are well filled, firm, and keep for a much greater length of time than those laid in summer months. Last year there was a great demand for April eggs and the price opened at 14 cents. Before the end of the month it reached 16 cents. Carload after carload was bought and hurried into cold storage in hope that they might be sold as high as 35 cents a dozen. For the first time the big packers joined in the contest and bought till the market was cornered.

The demand that was expected did not come. Eggs have to be sold at a certain time. The hens were never so busy in the winter season as during the last few months. The storage charges were piling up and then came a break.

"Sell those eggs for the best price that can be had, but sell them," was the order from the heads of the packing firms. And the smaller dealers had to follow suit.

Losses in "Process" Butter.

The packers, as well as the commission men, bought "gold bricks" when they contracted for thousands of pounds of "process" butter and carried it into the cold storage houses. When the "oleo" law went into effect the 1st of last July, raising the tax from 4 to 10 cents a pound for the colored article, the general opinion was that "process" butter would be in demand. But the word "renovated," that had to be stamped on every package of such butter, was all that was necessary to stop its sale.

"Renovated" or "process" butter was the discovery of a country merchant in Michigan, who collected inferior butter and placed it in a big tank over a slow fire. The oil of the butter rose to the surface, while the dirt, water, and the rest were drained away at the bottom. He then took the oil and rechurned it with fresh cream, and the result was a fair quality of butter that commanded a good price, and was largely used until the "oleo" people got together and persuaded the federal government to order "renovated" stamped on the product.

In the cold storage houses there are hundreds of thousands of pounds of such butter, which was bought for 18 cents a pound, while the best butter was selling for 20 cents. Now there is little or no demand.

Apples Prove Disastrous.

"Apples are a good thing to buy" was a "tip" that was handed along South Water street last year.

Buyers hurried to the orchards of Michigan, and Indiana, Ohio, and the west were scoured for apples. Two dollars and sixty cents a bushel was the price that many growers received for the fruit on the trees. The summer months were not bright with sunshine, and fruit that is some months in cold storage should be ripened in the sunlight.

When the apples came back into the light this spring there were thousands of barrels of decayed and partly decayed fruit. Instead of $2.60 a bushel many of the apples have been sold for 60 cents. Four of the fruit houses that bought the most heavily have plenty of apples this spring but small bank balances.

"The rule to follow in South Water street is to buy products that will be short," said T. E. Purcell, president of the butter and eggs board, yesterday.

"But how can one be sure where the shortage will be?"

BUTTER WEAKER; EGGS FIRMER.

The conditions usually prevailing in the butter and egg trade were reversed yesterday when butter showed decided weakness and eggs took an up turn. Receipts of the former are increasing and holders are more anxious to sell. The demand for eggs was good and, notwithstanding larger receipts than any day of the present week, 8,070 cases, prices advanced from ¼c to ½c per dozen. The game market was without established quotations, owing to the poor condition of almost all receipts. Live poultry was easier and prices averaged slightly lower. Friday is generally a day of heavy trade in produce lines, but the stormy weather had the effect of curtailing purchases to actual requirements.

RUMOR GIVES ROCK ISLAND MEXICAN CENTRAL CONTROL.

Party of English Railway Officials in Chicago Inspecting American Methods—Summer Rate to Colorado Fixed.

Reports were current yesterday that the Rock Island is likely to get control of the Mexican Central railroad. No information regarding the alleged deal can be obtained here, but the fact that the same interests that control the St. Louis and San Francisco systems also are heavy holders in the Mexican Central appears to be the basis for the report.

The Rock Island's El Paso line connects with the Mexican Central and the 'Frisco means to meet it at San Antonio, Tex., to which point the Mexican Central is to be extended.

Little doubt is entertained that the Rock Island has secured full control of the St. Louis and San Francisco and it is said that official announcement of the deal is soon to be made. A long conference, it is reported, was held in New York yesterday between President Yoakum of the 'Frisco, William H. Moore of the Rock Island, and George W. Perkins of J. P. Morgan & Co., for the purpose of perfecting the details of the transaction.

It is understood that the Rock Island people agree to pay for the 'Frisco stock $20 in cash and the rest in Rock Island common stock, which is now quoted around 45. From a private letter received here by a prominent railroad president a few days ago it appears that President Yoakum's intention is to retire from railroad business as soon as the deal with the Rock Island has been consummated.

English Railway Officials Here.

A number of officials of the London and Northwestern railway and the Caledonian railway, who came to this country a short time ago to study the methods of operation, traffic systems, signal arrangements, and terminal facilities of the American railroads, arrived in Chicago yesterday under the guidance of Mr. Watts of the Pennsylvania.

General Manager Delano of the Burlington and several other Chicago railroad officials took the party to the Burlington yards at Hawthorne and the Chicago Union Transfer railroad (Stickney yards), and subsequently visited the drainage canal in a special car over the Santa Fé. They will do some more inspecting today, and tomorrow will leave for St. Louis.

Summer Rates to Colorado.

Passenger officials of the lines between Chicago, St. Louis, and the Missouri river held a conference here during the day and decided to recommend that the summer tourist rates to Colorado common points be advanced from $25 to $30 and that all rates from other territory in the west be made on the basis of 50 cents added to the one way rate. This proposition will be submitted to trans-Missouri lines for concurrence. If this proposition goes through tourist tickets at the $30 rate will be sold every day during the summer season. Last summer the sale of $25 tickets caused considerable congestion during the ten days of each month when they were on sale, and for this reason it was deemed advisable to advance the rates to $30 and sell tickets every day during the season.

Transportation Notes.

The capacity of the yards of the Lake Shore road at Elkhart, Ind., is to be increased. The plan is to lay thirty tracks on a strip of land three miles long west of the double track of the main line. All through freight will be forwarded without passing through Elkhart proper. The estimated cost of the improvements is $500,000. A corps of surveyors is arranging for the work.

The Père Marquette has placed orders with the American Shipbuilding company for two big ships for lake traffic. One boat will be placed on the Hudson-Sarnia line and the other on the Conneaut and Port Dover route. They will be ready for service in 1904.

Gross earnings of the Chicago Great Western railway for the second week of March, 1903, show an increase of $10,152 over the corresponding week of last year.

CASE AGAINST WESTERN UNION.

Philadelphia, Pa., March 20.—Argument was begun in the federal court here today on the appeal of the Pennsylvania railroad company from the decision of the New Jersey United States Circuit court, restraining the company from removing the poles and wires of the Western Union Telegraph company from along its lines. The railroad's contention was that the Western Union cannot occupy the right of way because of the refusal of the railroad to give consent and because the case cannot be determined before it will become necessary for the Pennsylvania to carry out its contract with the Postal Telegraph company, which gives that company the privilege now enjoyed by the Western Union telegraph.

SECURE A MANITOBA FRANCHISE

St. Paul, Minn., March 20.—Word was received in St. Paul today that the legislature of Manitoba has passed the bill granting an omnibus railroad franchise to C. S. Mellen, H. P. Upham, and C. E. Hamilton of St. Paul, and Messrs. Fisher and Ewart, of Winnipeg. The local promoters of the undertaking say they will gridiron Manitoba with a network of lines in the immediate future.

New Place for George T. Slade.

New York, March 20.—George T. Slade, superintendent of the eastern division of the Erie railroad, has resigned, and he will be succeeded April 1 by George Van Keuren. It is understood that Mr. Slade, who is a son-in-law of J. J. Hill, will become general superintendent of the Great Northern railroad.

"SPORT" CLAY DIES IN POVERTY

"Sport" Clay, for many years a familiar figure in Chicago and the Ward McAllister of the negro population, is dead at the County hospital.

It is said of him that he never missed a dance in the First ward from which his color did not bar him; that he could fight as long and hard as any man ever registered at Harrison street police station; that he had the heaviest watch chain and the largest cravat pin in the west; and that he never gambled.

Clay was born near Richmond, Va., sixty years ago. When he came to Chicago he went to work for "Mike" Burke, when Burke's European hotel was coming into popularity, and until Mr. Burke quit business Clay was a fixture in his place, having practical control of its management.

Later Clay took his clothing and his popularity to "Doc" Holden's place at 136 Fourth avenue, where he was head bartender for three years. About this time he appeared on St. Patrick's day in a huge green ulster. Clay's favorite dress was a suit of dark blue velvet, with plaid vest of black and white. A silk hat, his chain and pin, and dark green gaiters completed his attire.

A dozen years ago, after the death of his wife, Clay struck the down grade. In two years he spent $14,000 in dissipation. He died penniless.

MORMONS NOT AIDING ASSASSIN

Utah Church Has No Idea of Seeking the Release of Hooper Young from Sing Sing.

Salt Lake, Utah, March 20.—"If any movement is being made toward securing the release of Hooper Young from Sing Sing," said Secretary Gibbs of the first presidency of the Mormon church today, "it is from outside the church. No such move has been taken or is even contemplated by the first presidency. Even if he were a member of the church this action would not be taken, but Hooper Young was severed from the church years ago for immorality."

WIDOW OF L. C. WHITFORD CLAIMS DOWER INTEREST.

Many Tracts of Valuable Property in Calumet Region Affected by Affidavit Filed for Record—Allegation Is That Late Husband of Affiant Transferred Land Without Her Consent—Oak Park Postoffice Site Sold to the United States.

An affidavit foreshadowing litigation for property owners in South Chicago was filed for record yesterday. It was made a few days ago by Lucy Whitford and sets forth that she was the wife of Lot C. Whitford from 1868 until his death in 1890; that he left a will bequeathing her all his property.

One Hundred and Thirty-fourth and One Hundred and Thirty-eighth streets, Yates and Torrence avenues.

Mrs. Whitford states further that her husband deeded some of this property during his lifetime without her consent, and she claims that at her husband's death she was the owner in fee simple of some or all of the property enumerated, which was in his name at the time of his death.

In addition to this Mrs. Whitford claims that property in sections 18 and 20 in Hyde Park which is claimed by certain persons under two deeds purporting to be executed by her husband and herself. She alleges that the deeds are forgeries.

The affidavit practically amounts to a claim under the dower right, and clouds title to a vast amount of real estate in South Chicago. The square mile between Seventy-ninth and Eighty-seventh streets, Stony Island and Yates avenues, in particular is thickly settled.

"Mr. Whitford bought most of the property in large pieces from the Illinois Central railroad company, which secured it direct from the government," said Attorney L. J. Blum, who represents Mrs. Whitford, "and much of the property so bought was held by Mr. Whitford at the time of his death."

It is said Mrs. Whitford long has thought she failed to get possession of much of her husband's property. Lack of means has prevented earlier action.

West Side Leasehold Assigned.

Carroll Collins of Austin, Tex., has assigned for a nominal consideration to James A. Brophy the leasehold interest in 100x120 feet at the southwest corner of Morgan street and Jackson boulevard. The lease was made June 25, 1890, by John A. Packard to Michael Howard and Lazarus A. Berwin for a period of ninety-nine years at a graded scale, averaging $2,764 a year.

A three-fourths interest in 120 feet, east front, on Lake avenue, 92 feet south of Forty-third street, running through to Greenwood avenue, was transferred by Leverett Thompson and Helen M. Galloway to Eugene S. Kimball for $21,000.

Oak Park Postoffice Site.

Record was made of the transfer of the Oak Park postoffice site, 130x150 feet, at the northeast corner of Lake street and Oak Park avenue, the transfer running from Charles B. Scoville to the United States of America for $5,000. The building is to cost $50,000, and the appropriation was made available during the recent session of congress.

The Torrens Law Extension league will meet at the Sherman house clubrooms at 2 p. m. today.

WHEAT TONE IS STEADY.

LOCAL TRADERS PICK IT UP ON SOFT SPOTS.

Argentine Shipments Much Larger than Expected and Bradstreet's Figures on Weekly Exports Smaller, but Both Influences Are Overcome by a Disposition to Accumulate Moderate Lines—Corn Receipts Smaller and Prices Higher.

There was an early period of moderate depression in wheat yesterday at the opening, when the May price was down to 73⅜c, ¼c lower than the day before, but this was made up later and the general tone of the market was firm and steady. As compared with Thursday's final quotation there was a loss of ⅛c in the May and a gain of 1-16c on the July.

Figures on Argentine shipments were entirely out of line with trade expectations and largely in excess of even the highest estimates made the day before. Early in the week these were estimated to be about 1,500,000 bu. Later the figure was raised to slightly over 2,000,000 bu, but the official showing made was finally 3,352,000 bu, as compared with 1,240,000 bu the previous week. The large increase in these shipments induced a good deal of local selling, which put the early May price down to 73⅜c. The Argentine visible is showing a slight decrease, standing now at 2,576,000 bu, as against 3,016,000 a week ago.

A stimulating influence after the early low point was the prediction of much colder weather in Illinois, Indiana, and the southwest. This started some buying by Wrenn, Bartlett-Frazier, Rumsey, Pringle-Browning, Irwin-Greene, and Rankin. These were the principal traders of the day on the bull side of the market, while among the leading sellers there were Ware-Leland, Spencer-Denniston, Brosseau, and Barrett. Cables were no help whatever to the market, Liverpool making a decline of ½d and continental advices had little life or strength. These conditions were no special surprise to the trade, as not much was expected in the way of foreign help.

In the matter of wheat receipts in the various markets the showing was slightly in favor of the bulls. There was a substantial decrease at Minneapolis and Duluth, this being the only point showing a larger number of cars than a week ago. The total at all primary points was 400,000 bu, as against 411,000 the previous week and 474,000 a year ago. Kansas City and St. Louis had 64,800, against 69,500 bu last year. The Modern Miller report was bearish as to the crop, but bullish on country elevator stocks, which are said to be the smallest of the season.

Exporters were more active in all the markets. There was a local sale of 105,000 bu of No. 1 northern c. i. f. Buffalo at 2¼c over May and 10,000 bu of No. 2 red at 1½c under. New York reported twenty-three loads and cleared 287,000 bu. Bradstreet's figures on weekly exports made a moderately good showing, 2,396,000 bu, as against 3,367,000 a week ago.

Corn Prices Pick Up.

About all the strength in the grain list was confined to corn. The May delivery closed ⅝c to ¾c higher than the day before, while the July made a net advance of ¼@⅜c. There was a moderate amount of covering in the May, which had the effect of widening the spread between that delivery and the July. At the close it was about ⅝c, as against a shade less than ½c on Thursday. To a certain extent the market was steadied by wet weather throughout the belt. Some early selling was done by Patten in the July, which delivery was bought by Chandler & Sterling. McReynolds bought the May. Armour brokers sold May moderately and bought the July. This was in keeping with operations of the last few days. Cables were generally firm. Argentine shipments showed a falling off, 16,000 bu, as against 40,000 bu a week ago. The visible there now stands at 185,000 bu, as against 218,000 bu a week ago and 184,000 bu last year. New York reported 71 loads for export, 40 of which came from Baltimore. Bradstreet's reported weekly exports of 3,072,000 bu, as compared with 3,258,000 bu a week ago. Primary receipts were substantially smaller, 377,000 bu as against 508,000 bu a week ago and 316,000 last year. Local inspection was 201 cars on an estimate of 220 cars. Today's inspection is estimated at 130 cars. There were 155 cars inspected out of private elevators. Of this quantity 68 cars were No. 3 yellow and 56 cars No. 3.

Oats Hold Their Own.

In oats the general tone was steady and firm, both deliveries holding up well to Thursday's closing figures. Bartlett-Frazier had May to sell early, as did also Le Valley, who disposed of oats for Patten on Thursday. Armour brokers were moderately active on the buying side. The inspection was 235 cars, 8 of which were contract. Estimated today, 210 cars. Private houses contributed 51 cars, mostly No. 3 and No. 4 white. Withdrawals from regular elevators were 10,400 bu of standard. The cash market was somewhat firmer at an advance of about ¼c. Local sales were 30,000 bu of white clipped. The seaboard cleared 15,000 bu.

Hog Receipts Running Light.

The provision situation was stronger all through the list. May pork up at one time to $18.25, and closing 15c higher than the day before. This was also the net advance on lard. Closing prices on ribs were 12½c better. The strength came mainly from light receipts, only 10,000 hogs yesterday, with 9,000 estimated today. Western packing points fell back to 30,700, as against 48,500 a week ago and 64,700 last year. Export houses were moderate buyers of lard. The Continental people sold July and September ribs and lard. Swift was the principal buyer of the lard deliveries. Shipments of cured meats were 1,622,800 lbs, as against 1,564,900 lbs a year ago, and of lard 1,547,900 lbs, against 693,300 lbs last year. This increase in the movement of meats was a stimulating factor.

Rye was quiet, with no special change to note. Nothing done in futures, and only a few cash cars changed hands. Receipts were 5 cars; withdrawals from public elevators, 10,000 bu; from private warehouses, 2 cars. No export clearances from seaboard. Trade Gossip on 'Change.

Estimated receipts today: Wheat, 15 cars; corn, 130 cars; oats, 210 cars; hogs, 9,000.

Broomhall's Argentine agent has declined to make estimates on world's shipments hereafter on Wednesday, owing to the impossibility of securing even approximately correct figures that early in the week. The forecast will, however, be made on Thursdays.

Messages received yesterday from a number of Illinois points by A. C. Curry & Co. indicate that active preparations are being made for seeding oats, and that work of this character will be generally in progress early in the week. Some farmers are reported as afraid that the prevailing warm weather will cause sprouting, which will put the oats in bad condition to withstand any possible cold weather later on.

At a meeting of the Board of Trade Stewart club yesterday the list of officers and the executive committee was perfected. B. A. Eckhart is president of the club, and William H. Chadwick, secretary. Among the list of vice presidents and on the executive committee are about all the prominent members of the board. Some little feeling has been stirred up among the Stewart men through a discovery that few, if any, of the names published as committeemen in the Harrison club are members of the board. Mr. Chadwick yesterday offered an official of the Harrison club $25 for an authenticated list of the members of the latter organization, but it was not forthcoming. The Stewart people would be glad of an opportunity to show that the Harrison club has little or no standing on the board and that its membership is confined largely to young men who are not directly and personally interested in board of trade affairs beyond such salaries as they may draw from men who are members of the Græme Stewart club.

The Modern Miller says: "Latest returns indicate no change in the condition of winter wheat, the outlook in general being excellent. At a meeting of the Southwestern Missouri Millers' association, held on Thursday at Springfield, the consensus of opinion was that the condition of the crop in the territory from whence these millers draw supplies is 105, as compared with last year. A high average condition is also reported from elsewhere. There is no confirmation of damage by bugs in Texas or fly in other sections. The only possible menace to the plant is present freezing weather in the west and southwest. Stocks of wheat in the country elevators are the smallest of the season, as farmers are unable to make deliveries on account of bad roads."

Bradstreet's reports exports as follows:

	Wheat and flour, bu.	Corn, bu.
This week	2,395,000	3,072,000
Last week	3,367,000	3,258,000
Last year	4,326,000	340,000
Since July 1	170,986,000	40,880,000

Since Sept. 20, when the stock of wheat at Minneapolis was at low point—1,083,000 bu—it has increased 13,954,665 bu, now being 15,037,990 bu, compared with 14,721,735 bu a year ago. The aggregate stock of wheat now in Minneapolis and Duluth is 21,533,265 bu, against 30,289,340 bu in 1902.

Secretary Mowry of the Illinois Grain Dealers' association has circularized the trade, for the purpose, as he alleges, of correcting recent statements that have been made bearing on the difference between the regular and the irregular grain dealers of Illinois. His claim is that all members of the association he represents are the "regular" dealers, while the country "shippers" represent the irregular dealers, whose capital stock consists of "a cloth apron and two scoops." His circular is largely a tirade against the coöperative elevator men and the Chicago board of trade. A clause in the circular which some of the recipients of the circular will take up with President Knight says: "A few local grain men that have made a big pile of money in the last few years have made it in the same place and in the same way that Armour, Gates, and others made their money, but they made little or none of it from the farmer, and, while a few have made money on the board, I know of a large number that have been wrecked and ruined. That is one reason why so many have sold out. Keep clear of the board unless you have to hedge."

Ware-Leland say: "Considering the movement abroad that has taken place within the last four weeks, it is remarkable the way floating cargoes disappear, while European stocks are small. A notable feature was the sale of 225,000 bu to Mexico. The appearance of summer weather here during March evoked responses from land boomers in the southwest, with predictions of 125,000,000 bu for Kansas and 40,000,000 bu for Oklahoma, with Texas to hear from. It is surely a good thing for the trade to know in advance of the bumper crops that are to be raised, and the figures as given should not be lost sight of between now and harvest. Certainly ideal conditions have prevailed all through the winter belt, but freezing weather has not appeared, and it will be singular if damage reports do not come in thick and fast."

BANK STATEMENT A GUESS

FORECAST INDICATES BUT SMALL LOSS TO SUBTREASURY.

Figures Should Be Poor Which Would Suggest a Willingness to Let Stocks Work Down—Market Now Shows a Considerable Advance and Need Not Be Protected—Talk of Another Pool in Rock Island—Boxboard Dividend Passed.

Known movements of money indicate that the bank statement today should make a fair showing. Since last Friday the subtreasury has gained from the banks $1,098,000. From the interior the banks have gained $517,800, leaving the net loss to the subtreasury $517,800, against a loss last week of $4,406,000.

The statement will depend for its character upon the movement of deposits and loans. Last week the banks showed a decrease of $20,000,000 in deposits, which reduced the reserve liability by $5,000,000, and thereby saved the surplus. This week the stock market has been active and firm, and it is possible additional loans have been put out.

But, at any rate, the advance in the market has put prices to a safe level, and it may be the people who furnish the bank statement will not care to make it specially favorable.

They may permit an actual showing, in which case it would be a poor one, and stocks have advanced to a point where they could be allowed to move lower with safety. Aside from the actual figures the statement should again be interesting for what it may suggest.

Pool in Rock Island?

New York had a story yesterday of the formation of another pool in Rock Island common. That such a pool has been formed is doubted in Chicago if the announcement is meant to suggest that insiders have formed it. There is good reason to believe they have not.

The assumption of a pool was based upon a reported conference in J. P. Morgan's office at which were W. H. Moore, B. F. Yoakum, and George W. Perkins. It is more probable this conference had reference to the alleged 'Frisco deal. Should that be completed as per announcements it would help both Rock Island and the 'Frisco stocks. As a matter of fact these issues were strong yesterday. Until something is officially announced the stocks of the two companies may be expected to move together.

Boxboard Dividend Passed.

At the meeting of the directors of the Boxboard and Paper company in New York the following resolution was unanimously adopted:

"Resolved, That this company defer declaration of any dividend until it shall have accumulated a sufficient further surplus to provide adequate working capital."

Such action as this was expected. It is now a question how much working capital will be needed. It is hardly probable the earnings of three months will be considered adequate. Having passed the dividend, and therefore taken the disagreeable step, it is reasonable to assume that no more dividends will be paid until the company has accomplished what the resolution sets forth. The dividends are cumulative.

Corn Products' Annual.

The annual meeting of the Corn Products company will be held in Jersey City next Tuesday. The figures to be presented at the meeting should be favorable.

According to an official familiar with the business of the corporation, the earnings in the last year have been unusually good. The money for the common dividend was earned and in bank a good while ago.

The old Glucose company made the mistake of beginning dividends at the rate of 6 per cent. This was well enough until business conditions changed, and then the company could not afford to pay that amount and build up surplus at the same time. It was necessary to reduce the Glucose dividend from 6 to 4 per cent. Having learned the lesson of trade variation, the Corn Products company will doubtless show much more than the common dividend earned. The company at the same time has rebuilt some old plants and abandoned others. The year, therefore, will still not show the ability of the company as a money earner. That will be demonstrated in the coming fiscal year.

Dividends Declared.

The General Chemical company has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent on preferred stock, payable on April 1. Books close on March 21 and reopen on April 2.

The Rio Tinto Mining company has declared a dividend of 27s 6d, against 22s 6d last previous dividend, declared in November.

The Mexican Telegraph company has declared a quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent, payable on April 15. Books close on March 31 and reopen on April 16.

The Central and South American Telegraph company has declared a quarterly dividend of 1½ per cent, payable on April 8. Books close on March 31 and reopen on April 9.

Fine Showing of "Mop."

The report of the Missouri Pacific for January makes an astonishingly good showing in the matter of both gross and net earnings. The former increased 19.4 per cent and the latter 50.6. The figures were sufficiently good to advance the price of the stock on the exchange. They are reflecting last year's good crops and the showing constitutes a market factor that is well worth considering. The statement follows:

Colorado Springs Mining Notes.

The Golden Cycle management announces that sinking will be resumed immediately and the shaft put down to the 1,200 foot point. The mine is now producing about 125 tons a day.

Since the maps of the Stratton estate on Gold hill were placed on exhibition at the offices of the company from 75 to 100 miners have made application for leases on the numbered blocks. There are 165 leasing blocks in all. The directors will act on these applications next week, and by the first week in April it is expected this end of the district will be busier than it has been for years.

John Sharpe, who secured a lease on the Night Hawk, on Bull hill, about two weeks ago, has opened a new ore chute at a depth of 250 feet, which assays from $40 to $400 per ton. The vein being driven is the Cheyenne of the Isabella, which runs through the Night Hawk claim. The property contains about three and one-half acres, and is owned by the Colorado and Pennsylvania Mining company, a close corporation. The ground lies between that of the Empire State, the Free Coinage, and Isabella companies.

General Financial News.

It is estimated that before the end of the year the aggregate disbursements of the mines in the vicinity of Calumet will be close to $500,000 per month.

The new plant of the National Biscuit company, at West Randolph and Carpenter streets, will be opened in June. It will be devoted largely to the manufacture of package goods.

Since the close of the stock transfer books the United States Steel corporation has prepared letters to the 32,000 and more holders of the preferred shares showing the number of bonds of the $250,000,000 authorized issue which each is entitled to if he accepts the terms.

The annual report of the Mayflower Mining company for the year ended Dec. 31, 1902, shows cash on hand amounting to $77,529. There was expended during the year $45,192, of which "mining expense" constituted $32,644. At the annual meeting the following directors were reëlected: H. F. Fay, Manning Emery, John C. Watson, Stephen R. Dow, W. B. Mosman, and James Chynoweth.

The Montreal Light, Heat, and Power company has sold to the Bank of Montreal and to N. W. Harris & Co. an issue of thirty year 5 per cent bonds to pay in part for the La Chine Rapids Hydraulic and Land company, limited, and its affiliated companies. The Montreal Light, Heat, and Power company now controls all the gas, electric light, and power business on the island of Montreal, serving a population of about 350,000.

It is reported another hitch in negotiations pending between Consolidated Lake Superior company and the New York interests for raising an additional loan has occurred. There was a conference until a late hour Thursday night, and it was resumed yesterday. Reports say banks are reluctant to advance money till a more satisfactory statement concerning the company's earning power is available.

Electric Storage Battery.

BOSTON, Mass., March 20.—[Special.]—The local market was an extraordinarily dull affair today, despite the fact that money locally dropped to a 5 per cent basis, and that Amalgamated Copper showed good buying from New York sources at an advance over yesterday. The remainder of the coppers were dull. In the general list the further selling of Canadian specialties carried Dominion Iron down to 33½ from 35, and Dominion Coal sold at 116 ex-dividend, later recovering to 118. The strong feature was Massachusetts Gas common, which sold up to 46¼c on what was said to be syndicate buying.

HOME RULE FOR DENVER SURE.

Federal Court Refuses to Prevent by Injunction the Consolidation of City and County.

Denver, Colo., March 20.—Judges Marshall and Hallett of the United States Circuit court today refused to grant the application for an injunction to restrain the consolidation of the city and county of Denver under the home rule law.

STOCKS SHOW AN ADVANCE

GENERAL MARKET IN WALL STREET DEVELOPS STRENGTH.

Southern Pacific Goes Off, but That Does Not Disturb the Prevailing Confidence of the Traders—Prominent Rises Are Registered in Metropolitan, Consolidated Gas, Rock Island, and Missouri Pacific—Steel Corporation Report Shows Gain.

[BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.]

NEW YORK, March 20.—[Special.]—At the opening of the stock market today the weakness of Southern Pacific attested to a growing confidence in the general market that was not menaced in that direction when relieved of that weight. Prices took a course opposed to that when the abnormal strength of Southern Pacific caused general alarm.

Upon the day's business not a single active stock declined a full point, as practically the entire list advanced. It is invidious to specify individual stocks, but the advances that were significant both in extent and causes were Metropolitan, which advanced 4 points, marking the failure of a campaign of falsehood; Consolidated Gas, which made a further reaction from the depression following the announcement of the differences in the city of St. Louis; and San Francisco's advance of 3⅛ points, accompanied by credible reports of the Rock Island arrangement which was completed some weeks ago and is now in further stage of accomplishment. Missouri Pacific, upon reports of an increase of net earnings for January of $623,000, advanced ½ a point.

It is true they again lost cash, and an increase in surplus is still dependent on a reduction in requirements rather than a gain in strength, but the net movement between the city and the interior now favors the city. The subtreasury is much less exigent, absorbing less than $2,000,000.

The heaviness of Southern Pacific throughout the day, which caused the stock to close ⅞ of a point down, was such a marked contrast with the strength of the general market that it attracted much attention. The only reason offered for the decline was either that Keene is selling more stock, under the cover of the strength of the general market, or is endeavoring to coax the short interest in the security. The best opinion is inclined to the selling theory. It is now recognized that the fight over the property has seriously hurt the market position of the stock, inasmuch as brokers are discouraging trading in it in one way or another, and are demanding more than ordinary margins from such people as insist on taking a chance on the pool manipulation in evidence.

In such issues as Canadian Pacific, Evansville and Terre Haute, American Smelters, Brooklyn Rapid Transit, and the Smelters issues profit taking was plainly in evidence. The Canadian Pacific was helped by a report of a favorable court decision to the effect that the company is relieved of the payment of some back taxes amounting to $5,000,000.

The figures published in the street today show that the United States Steel corporation has at present 62,000 shareholders, made up of 34,000 preferred stockholders and 27,000 common holders. This is an increase of 5,000 in the last two months.

The forced selling of North American, which a few days ago broke the stock below par, has apparently ceased, the issue at one time selling up to 108. The recent selling it is understood was by a speculative interest who bought fully 20 points higher. Keene brokers were buyers all around the room.

NEW YORK, March 20.—General improvement was shown by the stock market today. The absence of selling pressure at the opening caused the professional element to cover in a number of the active issues, with the result that numerous material gains were registered.

The bond market maintained a firm tone but was less active than yesterday. Total sales, par value, $1,715,000.

Close—Money on call easier at 4@6 per cent; closing offered 5. Time money easier; 60 days, 5½@5¾ per cent; 90 days, 5½@5¾; 6 months, 5@5½.

IN THE FOREIGN MONEY MARKET.

LONDON, March 20.—Money was in active demand and scarcer in the market today. Discounts were firm.

On the stock exchange business was inactive and irregular, but there was a better tendency. Consols were firm and home rails were heavy. Americans opened steady and mostly above parity. Chicago, Milwaukee and St. Paul, and Louisville and Nashville were prominent. Kaffirs had a more hopeful tone, owing to Colonial Secretary Chamberlain's favorable reference to south Africa.
